ACTOR ARRESTED IN BANK THEFT

Tymm Held at Chicago in Connection With Theft of
$21,000 From Boston Bank

Jesseman, Believed to Have
Been the Actual Thief,
Ended Life Last Week

CHICAGO, May 26.—Frank Tymm, said to be an actor, was held at the detective bureau today in connection with the theft of $21,000 from the Old Colony Trust Co. in Boston, last January. According to detectives, the actual thief was Oscar Buzzell Jesseman, a messenger employed by the Trust company who died on a train near Rawlins, Wyo., last week and was buried there under the name of Frank Gordon.

Tymm told the police, they said, he met Jesseman in Boston after the robbery and they went to New York, joining two vaudeville performers on a trip through Canada to Portland, Ore. Tymm was arrested last night as he left the theatre at Hammond, Ind., where the two actors are playing this week.

COUNTERFEITER CAUGHT

Two Lowell Young Men Affect Capture of Man Wanted by Federal Authorities

George Robert Hermann, alias Frank Welch, of New York, arrested in Lowell last night for the federal authorities as a counterfeiter, was arraigned in Boston today and with $12,000 in bogus $20 and $50 bills on his person, pleaded guilty to possessing and passing them, but denied responsibility for their making.

Sought after by United States federal authorities as a counterfeiter and an admitted deserter from the Belgian army after serving nine months as a wireless operator against the Germans in the early days of the war, Hermann was arrested here last night as he was about to speed through the city en route from Worcester into New Hampshire.

The capture was made near the head of Merrimack street, when his automobile was overtaken by one occupied by Frank R. Lynch and Lester Hill, employees of the Dalton Livery Service at the Postoffice garage and Patrolman Louis Lapan, who had been picked up by the pursuers on the way. The arrest stands as one of the most impor-

With a building fund of $37,500, plus an equity of $5000 in its building in Jackson street, the Lowell branch of the Salvation Army is facing its future here with great optimism and with the hope that this money soon may be spent for the acquisition of a building suited to its needs.

The official tabulation of the money and pledges secured during the recent campaign was finished yesterday afternoon by Treasurer Julian B. Keyes, assisted by Adj. Robert Klepsis and W. N. Goodell. The total is $33,631.96, or about $1500 less than the grand total

—Fourth Member of Gang Captured as Pal Cut Rope—Armed Parties Scour State for Escaped Trio

BOSTON, May 26.—A far-flung dragnet was cast by state and city police today in an effort to catch Harry Manster and Charles Ward, a negro, who escaped about midnight from the state prison at Charlestown where they were serving sentences ranging from 20 years to life imprisonment. Jacob Dintzer, under sentence of seven to ten years for burglary, was captured while attempting to escape.

Manster, who is believed by prison officials to have directed the escape from within the prison, was serving a life sentence for the murder of Patrolman Joseph Riser in this city in January, 1918. Barney was under sentence of 15 to 20 years for the murder of Patrolman Charles Delahogue here in February, 1918. Ward was sentenced in 1917 to serve 35 to 40 years for criminal assault. The prisoners all were under 30 years of age.

The escape evidently was carefully planned and the prison authorities believe the men were assisted by friends outside. A key, believed to have been made by Manster, was used to unlock the cells. Eluding a double guard that recently had been placed over them because of their unruly attitude, the men in prison garb, walked through a long corridor, climbed a ventilator to the roof and descended to the street by means of a rope and strips from their blankets. An automobile containing three men is said to have been in waiting. The police believe the men changed immediately into civilian clothes.

Armed searching parties set out from the prison as soon as the escape was discovered and the police of Boston sent out details of patrolmen to aid in the hunt. Automobiles were

$300 VERDICT, AGAINST DEPUTY SHERIFF

In the superior court before Judge Fosdick this morning a jury returned a verdict of $300 in the case of George Faranos against Deputy Sheriff Edward W. Clark in which the defendant was charged with not having made full return of the value of a horse belonging to the plaintiff which was seized on a writ of attachment and sold at auction.

In the case of Babanes vs. Gatsopoulos, D. J. Murphy appeared for the defendant and stated that the case had been postponed several times at the instance of the plaintiff and that he desired to have the trial proceed. Judge Fosdick ordered the parties in interest to be ready for trial at the afternoon session of the court.

As no further civil cases were ready for trial Judge Fosdick took up the consideration of uncontested divorce actions. The cases heard were: Thomas J. Boyle vs. Annie A. Doyle, statutory grounds, decree nisi granted; Josepa Jessak vs. Kazimierz Jessak, cruel and abusive treatment, libelous defamations.

MORE TROOPS FOR IRELAND

Control of Irish Land by Sinn Fein Very Effective—
Famous Yacht Sunk

LONDON, May 26.—Aside from the fresh troops recently sent to Ireland, eight more battalions are held in reserve for transfer thither on short notice, according to the Daily Mail.

DUBLIN, May 26.—Control of Irish land by the Sinn Fein is very effective, as is indicated by an occurrence at Carrick-on-Shannon, which was reported here yesterday. A farmer named Morris was summoned before the Sinn Fein land committee to show why he had attempted to buy land over the heads of young men of the district who did not own property. He had just purchased a grazing farm for £2500, and told the committee he had bought it for his two brothers in America. The committee warned him to surrender it immediately, which he agreed to do with reluctance.

Unknown persons have seized and sunk Lord Kingston's yacht, the Meelah, at Carrick-on-Shannon, apparently because Lord Kingston entered a claim for £2000 for the destruction of police barracks on his property. The claim was subsequently withdrawn, but no public announcement of this step had been made.

HIGH SCHOOL MEMORIAL DAY EXERCISES

A splendid program, including the second act of "The Little Rebel," will feature the annual Memorial day exercises of the high school, to be held in B. F. Keith theatre, Friday morning at 8:45 o'clock. The school will assemble at the usual hour and will go to the theatre by rooms, each group in charge of a teacher.

The program also includes a patriotic address by Capt. W. C. MacBrayne, recently appointed commander of the new battery, assigned as Lowell's unit of the 101st Field Artillery. The entrance march will be played by the high school orchestra, under Mr. Blunt's direction. Piano solos by Francis Gorman of the Junior class and Civil war songs by the Glee club will precede the presentation of the second act of "The Little Rebel."

The prologue will be given by Miss Anna Mulligan of the senior class. The cast of characters are: "Captain Carey," John Gorman; "Virginia," Miss Mary Casey; "Lieut. Colonel Morrison," Raymond Crowley; "Corporal Dudley," Donald Adams; "Troopers," Everett Bixby, Edwin Braverman, Cecil Gardner and William Harte.

The Glee club will sing songs brought into prominence during the world war and George Perreault will declaim in French "Gloire aux Morts," adapted from Victor Hugo. Impressive indeed will be the closing when Fred C. Laitte and Wallace McQueen, regimental buglers, play Taps.

The exercises will be over before 10 o'clock, at which time the scholars will be dismissed to allow for preparation for the field day exercises in the afternoon.

BOND DRIVE LAUNCHED

Local Polish Citizens Open
Campaign to Sell Polish Government Bonds

Yesterday the Polish citizens of Lowell launched a drive to sell $100,000 worth of Polish government bonds in this city as a part of a nation-wide campaign to secure a fund of $50,000,000, to be spent in this country for the purchase of farm machinery, tools, building material, locomotives and railroad equipment to allow devastated Poland to return to a sound economical basis and take her place among the nations of the world in this era of reconstruction.

Although the local drive was launched yesterday, its greatest impetus is not anticipated until after a mass meeting to be held tomorrow night in Associate hall, at which Mr. Zabuk of the district campaign committee in Boston and Rev. Alexander

MICHAEL J. HOGAN

DIES SUDDENLY

Michael J. Hogan, clerk at the Richardson hotel, died suddenly this morning while waiting for a car in Middlesex street. His death is believed to have been due to acute indigestion from which he has suffered for some time. He did not complain this morning before leaving home and seemed to be in good spirits and the news of his sudden death came as a most severe shock to his relatives and friends.

He lived with his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Hogan in Livingston avenue, and left there at about 11 o'clock. He collapsed while waiting for an electric car in Middlesex street and was taken into a nearby store. The ambulance was summoned but he had passed away before its arrival. The body was taken to the funeral parlors of Undertakers J. B. O'Donnell & Sons and was later removed to the home of his sister in Livingston avenue.

Deceased was about 46 years of age. He was a man of splendid character, genial and sympathetic and had a number of friends who will be grieved to learn of his sudden death. He was a member of the Lowell lodge of Elks. He leaves his father, Mr. Michael F. Hogan, and his sister, Mrs. Thomas F. Hogan.

RAISE $500,000 TO SHIP BY TRUCK

NEW YORK, May 26.—A fund of $500,000 was pledged yesterday by more than 2000 business men at a luncheon of the Merchants' association to finance an independent trucking corporation in an effort to relieve the strain of freight in New York, resulting from strikes of labor organizations.

Resolutions were adopted urging federal, state and municipal officials to take action that will bring this intolerable situation to an end, and also endorsing the citizens' transportation committee, which will try to break the congestion.

NOW IS THE TIME TO CULTIVATE

We must all cultivate frequently. A fine proof of the need of cultivation, says the Middlesex county bureau of agriculture and home economics was given us last week during the five days of warm sunshiny weather without the usual frequent showers. The soil dried up, likewise many of our little seedlings whose rootlets were near the surface. Cultivation, as suggested previously tends to form a blanket cushion which prevents the evaporation of soil moisture induces the root system of the plants to grow deeper and lifts the weeds when they are just getting started. Let's see to it that we cultivate at least twice a week. The garden rake will be found a satisfactory implement for this work.

Kill Cut Worms

The time has arrived when cutworms are making their appearance. Cutworms attacking nearly all vegetable crops at this time of year, especially those that have been transplanted. The common cutworm is a smooth, soft-bodied, cylindrical caterpillar. Cutworms vary in color from a pale gray to dark, dirty gray, and are sometimes spotted or striped. They live over winter in the soil, generally in the sod adjacent to the garden. At this time of the year they become active again, emerge from their winter quarters, and seek soft, succulent growth for their food in order that they may complete their growth. Cutworms do most of their feeding at night; they hide in the soil during the daytime.

There are two common methods of control. One method is to wrap a band of newspaper about the stems of newly transplanted plants. The paper band is placed around the stems in such a way that a portion of it will be beneath the surface of the ground when the plant is set. By this method the cutworm is kept away from the stem of the plant. The newspaper band rots within a few weeks and becomes ineffective, and does not retard growth. By this time, however, the ravages of the cutworms will be over. Another successful practice especially valuable on larger plantings and crops like peas, beans and beets, is to kill the worms by means of poisoned bait. Poisoned bait is made by mixing together 1 quart of bran or coarse flour, 1 ounce of white arsenic or paris green, 2 pints of water, and 1 pint of molasses. Only a little of this poisoned bait is required. It should be sprinkled around the young plants in the evening.

All Pea Seed In

All garden pea seed should be planted by the present time. Peas are essentially a cool season crop. They at least require planting early in the season in order to be most productive. The pea lice, or aphid, are much more severe upon late planted peas. Late planted peas rarely yield as heavily as those planted early.

It is now safe to plant summer squash, beans of all varieties, sweet corn, cucumbers, musk melons, and other seeds of so-called warm weather crops. The first planting of all of these warm season crops should be put in this week.

Really Removes Roots of Superfluous Hair

(Pharmaceutical, the New Wonder-Worker)

Without doubt the greatest thing yet discovered for hair-disfigured womanhood is the wonderful chelate method. It has none of the disadvantages of electrolysis or depilatory and is a real hair remover. It does this instantly, leaving the skin so smooth and soft that no one can tell the user was ever the possessor of a mole or other hairy growth.

Phelactine is non-odorous, non-irritating, and so harmless that a child could eat it without any ill-effect. A stick of this remarkable substance, accompanied by simple instructions, can be obtained at any drugstore. What woman would not be delighted after seeing those ugly hairs come out, including the roots—with her own eyes!

HOOVER'S WARNING

Decrease in Production May Result in Country Becoming Dependent on Europe

WASHINGTON, May 25.—Decrease in agricultural production may result in this country becoming dependent on overseas food supplies, Herbert Hoover today declared in a letter to Representative Riddick, republican, Montana, setting forth the former food administrator's views as "to practical measures to insure better returns to the farmer for his labor and investment." Deploing the absence of a constructive policy of agricultural readjustment Mr. Hoover suggested the creation of a commission, composed of highly trained farmers and skilled economists and financial experts to administer the causes and remedies of the situation. Asserting that present high prices of commodities "sooner or later" will decrease, Mr. Hoover said: "This deflation must not begin on the farmer." Shortage in production outside the United States; wild extravagance and misuse of extra credits for speculation

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Makes Food Taste Good

Creates an appetite, aids digestion, purifies the blood, promotes assimilation so as to secure full nutritive value of food, and to give strength to the whole system. Nearly 50 years' phenomenal sales tell the story of the remarkable merit and success of Hood's Sarsaparilla. It is just the medicine you need this season.

and profiteering and non-essential production are contributing factors in the present inflated prices, he wrote. When the collapse occurs he predicted intermediate dealers will be able to pass the greatest portion to the back of the farmer, no matter how carefully handled.

"War deterioration in our transportation facilities has created periodic strictures in the free flow of food from the farm to the consumer," the letter stated. "This compelled the consumer to buy during a local shortage and the farmer to sell his product during a local glut."

The continued inflation of credits since the armistice has extended speculation and profiteering by expanding the borrowing facilities to any food distributor who wanted to indulge in such practices and has widened the margin between the farmer and his market, likewise increasing the prices of supplies that the farmer must buy.

"The burden of taxation is wrongly distributed, Mr. Hoover declared, pointing out that the excess profits tax "is an appointment to food manufacturers and distributors to collect taxes for the government by adding them to margin between the farm and the market."

"The whole marketing system in many of our commodities is indirect, expensive, wasteful, obsolete and increases the margin unduly," the letter continued. "Our manufacturing industries have developed out of peace with our agriculture and labor is being drawn in thousands from the farm to the town at wages with which the farmer cannot contend."

A commission studying the whole situation, Mr. Hoover declared, "would deal with these things and with the same common-sense with which similar commissions of farmers met the great economic problems of the food administration during the war with equal consideration for farmer, distributor and consumer."

BRITISH TAKE CONTROL OF BUSINESS HOUSES OPERATED BY AMERICANS

SHANGHAI, May 25.—A large number of business concerns which have been operating in this city under American control have been compelled to place themselves under the management of British merchants in order to conform to a British order in council. Under this rule which was promulgated early in the year business houses in China already under British register must be managed and controlled by British subjects.

This has affected a vast sum of invested American capital and a considerable sum of Japanese and other foreign investments, as the majority of business houses conducted by American and Japanese in China were registered under the Hong Kong, or British, ordinances.

In order to comply with the new requirements it has been necessary for these American institutions to displace a number of Americans from executive positions and to replace them with subjects of Great Britain.

JAPANESE FIRMS MAKE GREAT EFFORTS TO RESUME BUSINESS WITH GERMANY

BERLIN, Germany, May 25.—Japanese commercial firms are making great efforts to resume business with Germany. One Japanese shipping company has opened its offices in Hamburg and a regular steamship service is running to Japanese ports. Copper and silk are the main exports from Japan to Germany while potash is the chief article demanded from Germany by Japan.

According to the Tageblatt, the Japanese government is considering a claim submitted by Germany that the Shantung (Tsingtau-Tsinifu) railway is private and not state property. In the latter case, the railway would become forfeited to Japan, in accordance with the same terms of the peace treaty.

Japan proposes to release all German property under her control up to the value of a certain percentage to indemnify Japanese who have claims against Germany for war damages. An inquiry into emigration possibilities from Germany to Japan shows, the Tageblatt says, that although public feeling in Japan has become generally favorable toward Germans again, the prospects are not favorable, except for engineers and practical scientists. Foreign manual laborers especially are not wanted in Japan.

DIFFICULT TO KEEP PEOPLE OF ARGENTINA "DOWN ON THE FARM"

BUENOS AIRES, May 26.—Argentina, like the United States, has difficulty keeping people on the farms and out of the cities. To combat the tendency toward city life, the minister of the Interior, Ramon Gomez, has asked all of the governors of the provinces and territories to urge people to colonize the public lands.

Under a new law colonists are enabled to borrow from the National Mortgage bank up to 50 per cent of the value on land they have purchased and under the homestead law the government is permitted to give to colonists small lots of land in some districts.

The largest diamond ever found in the United States was found at Manchester, Va.

A long drawn-out fight against fatigue

Is the human mechanism equal to the strains of modern life?

TWENTY per cent more flat feet among city men than among men from the country districts—

Thirty per cent more defective vision—

The death rate twenty-one per cent higher in the city than in the country—

These are facts taken from the report of the Surgeon-General of the United States Army on the first million men who were drafted, and from vital statistics given in the most recent census reports.

Resistance to disease is always dangerously weakened by fatigue, the greatest enemy you have in your work today. "The struggle of business in city life is a long drawn-out fight against fatigue. You dare not rest for fear of being left behind. But gradually fatigue slows down your pace—

your energy is gone," says Dr. William Brady.

A certain amount of fatigue is necessary, but many people waste their precious energy.

Every step with leather heels or "dead" rubber heels on hard pavements acts as a hammer blow to the delicate nervous system. The constant repetition of the 8,000 steps you take a day tends to exhaust you.

You cannot change the pavements but you can change your heels. O'Sullivan's Heels absorb the shocks that tire you out.

Stop pounding away your energy. Go to your shoe repairer today and have O'Sullivan's Heels put on your shoes.

With every step on hard heels you are pounding away your energy

TO INVESTIGATE CARRANZA DEATH IN PRIVATE AUDIENCE

Formal Inquiry for Purpose of Clarifying Part Taken by Herrero and Others

First Authoritative Story Shows Carranza Shot to Death While in Bed

MEXICO CITY, May 26.—(By Associated Press).—Formal investigation for the purpose of clarifying the part taken in the death of President Carranza both by Col. Rodolfo Herrero and members of the Carranza party is recommended by the commission of four named by General Obregon and Gonzales to inquire into the tragedy. The commission's report, which is the first authoritative story of the death of Carranza, may be summarized as follows:

Col. Herrero joined the Carranza party at Puebla, state of Puebla, on May 25.

ARTIFICIAL WOOL

Successful Experiments Made at Leeds, England

LEEDS, England, May 16.—Experiments are being conducted at the textile institute in manufacturing by a chemical process artificial wool from cellulose derived from cotton waste. These efforts are said to have been very successful and, although the product is only a substitute for wool, it is said to have great wearing possibilities, especially if used with other fabrics.

There was no difficulty in using the substitutes on woolen machinery with 50 per cent natural wool or working the machinery with wholly artificial wool. The students have dyed the new wool and succeeded very well.

Professor Barker said the new substitute had a harder feeling than wool, but he expected it to wear as well. The institute had been experimenting with it for three months, but the principal difficulty encountered was making the necessary combination of machinery for the work, he said. Firms are expected to have no difficulty in manufacturing it in large quantities. It is all right for medium or coarse wools, but there is still a question as to whether it would do for the finer sorts.

Col. House O. K.

House is wholly neutral, very discreet and deserving. Confidences could contribute much to the betterment of mutual relations."

Count von Bernstorff informed his superior in the same letter that Americans were at that time chiefly interested in "the restoration of peace, and the abolition of militarism and navalism." He added that Germany would be "able to compel England to recognize the freedom of the seas only if supported by the United States and if Germany consented to end militarism."

Had Been Very Useful

"If I receive no reply on this point from your excellency," he concluded, "I will continue to treat Col. House in a dilatory manner. Up to now he has been very useful to me."

A letter from Dr. Solf, minister of colonies, to Dr. von Jagow reported the former's conversation with Col. House at the American embassy in Berlin late in January, 1916. In it Col. House was credited with statements relative to the political situation in England.

Pres. Wilson's emissary was quoted as describing Viscount Grey, then British secretary of state for foreign affairs, as "the most tractable English statesman." It was said he declared Viscount Grey was "eminently suited and also ready to negotiate and his imminent retirement from the British cabinet would not only be undesirable but liable to prove fatal to Germany."

Col. House was alleged to have told Dr. Solf there was a strong anti-American feeling in England at that time, and that "Germany was not aware of the extent to which unfriendly notes were being exchanged between Washington and London." He was quoted as expressing regret that "no arbiter was available, since England had indicated her lack of faith in America's impartiality."

Sentiment in England then underwent a complete reversal, it was said, and it was out of the question to bring up the issue of a revision of the doctrine of the freedom of the seas.

Blocked by Lord George

A memorandum of a conversation Col. House had with Dr. Theobald Bethmann-Hollweg at that time imperial chancellor, has also been published by the commission. The chancellor deplored the fact that Count von Bernstorff and Dr. Dernburg had exploited the issue of the freedom of the seas, which he said, "had injured Germany's cause in the United States." Col. House was said to have given the chancellor the impression that Viscount Grey had shown the matter could be discussed, but that Premier Lord George had peremptorily rejected the suggestion.

Not Sworn Foe of Germany

A letter from Baron von der Lancken, German governor of Brussels, to Count Monteleone, then in charge of the American division of the foreign office, briefly reported a conversation the former had with Brand Whitlock, American minister to Belgium, in January, 1916, in Brussels, after Mr. Whitlock's return from the United States. The American minister was reported to have said President Wilson had assured him in a confidential talk he was "no sworn foe of Germany" and that "on the contrary, the destruction of political weakening of Germany would not be to the interest of the United States, whose chief political aim was freedom."

Mr. Whitlock was quoted as having told Baron von der Lancken he was "offered $500,000 in the United States to retire from the Brussels post and devote himself to a lecture tour in behalf of German rule in Belgium."

During the spring of 1916, Count von Bernstorff implied the foreign office

BARUCH IGNORANT OF ANY McADOO CAMPAIGN

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Baruch by Senator James R. Reed of Missouri in the presidential campaign of Herbert Hoover and the assertion of Bernard M. Baruch that he is not personally interested in the political fortunes of any of the candidates featured yesterday's session of the senate committee investigating contributions and expenditures of presidential candidates.

Like Frank H. Hitchcock, Mr. Baruch proved a sore disappointment insofar as revelation of the collection of a huge "slush" fund by which some candidate was going to buy his way into the White House. Mr. Baruch solemnly assured the committee that he is but a private citizen, has no political ambitions whatsoever and what he has read in the newspapers constitutes his sole information regarding the $5,000,000 McAdoo fund.

He likewise assured the committee that he hasn't met in "a long, long time" any of the men with whom he is supposed to be associated in promoting the nomination of McAdoo. He doesn't know anyone sufficiently interested in the McAdoo campaign to be its manager and cannot name a single person besides himself who has contributed a dollar to any campaign fund. His contribution was to be the democratic national committee.

Preceding the examination of Hoover representatives and Mr. Baruch, the committee learned through James W. Feller that $355 had been disbursed out of a total contributed of $9810 in furthering the campaign of Senator Owen and from Walter W. Vick that $12,900 or all contributed has been spent on behalf of Gov. Edwards of New Jersey.

In speaking of contributions "to the Edwards fund, Vick declared that not a dollar came from liquor interests or brewers and that no one connected with these industries is connected with the Edwards campaign."

Representatives of the Hoover National Republican club, despite the most exertion on the part of Senator Reed to prove otherwise, demonstrated that in the matter of money no national committee to address any "snarling" notes to the American government until "pending negotiations" had been satisfactorily concluded. He also urged that an end be put to peace discussions in the German press so that "the impression that the United States was acting on behalf of Germany might be avoided."

HOOVER FAVORED FOR TECH HEAD

BOSTON, May 26.—Herbert Hoover is being considered by the executive committee of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology corporation for president of that institution to succeed the late Richard C. Maclaurin.

It became known last night that Hoover's name heads the list of those at present discussed as candidates by the executive committee, and it is regarded as certain that tender of the office will be made to Mr. Hoover if he is not nominated for president by the republicans at Chicago.

"KING GEORGE OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND" AWARD

NEW YORK, May 26.—"King George of Great Britain and Ireland" yesterday was awarded $5,575 damages in a $175,000 suit brought on behalf of the British government against Ernest Harrah, a New York steel broker, for alleged failure to deliver steel scrap as per contract for use in Italy during the war.

al bank devoted more care to details of accounting than has this organization, and every cent of the $62,064 collected and the $66,332 disbursed was accounted for in a sworn statement by a certified public accountant.

Senator Reed desired particularly to compare the contributors' list with the salary roll of the United States Grain corporation, asserting that "25,000 jobs" and large contributions were attached to identical individuals."

John F. Lucey, a Hoover manager, and Charles J. Hepburn, a Pennsylvania Hoover leader, said associates of Mr. Hoover in war activities and Belgian relief work had been very generous. "Has Mr. Hoover contributed anything in New York or elsewhere?" asked Chairman Kenyon.

"Not a dollar," Mr. Hepburn replied. "He wouldn't even advise or consult until the last month or so. The money has nearly all been voluntary without solicitation."

"There have been statements to the effect that very powerful financial interests are back of the Hoover campaign," Chairman Kenyon said, "can you tell us about that?"

"So far as I know it isn't true," was the reply.

"Have you any contributions from the international bankers in New York?"

"We have had a due regard to the personal reputation of Mr. Hoover and ourselves," the witness replied, "and have consequently refused to accept any contributions for more than $1,000,000 and from corporations."

Senator France told the committee he had no manager, funds, finances or campaign.

Chairman Kenyon, after adjournment, ordered notice of the investigation sent to Nicholas Murray Butler of New York and Gov. Coolidge of Massachusetts or their representatives.

Why a Sale at the Height of the Season? FACTS

This is not because we need the money nor because prices are dropping. How can they when wages are going up? In fact we never profited and never boosted our prices up 100 per cent., therefore we do not have to drop prices 50 to 75 per cent. My way of doing business is buying at low prices and selling accordingly; therefore, I must have your whole hearted support and co-operation to continue the enormous volume of business I have been doing, making it possible for you to save from 30 to 50 per cent. on all purchases, yes and even more on some items. Visit our store and let us prove it to you.

Signed,

MORGAN OFFERS HIS LONDON HOME TO U. S.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—President Wilson yesterday transmitted to congress, without recommendation, an offer of J. Pierpont Morgan of the gift of his London residence as an American embassy building. Mr. Morgan asked for prompt decision by the government, saying that he did not want a residence to stand unoccupied while there was such scarcity of housing in London.

The offer of his London house was made by Mr. Morgan in a letter one year ago. It was sent to the state department. Apparently it was not even called to the president's attention and the matter was not placed before congress.

After waiting 11 months and receiving no reply to his proposition, Mr. Morgan wrote a second letter, calling attention to his former communication and seeking a definite response. Secretary Coby at once sent the letter to the president and it was transmitted to congress yesterday afternoon.

The chances are that Mr. Morgan's offer will be refused, because of the unfavorable precedent that any person receiving the thanks of congress is entitled for life to privileges of the senate floor. It would be rather crude to accept the gift without thanking Mr. Morgan for it.

WILL CELEBRATE COMMUNITY DAY

Next Saturday is to be celebrated as community day in Billerica and an elaborate program has been arranged for the observance. The principal event of the day will be the dedication of the Charles H. Kohlrusch playground as a memorial to a deceased citizen of the town. Arrangements for exercises at the park have been made by the park commissioners and will be carried out under the direction of Warren H. Manning, chairman of the commission.

The program provides for the assembling of the younger people at the playground at 8 a. m. for the purpose of cleaning up the premises and getting everything in shape for the day. Luncheon will be served at noon at the Talbot school, after which there will be folk dancing and the raising of a flag presented by the school children. Following will come the formal exercises of dedication with speaking. At 4 p. m. a baseball game will start between the T.R. & T's and the K. of C's of Lowell. Community singing will be led by J. T. Fairbrother.

The committee in charge of the program for the day held its final meeting Monday night in Union hall, with Neil R. Mahoney acting as chairman in the absence of the regular chairman, Warren H. Manning. An executive committee was appointed consisting of Miss Cowdrey, Mrs. James Ritchie, B. W. Kearney and William S. Taylor. The flag raising committee is made up of J. T. Fairbrother, N. Millbury, Miss Grace Knowles and Mrs. Burnham.

NOT A DIMAS OR GESTAS WITH CARRANZA

MEXICO CITY, May 26 (By the Associated Press).—Mexican officials and military officers who accompanied President Carranza in his flight into the mountains of Puebla were again censured by General Obregon yesterday. Asked to express his opinion regarding the death of the late chief executive, he said:

"Among the generals and noted civilians accompanying Carranza, to whom they owed infinite favors and consideration, there was not even one Dimas or one Gestas, who wanted to die at his side."

In speaking of one "Dimas and one Gestas," General Obregon referred to the two thieves who were crucified with the Saviour.

He added that Col. Rodolfo Herrero, who made the raid on the Carranza camp, had 60 men, while Carranza was guarded by more than 150 followers.

COAST TO COAST BY AIR

Plan Passenger Service With View of Having Fleet Available in Case of War.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 26.—A dirigible airship line to engage in regular passenger service between New York and San Francisco is a project in which war department officials would like to interest capital, with a view to having an air fleet immediately available in case of war, according to Professor Harvey N. Davis, of Harvard university.

Professor Davis is engaged in expert work on helium gas for the department, and is designing a plant to be built at Langley Field, Va., where the expensive gas after use in the military lighter-than-air craft may be washed free of impurities and used again. Estimates by Colonel William N. Hensley, of the war department, indicate that it will be possible for passengers to go by airship overland at a cost of about 5 cents a mile, at a speed of 65 to 70 miles an hour.

"The advent of the airship as a regular passenger carrier is much nearer than many persons in this country realize," said Mr. Davis. "I shall be surprised if the coming summer does not see a line of airships in operation by an English firm between the United States and the British Isles and I have no doubt whatever that a year from now will see regular weekly sailings."

"By the use of helium all danger of disaster from explosions such as have wrecked big balloons filled with hydrogen will be averted. There will be no fear of ignition of the gas by bullets, lightning or sparks from the engine. In fact, it is pointed out, that the engines may be placed inside the outer shell of the dirigible, and that except for observation purposes no car need be carried outside the big bag."

While the present cost of producing helium is about ten times that of hydrogen, Professor Davis believes that development of its manufacture will result in a cheaper product. Helium will be used to furnish the lifting power in the $2,500,000 dirigible which the navy department expects to obtain from an English manufacturer soon.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

By Theatre's Own Press Agents

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE
Final performance of "The Mystery of the Yellow Room," the great French mystery play which has thrilled large audiences at the Merrimack Square theatre this week, will be given this evening. Olive Thomas in "The Plapper" and the usual program of short-reel subjects will also be shown. Tomorrow there will be an entire change of program. The leading features will be Dorothy Dalton in "The Dark Mirror," an intensely absorbing tale of New York life, and Robert Warwick, the celebrated dramatic actor, in "Thou Art the Man."

Doctor Fossdick, a young physician, has a dual role, playing two sharply contrasted types. As Priscilla Maine, a charming society girl, she admires him as Fossdick, an intensely absorbing tale of New York life, and Robert Warwick, the celebrated dramatic actor, in "Thou Art the Man."

Shortly afterward Doctor Fossdick, reading the sad story of murder, recognizes the folks involved as those mentioned by Priscilla, Nora O'Moore, a girl of the slums and loved by "Red" Carrasban, a gang leader, is one of them. She is Priscilla's exact counterpart. Mistaken for her, Priscilla is kidnapped and falls into some thrilling adventures that finally result happily.

Robert Warwick's role as the star of "Thou Art the Man," his new photoplay, is said to be one that appeals to all classes of movie-goers. It is laid in the South African country, and brings over with thrills and excitement.

A comedy, the International News and Bureau Times travel picture will remain at the bill.

R. F. KEITH'S THEATRE
As snappy and as generally pleasing an act as the present season has brought forth is being played by Eddie Buzzell and Peggy Parker, at the R. F. Keith theatre this week. This is but one of the seven acts which have never before appeared in this city. Kharum, the Persian pianist, is also a genuine surprise. His work is enthusiastically endorsed. Gilbert & Wells, blackface entertainers, are lively and Anderson & Graves in "Out of Work" present a most conversational comedy on lively themes. Other acts on the bill are: The Four Ortons, Grimmer wire performers; Adams & Griffith, in "A Singing Lesson," and Madeline, the Jazz Juggler.

OPERA HOUSE
Farewell week at the Opera House by the popular Lowell Players, a joyous one of the most successful runs of the season. The play, "Peg o' My Heart," one of the most entertaining comedies for years, is winning unquestioned favor with the players, while the members of the cast are once more being showered with well-deserved recognition from all. Beautiful souvenir photographs of Miss Marquise Fields were distributed to the women patrons yesterday and will be again distributed on Thursday. Receptions by the players to the public will be held on the stage this afternoon and Saturday afternoon. Come and meet the players personally. They will be delighted to exchange greetings with the patrons. And don't forget goodbye night, Saturday.

THE STRAND
Nazimova is always good! It's a favorite expression by motion picture patrons, and can once again be said with justice to "The Heart of a Child," which is being presented for the last time at The Strand. These are positively the last performances of this truly commendable Nazimova, offering today. See it. Frank Mayo in "Burr's Wings" is the other "big thing" on this commendable double feature bill, while the comedy play, "Weekend" adds to its pleasure-giving. Tomorrow Tom Moore in "Duds" and William Russell in "Leave It to Me."

LAKEVIEW PARK
Tomorrow night comes the opening of Lakeview Park for the season. This is glad news to many. For the present it will be open only evenings, but that is enough for you to shake the winter stiffness out of your bones and enjoy a few brief hours in the open. Other boys' full orchestra play. Barney Moran will sing and all the attractions will be open for your entertainment.

THE OWL THEATRE
Part of the Owl theatre's big bill will change tomorrow. The management is doing a little something real new to Lowell. One big fact is known concerning it, that is, the trade papers all pronounce it good. It is called "Comedy" and it is a two-reel sure crammed full of surprises. With it will be a Harold Lloyd comedy, "His Royal Sickness," another episode of "The Lost City," and—but we'll leave in the South African country, and brings over with thrills and excitement. A comedy, the International News and Bureau Times travel picture will remain at the bill.

R. F. KEITH'S THEATRE
As snappy and as generally pleasing an act as the present season has brought forth is being played by Eddie Buzzell and Peggy Parker, at the R. F. Keith theatre this week. This is but one of the seven acts which have never before appeared in this city. Kharum, the Persian pianist, is also a genuine surprise. His work is enthusiastically endorsed. Gilbert & Wells, blackface entertainers, are lively and Anderson & Graves in "Out of Work" present a most conversational comedy on lively themes. Other acts on the bill are: The Four Ortons, Grimmer wire performers; Adams & Griffith, in "A Singing Lesson," and Madeline, the Jazz Juggler.

OPERA HOUSE
Farewell week at the Opera House by the popular Lowell Players, a joyous one of the most successful runs of the season. The play, "Peg o' My Heart," one of the most entertaining comedies for years, is winning unquestioned favor with the players, while the members of the cast are once more being showered with well-deserved recognition from all. Beautiful souvenir photographs of Miss Marquise Fields were distributed to the women patrons yesterday and will be again distributed on Thursday. Receptions by the players to the public will be held on the stage this afternoon and Saturday afternoon. Come and meet the players personally. They will be delighted to exchange greetings with the patrons. And don't forget goodbye night, Saturday.

With it will be a Harold Lloyd comedy, "His Royal Sickness," another episode of "The Lost City," and—but we'll leave that for special mention. "The River's End," the "greatest picture ever" according to several thousand patrons, will finish the week. Nothing could better than the work of Lewis Stone in the dual role of John Keith, murderer, and Derry Conniston of the loyal northwest mounted police, has been seen locally. Stone just radiates strength. He lives the part. And with him, Marjorie Daw and Jane Novak form a trio that is hard to beat, which is not meant to belittle the other actors at all. Far from it. If they weren't good, Marshall Neilan, the producer and director, would not have them in his company.

TO MEET DEMANDS MADE BY FARMERS

VIENNA, May 26.—Appropriations aggregating 300,000,000 crowns have been voted by the government to meet demands by farmers for higher prices for grain running from 200 to 1000 crowns per 100 kilograms. Peasants have agreed to the new prices, but are now agitating for the adoption of the requisition of textiles, leather and other necessities, which they hold should be sold only to agricultural societies, which in turn would dispose of them to private traders.

It has been found that every part of the sunflower plant may be utilized for some economic purpose.

SENATE VOTES 20 TO 6 FOR MOVIE CENSORSHIP

BOSTON, May 26.—The state senate yesterday, by a standing vote of 20 to 6, ordered to a third reading the bill to provide a state censorship of moving picture exhibitions.

The bill exempting Holyoke and Westfield from payment of special license taxes in connection with the construction of a bridge over the Connecticut river between Springfield and West Springfield was considered briefly. The committee on bills in third reading declared that an opinion had been received from the attorney general to the effect that the bill was unconstitutional.

Senator Nelson of Haverhill offered an amendment under which the county commissioners would have no power to grant permits for the stringing of wires and the installation of other appliances on the bridge. Senator Chamberlain of Springfield offered an amendment under which all the approaches would be paid for by the county and municipal authorities. Further consideration was put over until today.

The senate passed to be engrossed the bill to provide that unreasonable agreements shall be a defense in actions for recovery of rent, and the resolve extending until June 1 the time within which the commission for consolidating the laws shall report to the general court.

New Building Fund

Reported on the last night of the drive, his discrepancy is accounted for by the fact that several subscriptions were reported twice by some of the canvassing teams. Of the total secured, $32,079.20 is in cash, with the balance, $145,775, in pledge form.

Because the drive ran above its quota to the extent of more than $3000, the building fund was inflated accordingly. Of the total amount contributed, $631 secured in excess of $33,600 will just about care for all campaign expenses. Of the lump sum, $13,000 will go toward the building fund, which now amounts to $24,500; $5000 will go to national headquarters and $600 for current expense incident with work in Lowell.

The official count yesterday disclosed one or two large contributions that had not been reported publicly, including $25,000 from the employees of the Wathead and Waterville mills.

In announcing the final and official result of the campaign, Adjutant Kloppe again expressed his deep appreciation of the generosity of the city's people. "The Salvation Army never will forget this wonderful manifestation of Christian friendship," he said.

Within another month the army hopes to secure its new home. It is not opposed to build if the proper place is acquired by purchase. One or two centrally located buildings are under consideration, any of which would admirably fill the needs of the organization.

STRIKE IN NEW JERSEY

NEWARK, N. J., May 26.—Approximately 1200 brewery workers in this city, Jersey City, Paterson, Elizabeth and Harrison, including brewers, bottlers, engineers, machinists and firemen, went on strike today because the New Jersey Brewery Association had rejected their demands for wage increases ranging from $4 to $10. Members of the association declare it is impossible to grant the increases. One large brewer here said the increases could not be taken from the profits of the breweries, "because since prohibition there are no profits." The only alternative, he said, is to close the plants.

Escape From Prison

held up throughout the city and searched and the quest soon spread to surrounding communities but no trace of the escaped men was found.

Dintzer collapsed this morning while he was being questioned by prison authorities. He said his failure to escape was due to Barney who, he claimed, cut the rope as Dintzer was climbing through the ventilator. He said Barney's action was inspired by a long-standing grudge that the latter held against him. Dintzer's collapse was attributed to injuries he received when he fell from the ventilator.

Barney's Second Escape

Barney's escape was his second feat of the kind. While he was awaiting trial he escaped from the Charles street jail and eluded the authorities for several days. Ward made an attempt to get away while in jail awaiting sentence, but was caught after dropping over a wall.

The escape last night was the most sensational here since nine members of the "Kelly gang" gained their freedom in July, 1912, by crawling through a sewer, which had an opening in the prison and an outlet an eighth of a mile away. They were captured eventually. The last escape from the prison was made on November 14, 1913, when Edgar R. Snow, serving a life sentence for murder, was at large for about four hours.

Dintzer, who was captured without a fight, told Deputy Commissioner of Corrections Ernest C. R. Bagley, that Manster expected an automobile to be waiting outside. Persons in the vicinity recalled later that they had seen a high powered green car near the prison grounds. Others told of a woman seen in a doorway near the prison gate for several nights past.

Break Planned Two Months Ago

Dintzer told Commissioner Bagley that the escape was planned two months ago. "We intended getting away Monday night, and had tried to break out the two previous nights, but each time something came up to cause delay," he said.

"Ward made a key with which he opened his cell. He passed it to Manster, and Manster opened the cell door of Barney and myself. I loosened the nuts on the wire grating over Ward's cell, lifted the grating and we climbed into the ventilator. The others went ahead of me.

"I was within two feet of the top when Barney, who was above told me to get down, that he was going to get even with me, and cut the rope."

The men made good their escape with another rope of twisted bed clothing, secured to the roof of the death-house, from which they dropped by a hook, improvised from scrap metal. Their delivery was effected notwithstanding they were considered the most dangerous group in the prison, and were under a double guard recently posted.

A dummy was left in the bed of each of the cells from which the convicts escaped. The dummy in Manster's cell was made of cloth, with a face in profile, hair drawn with black crayons and face colored. The "head" of the dummy was partially concealed beneath the blankets, which were folded in such a way as to give the appearance that a man was asleep in the cot. Dintzer's fall aroused the guards, who spread the alarm, but when they reached the wall the men had disappeared.

Rewards of $100 each for the capture of the prisoners were offered today by the state, prison officials announced.

PLANS TO DECORATE GRAVES OF AMERICANS

PARIS, May 26.—Marshall Pétain will speak in behalf of the French government at the Memorial day exercises to be held in Suresnes cemetery, near this city. Ambassador Hugh C. Wallace will represent the United States and both the marshal and ambassador later will assist in decorating the graves of American soldiers. The French government will also be represented at similar ceremonies to be held at Beaumont, Thiaucourt, Bully, Belleau Wood, Chateau Thierry and Fere-en-Tardenois.

Maj. Gen. Henry T. Allen will preside at the exercises to be held at the great American cemetery at Romagne-sous-Montfaucon, where the bodies of nearly 25,000 American soldiers are buried. He will also deliver the principal address. A company of infantry numbering 250 men and a military band of 85 pieces will accompany Gen. Allen from Coblenz.

Subscriptions totalling $55,546 francs have been received up to date, for the purpose of decorating the graves of American soldiers in this country.

HILLARD CAPTURED FEW HOURS AFTER ESCAPE

SHARON, May 26.—Charles P. Hillard, said to be wanted by the New London, Conn., police for a series of robberies, was captured here last night, a few hours after he had escaped from a police officer by slipping the handcuffs from his wrists and striking the officer over the head. Hillard with two companions, Forest Rogers and William Warkubowicz, had been arrested for breaking the seal on a freight car here and carrying away a crate of shoes.

PRIMARY RETURNS

Wood Running Behind Sutherland in West Virginia

WHEELING, W. Va., May 26.—Returns from yesterday's state-wide primary election in West Virginia being compiled here by the intelligence show Senator Howard Sutherland leading Gen. Leonard Wood for the republican presidential preference. Of the 443 precincts out of 1889 in the state which had been tabulated today, the vote was: "Sutherland, 374; Wood, 41; William G. Webster, New York, 41."

No names were printed on the ballot for the democratic presidential preference.

IRISH RESOLUTION

Substitute for Mason Measure

Drafted—Harvard Men Protest Irish Recognition

WASHINGTON, May 26.—A substitute for the Mason Irish resolution has been drafted for submission Thursday to the house foreign affairs committee and every indication yesterday forecast a favorable report on it to the house. The new draft after a substantial preamble simply expresses the sympathy of the American people "with the aspirations of the Irish people for a government of their own."

This falls far short of the wording and meaning of the original Mason resolution, which urged the president in effect to let England know that this country approves the formation of an Irish republic and assures him that congress stands ready to appropriate the funds necessary for appointment of diplomatic and consular officers.

Friends of the Irish cause will, it was predicted yesterday, accept the compromise if nothing better can be secured. They intend to fight for a stronger phrasing of their views when the amendment comes up on the floor of the house.

Delay on the Irish question is attributed by friends of the Irish to reluctance among republicans to take any action whatever.

Colby Makes Denial

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Secretary of State Colby yesterday denied a report published in a New York newspaper that he personally advised democratic members of the house committee on foreign affairs President Wilson has no objection to the passage of the Mason resolution extending recognition to the "Irish republic."

"There is no foundation for that report," said Mr. Colby. "I wish to deny it emphatically."

Inasmuch as the "Irish republic" has no existence in fact, it was stated emphatically by one high official yesterday that congress might just as well pass a resolution breaking off diplomatic relations with Great Britain as the Mason resolution.

This, it was declared, would be a much more direct method of getting results and would be "more honest" than to pass a measure to recognize a non-existent government solely for the purpose of corralling Irish-American votes in this country.

Harvard Men Protest

BOSTON, May 26.—Nine hundred and seventy students of Harvard and members of the university faculty, including President A. Lawrence Lowell, four Harvard deans, and 40 professors, have joined in sending a telegram to Senator Henry C. Lodge, asking him to prevent the passage of the Mason resolution in the senate.

The Harvard president and several faculty members were busy in the yard yesterday obtaining signatures of the students opposed to the tacit recognition of Ireland's independence by this country.

THE BEST ON EARTH

Says Mrs. Staples of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Taunton, Mass.—"I could not eat or sleep for six months, had fainting spells and could not walk without help for three months, caused by female trouble. My cousin, who was a doctor, told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it helped me greatly. Then during the Change of Life I used the same remedy. I am seventy years old now and am able to do my own housework and walk one mile to church every Sunday morning and evening. I am recommending the Vegetable Compound to my friends having the same troubles as I had. Your remedy is the best on earth. I cannot find words to express my gratitude to it."—Mrs. SUSAN C. STAPLES, 157 B School St., Taunton, Mass.

The reason that thousands of women from all parts of the country write such grateful letters is that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought health and happiness into their lives; once burdened with pain and illness. It has relieved women from some of the worst forms of female ill, such as displacements, inflammation, and ulceration. Why don't you try it?

SEN. GLASS OPPOSES INDISCRIMINATE BONUS

BRISTOL, Va., May 26.—Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, former secretary of the treasury, stated he was opposed to an indiscriminate bonus to ex-soldiers in a letter to W. O. Caine, vice president of the Bristol chamber of commerce, in reply to a message in which the chamber urged that the senator oppose the present soldier relief bill.

In his letter, Senator Glass stated: "You may be sure that I have not the slightest intention of voting for the bonus for ex-soldiers and sailors. I think it would be a frightful misuse and abuse of power for congress to vote an indiscriminate bonus to able-bodied ex-service men, millions of whom did not get within 3000 miles of Europe. At all events, I shall not be a party to imposing any such additional burden upon the people."

SAYS BOLSHIEVIK WORKING FOR PEACE

MANILA, May 26.—Bolshevism is a word that is sadly misconstrued in the United States, says Maj. Gen. Wm. S. Graves, commander-in-chief of the American Expeditionary Force, which recently evacuated Siberia.

"At the mention of a Bolshevik the people instantly conjure a mental picture of a frowzy anarchist with a bomb in one hand and a torch in the other," he said. "But the Bolsheviks in Russia are working for peace and the good of the country. In my belief they are trying to be eminently fair and just to the people. They have deplored the murder and bloodshed which took place before they first came into power in Siberia—Jan. 31 of this year—and are doing everything possible to stamp this out."

"GEN." LEE CHRISTMAS DECIDES TO RETIRE

NEW ORLEANS, May 26.—"Gen." Lee Christmas, for 25 years a prominent figure in Latin-American revolutions and from whose adventures O. Henry wrote many tales, has decided to retire.

"El General," as he is best known in Central America, was in Guatemala throughout the recent revolution there and gave valuable services to the Americans who were in peril.

So at 57 years of age, Christmas, a native of Memphis, has taken up his abode in New Orleans and says he is through with the adventures which come to those who rove through Latin America.

GIRL SCOUTS ENTERTAIN

Six girl scouts provided the entertainment at the annual social of the Immanuel Baptist church which was held last evening. There was a large attendance. "The Troubles of the Perkins Family," a drama, was staged by the following: Annie Southworth as Mrs. Perkins, a dressmaker; Helen Morse as Evelyn, her 16-year-old daughter; Muriel MacDonald as Polly, her 11-year-old daughter; Violet MacLean as Betty, her 12-year-old daughter; Gladys Paige as Ruth Garrison, a scout girl; Ethel Winslow as Virginia, her sister, and Ethel Leith as Eleanor Smith, a girl scout.

The directors of the occasion were Capt. Stokham and Lieut. MacLeod. The following program was also carried out: Selections by orchestra; solo by Gladys Paige; reading by Helen Morse; solo by Violet MacLean; reading by Joyce Finke; duet by Ethel Winslow and Ellen MacLeod.

SLEEPER SWALLOW'S COMPLAINT

I told you how Sleeper Swallow arrived in Scrub-Up Land in his evening clothes in the morning. There he was from his trip across the sea in his cutaway swallow-tail coat and almost-white shirt front, looking as though he were ready for a party.

"I was speaking of my clothes," he said to Nancy and Nick and Rubadub, "And does a sailor," went on Sleeper,

HOLD ON! CRIED RUBADUB. "I'VE GOT SOMETHING TO SAY ABOUT THAT"

the fairyman, in a complaining tone. "Here I am, all dressed up like an aristocrat and I'm not one at all. You'd think I expected to live like a dicky-bird in a gold cage all my life with these clothes on, taking baths in a gravy dish and eating dainty little tid bits from a lady's fingers, wouldn't you?" He looked disgusted.

"What do you wish us to do?" asked Nick.

"Do!" Sleeper shrugged his nicely tanned shoulders. "I want my clothes changed. Does your daddy wear his party clothes if he has work to do in the barn? That's where I live mostly, and up under the edge of the roof at that! Or does a chimney-sweep put on elegant black broadcloth and a stiff shirt, before he slides down the chimney with his broom? Well, that's what I have to do, for I live in chimneys sometimes, too."

"And does a sailor," went on Sleeper,

"encase his arms and legs in tight sleeves and breeches before he ships off to sea, as I have to do on my long travels?"—with coat-tails sticking out behind that you could play marbles on? I ask you, does he? No, he doesn't! My, but Sleeper was disgusted! "We'll change your clothes," spoke up Nancy feeling sorry for him, and getting out her scissors to clip off his coat-tails.

"Hold on!" cried Rubadub. "I've got something to say about that."

O. M. I. CADETS' MILITARY MASS

The O.M.I. Cadets will hold their annual military mass at the immaculate Conception church on Sunday, June 27. It was decided at a well attended meeting of the organization held last evening at the Cadet armory.

The memorial mass is annually looked forward to not only by the present members of the organization but also by former members who are invited to attend. It is expected that 600 young men who formerly belonged to the Cadets will be present this year. The usual breakfast will be served after the mass and an excellent program of exercises is being arranged by Rev. Denis A. Sullivan, O.M.I.

PATROLMAN BEATEN, BUT FIERCE BATTLE GOES ON ARRESTS ASSAILANTS

SPRINGFIELD, May 26.—Beaten with his own club and facing an automatic pistol, Patrolman James Moriarty, an ex-infantry sergeant with a distinguished war record, yesterday arrested James McCauley and Joseph Riley of New York, charged with the larceny of automobile tires valued at $450 from the garage of McKeown & Lennox, 7 Winter street. The patrolman says he discovered the men with the tires. They dropped the loot when they saw the officer and fled. Patrolman Moriarty did not chase them but waited for them to return for the tires. He waited three and a half hours before they returned.

The officer started to arrest them whereupon Riley, it is alleged, pulled an automatic pistol and pressed it against the officer's stomach. Despite this, Moriarty knocked both men down and took the gun away from Riley. McCauley got the patrolman's club and beat the officer over the head with it. Holding Riley tightly in his grasp, Moriarty warded off what blows he could and finally tripped McCauley and landed on top of him, then using his own club to advantage. Riley then broke away and ran. The patrolman handcuffed McCauley and started in pursuit. Riley surrendered to Moriarty at the Union station.

GRADUATION EXERCISES TO BE OMITTED BECAUSE OF HIGH COST OF CLOTHING. NEWBURYPORT, May 26.—It was announced that the customary public graduation exercises of the grammar schools will be omitted this year on account of the high cost of living.

Supt. of Schools Moore suggested to the principals of the schools the advisability of such a curtailment, and at a conference held by them, following consultation with members of the graduating classes, the plan was adopted. The cost of clothing was a determining factor. Diplomas will be presented the pupils at simple exercises held in the classrooms.

Retchitsa Occupied by Russian Bolshevik Forces—Poles Re-enforced

LONDON, May 26.—Retchitsa, a village on the right bank of the Dnieper river, approximately 155 miles north of Kiev, has been occupied by Russian Bolshevik forces which are also advancing on the fortified outskirts of Bobruisk, on the Berezina river, according to an official statement issued in Moscow yesterday and received here by wireless.

Fighting is proceeding 14 miles northeast of Kiev, the statement declares, and attacks by Polish and Ukrainian troops southeast of Kiev, along the Kiev-Poltava railway, have been repulsed.

Along the upper reaches of the Berezina river soviet forces are said to have occupied a number of villages six miles southwest of Dokschitsa and 16 miles west of the Berezina. On this front the battle is going on over a line 40 miles long.

Polish forces fighting in front of Minsk have received reinforcements and are fighting stubbornly against the Bolshevik advance, the statement says.

PRES. DESCHANEL IS RECOVERING

PARIS, May 26.—President Deschanel is recovering from the injuries he received Monday morning when he fell from a train near Montargis, but must take a complete rest, which may extend until late in the summer, according to a statement by his private secretary today.

General Weakness

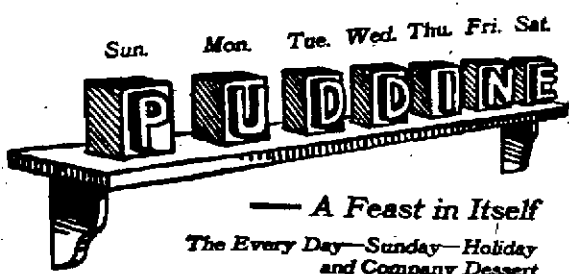

I was anemic and most of the time was unable to attend to my household duties.

One of my neighbors suggested that I should try RED PILLS for Pale and Weak Women. I took them, and after following the treatment for a month, was happy to note that I was getting better every day. Now, all the sufferings which I endured during those years are things of the past.

With summer weather and a temperature of 87 degrees, the farmers of Aroostook county, Me., who raised a considerable portion of the potatoes that are now selling at from $8 to $9 a bushel, ought to be happy.

Pay increases are an excellent thing for those who get them, but it would be a more excellent thing all around if those who get the pay lifts would determine to deserve them by pitching in and working a little harder to increase production.

The report that Carranza of Mexico committed suicide is a shabby attempt to shield his murderers from the punishment they deserve. If Mexico is to show any self-respect, she should promptly bring these cowardly marauders to justice.

With congress, the Federal Reserve bank and many officials, individuals and organizations of one kind or another out after his blood, it would seem that old H. C. of L. might be getting ready to take to the tall timber, but at last accounts he was still doing business at the old stand without a sign of worry or solicitude.

The jump in the city's death rate from 13.48 and 14.93 during the previous two weeks to 18.78 last week, as the summer season is approaching, is not reassuring. Twelve of the deaths were of children under five years of age, and ten of them were of babies under one year old. It is a time for increased vigilance on the part of municipal authorities, and civic organizations that are interested in the conservation of child life.

The government of Chihuahua has offered a reward for the capture of Villa dead or alive. That is a highly proper thing to do inasmuch as Villa and his followers have been more dangerous during the last four years than a great flock of hungry wolves. If Mexico is to live, it is necessary that Villa and his bandits should die. If General Obregon is master of Mexico one of the first things he should attend to is to put an end to the guerrilla warfare conducted by Villa.

While government officials are straining every nerve to capture Draft-dodger Bergdoll, it would seem to be proper that a little effort should be put into an attempt to determine who is responsible for his being at large after having been sentenced to a term of five years in prison. Unpleasant suspicions are aroused when it is known that a young man with an abundance of money behind him, who is supposed to be confined behind iron bars, can have his prison gates swung wide for him by telling a vastly improbable story of large sums of money hidden on a mountain-side.

The committee of the Chamber of Commerce that is studying the city's taxicab situation has an important field of work before it. The taxi in other cities of New England has become a source of great convenience to large numbers of people, and the revenues of the street railways do not seem to have been greatly affected thereby. In fact some trolley lines have welcomed their advent as feeders of the rail lines. It ought to be possible to work out an arrangement for Lowell that would give more comprehensive transportation facilities without injuring those that already exist.

WASTE OF MONEY

It seems to be high time that the naval investigation and others which have been dragging along for weeks should be terminated. The government is obliged to undergo a very heavy expense in printing the reports of these investigations in addition to the campaign speeches of the senators and representatives who use the Congressional Record for the distribution of their campaign literature. Already the government printing department has complained that it is impossible to secure the print paper necessary for such an output of reports and other official documents. If economy is to be practiced anywhere, it should start in the government printing department at Washington.

POLAND'S STRUGGLE

Poland is now the scene of a war fully as desperate as any portion of the great world struggle which we supposed had been terminated

when the armistice was declared on Nov. 11, 1918.

Poland has already done splendid work in driving back the Bolshevik forces; but they are now pouring down upon her in enormous numbers and she is in danger of losing the vantage ground she has gained at such heroic sacrifice.

In this warfare not only the fate of Poland, but that of the Ukraine and possibly a great part of western Europe is involved. For this reason, it is hoped that the allies will assist Poland in every way possible and at least supply her with ammunition and food so as to enable her to stay the Red tide that threatens her in the armies of Trotsky and Lenin.

MONEY IN POLITICS

It would appear that some of the republican candidates for the presidency are out to purchase the nomination. The revelations, brought out in the senate investigation although it has only started, are quite alarming.

The question arises as to whether the men who are to spend millions of dollars in the contest for the nomination are merely following the old time republican custom.

The campaign managers do not seem to feel that they are doing anything out of the ordinary in lavishing money in large amounts to secure delegates to the convention. It is said that General Wood's campaign would make that of Newberry for senator in Michigan "look like a piker."

If there is any hope for clean politics in this country, it should appear in connection with the highest office in the land, but unfortunately it is for that office the corruptionists put forth their greatest efforts.

The question arises, how a man would square himself as president if in securing election he spent five or ten times the amount of his salary?

BACK ON THE FARMS

"There are not enough corner cigar stores, pool rooms and confectionery emporiums back there on the farms to attract city dwellers," thinks Senator Sherman, and that is one of the reasons that he ascribes for high prices for foodstuffs and the possibility of a serious shortage of food next winter. Perhaps the senator is right, but there are, nevertheless, many attractions connected with life on a farm that would appeal to people of the cities if they understood them better.

For many—perhaps most people in the cities, life is a constant economic struggle to make the ends of income and outgo meet. Someone has said that not more than one person in ten among the workers in cities is more than a month ahead of the poorhouse—meaning, of course, that four weeks unemployment would bring serious inconvenience if not suffering in many families.

The farmer is at least independent of this. He is practically always certain of a market for his products with at least a fair profit and, in the last analysis, if his market fails, he can consume that which he has grown himself. If a food shortage develops, he will not be among those who will suffer acutely.

The farm laborer has the advantage of clean wholesome work in the open air, the advantages of social recreation provided by the strange and other organizations, he is well fed at his employer's table, and, at present rates of pay, he has handed to him at the end of each month from $50 to $60 that represents largely a clear financial profit for him. The conditions were never so favorable for the farm laborer.

MORE PROPAGANDA

Under pretence of protecting American exporters, an organization is being formed in New York to combat the anti-British propaganda which, it is claimed, is likely to be injected into the coming presidential campaign. The alleged aim is to prevent any disturbance of our friendly relations with Great Britain that might operate to the detriment of American exporters.

That is how the matter is presented to the public, but as to the alleged danger to our export trade with Great Britain, we do not believe that there need be much concern on that score, as England is buying most of her supplies from Germany and other countries, the difference in the rate of exchange causing her to avoid the American market, except for such essentials as sugar or some other commodity, the purchase of which is due to sheer necessity and in which the price is a secondary consideration.

According to an article in the Daily News Record of New York, the several commercial organizations interested, chiefly British, are organizing for a campaign along these lines. After describing the general purposes of the meeting the article referred to said:

"The attention of the American chamber of commerce in London has been directed to this situation and this organization will work with the British Empire chamber of commerce, now being formed in this city, to offset the propaganda which, it is alleged, is being carried on by certain interests in this country. It was impossible to obtain statements from those who attended the meeting.

"One of the exporters present disavowed, however, that the matter was of too delicate a nature to permit of wide publicity being given to it."

It will be interesting to note the operation of this new movement and to watch its attitude towards the different candidates. Its avowed purpose is to interest itself in the campaign. It should declare for what candidate it is to work. But that is also too delicate a matter to be made public.

CASE OF ARMENIA

Affairs at Washington are reaching a crisis relative to Armenian affairs. A short time ago Senator Harding presented a resolution expressing deep sympathy with Armenia in her struggle for liberty and his sentiments were enthusiastically endorsed and the resolution unanimously adopted. At that time it was not known that President Wilson had been asked to act as arbitrator in settling the complicated questions of the Armenian boundaries, now under dispute between Turkey and several other nations. He had, however, ordered a war vessel with marines to Batum on the Black Sea to protect the lives of Americans there, in danger on account of warlike operations by the Turks and other races. His instructions also included an order to protect the railroad from Batum to Baku on the Caspian Sea. This action taken in connection with that of the senate would indicate a real desire on the part of the United States to help Armenia.

Now comes President Wilson with an appeal to congress to accept the proffered mandate for Armenia in accordance with the request of the war council sitting at San Remo. President Wilson makes a strong plea for the acceptance of the mandate; but it appears that both republicans and democrats in congress are strongly committed against assuming any such responsibility.

One of the reservations adopted on the League of Nations covenant provided that no mandate over European or Asiatic countries would be accepted by the United States. It is not likely that the senate will change its attitude on that question although should it refuse, its expressed sympathy for Armenia will appear to be so much hot air.

The president has the official right to accept the invitation offered him to arbitrate the Armenian boundary disputes. That question is very much involved with international complications. On one side England has claims, on another France, Russia at a different point and Turkey the most inveterate enemy of Armenian liberty, is opposed to any recognition of Armenian rights.

It would not be surprising to find that in settling this question President Wilson will make quite as many enemies for himself and the United States as he did in his efforts to settle the Adriatic question, between Italy and the Czechs-Slovaks.

In this critical hour when the fate of Armenia hangs in the balance, her friends and sympathizers throughout the world, will naturally hope that some power will aid her in establishing her liberty on a solid basis so that she may start on a new career of freedom, unhampered by Turkish assaults and free to work out her own national destinies.

If congress refuses to accept the mandate for Armenia it can favor the recognition of the new republic which would give Armenia official standing among the nations of the world. This at least should we do for Armenia and when giving recognition to that new republic, it would be but a simple act of justice to extend an equal favor to the republic of Ireland.

SEEN AND HEARD

No one has yet adopted overalls as a coat-of-arms.

There is fruit to eat, but without sugar one can't.

Well, why should anybody run for vice president while bricklayers are paid at the present rate?

One can no longer find an appetizer, but, considering the price of food, it is perhaps just as well.

It seems that almost everybody agrees that the other fellow should get back to the farm.

Evolution New Process

Prof. Garner reports that the female ape says "Moo-hoo" and the male ape, "Wah-hoo." Evolution doesn't appear to have carried us very far. A chap on the moonlit beach last night said: "Who is out?" and the girl replied, "Ts oos."

Very Much of Him

The outside of the small village inn didn't promise much comfort, but it was that or nothing, so the stranded cyclist engaged a room and prepared for the worst. On going upstairs after a meal, he found there was no water in the jug, no soap and no towel. So he pulled at the creaky bell wire. Nothing happened, although he heard a faint tinkle down below. He waited a few minutes and then rang again and again at intervals. At the end of 20 minutes a heavy foot-fall sounded in the passage, his room door was unceremoniously thrust open and a tumbled head appeared.

"Did you ring?" asked the owner of the tumbled head in a drowsy voice. "Did I ring?" snapped the visitor. "Of course, I rang. I've been ringing for half an hour!"

"Well, don't do it again," admonished the drowsy voice as the head disappeared. "You've woke me up!"

The "Thank You" Club

It's great. The "Thank You" club. No initiation, no dues, no long-drawn out meetings, and no reports. Anyone can join, and so small a number as two make a quorum to do business. No stated meetings nor any stipulated place of meeting. Anybody can start a "Thank You" club. Beats Overall clubs all to pieces, lasts longer, does more good, and spreads sunshine. One carries the by-laws around in his head. The password is "Thank you." And that's all there is in the whole book of rules. That's all it means, the "Thank You" club—just a thank you for the little services performed daily as well as the big ones. A thank you is more appreciated by many people than a tip, which, by some, might be considered an insult. Start a club some morning. Watch your club grow. Good ideas spread. Try the club for one day. It may make you a life member. And the thank yous will increase and radiate like ripples from a stone thrown into the mill-pond. There's a big field in Lowell for Thank You clubs. Their members take the edge off rough places. If Thank You is the password, the genuine smile of service is the open reward for its application.

"I Told You So"

They don't like, some folks say, you know. Don't like to say "I told you so!" But, well, say, just think it's fine. When some chance emphasis of mine wings to the bull's-eye of the mark. Well, then, you ought to hear me bark: "I told you so!"

Some folks, they kind of hum and haw. And let their friends down easy. (Pshaw!)

I jump right on my dearest friend. I simply stand him up on end. And pin my face against the wall. And make him hearken to my call: "I told you so!"

Some folks sort of apologize. Because events have proved them wise. Not me I love to rub it in. I just haw-haw and whoop and grin. I let the other fellow know I told him so! "I told him so!"

Some folks—but shucks! come now, confess! You sometimes say those words, I guess. And when you do, a foolish pride sings in your ears and to be denied. Own up you love to say them, too. What's that you say? What's that? You do? "I told you so!"

MAN ABOUT TOWN

The rainbow that was visible to Lowell people last night about 3 o'clock was remarkable in a number of ways. In the first place rainbows are not a common phenomena in this latitude and longitude at this time of the year. They usually come following the torrential downpour of a thunderstorm in midsummer. They also come gradually, appearing and disappearing against the broken clouds until a more or less perfect arch is formed. Last night's display appeared in an instant, and it remained spanning the heavens with a complete bow for the space of five or six minutes when it as quickly disappeared. There was no fitting in and out of sight as it made its entrance on the scene and it did not gradually fade away. Simply, it was visible one instant and the next it had gone.

There is an old chanty that men of the sea used to sing which ran something like this: "Rainbow in the morning, sailors take warning; Rainbow at night is the sailors' delight."

Being interpreted this means of course that the rainbow of the early hours of the day is to be considered the forerunner of a continued or coming storm, while one that appears in the hours nearer sunset should presage fair weather. It would seem possible that the weather bureau sharks might have remembered the words of the old saw and considered the rainbow in making up their prognostications, for last night they predicted unsettled weather with showers for today, but this morning they had revised their prediction to "fair and warmer."

LOWELL CEMETERIES

Flags Waving and Flowers

Blooming in Silent Cities of the Dead

With plans under way for a wider observance of Memorial day this year than for many years past, the authorities in charge of the local cemeteries are straining every effort to have the various burial places within the city in condition for the numberless people who will visit the graves of their departed loved ones on the holiday to pay their annual tribute.

The backward season has interfered seriously with the usual spring work in many of the cemeteries with the result that flowers and plants are being set out at the eleventh hour and large gangs of men are working at top-speed getting the various lots in presentable condition.

Thousands of little American flags will wave over the graves of soldier and sailor dead in Lowell's cemeteries this Memorial day and veterans of three wars will be remembered not only by their families but by their former comrades.

With the American Legion functioning as a well organized body, the graves of every Lowell soldier or sailor who died in the world war and who is buried here will be suitably marked and flags put in place. The Civil and Spanish-American war veterans will, of course, see that the graves of their dead are decorated.

In some of the cemeteries the superintendents report an anticipated shortage of flowers for this year's observance owing to the high prices, while in others the usual amount of floral decoration is expected.

Various improvements have been made in all the cemeteries since last Memorial day and in not a single instance will the visitor find anything to admire as he or she makes the Memorial day pilgrimage.

The Lowell Cemetery

The Lowell cemetery will present the most beautiful appearance in its history on Memorial day this year. Superintendent Harry O. Mulino has been preparing for the holiday and he announces that the quantity of flowers that have been ordered is nearly double that of any previous year.

Outside the greenhouses are a large number of plants that have already been prepared and are ready for setting. In one collection are 65 large vases and baskets in condition to be moved to the lots, while the work is well under way of filling 50 other similar receptacles that are in various parts of the 85-acre enclosure, but are too large to be moved from the lots.

In the greenhouses the floral display is more than ordinarily profuse. Near the entrance is a collection of geraniums such as can scarcely be equalled in this part of the country. Some of the plants are between three and four feet tall, and on one of the single plants are no less than 17 buds and blossoms. Inside the greenhouses are many baskets and pans containing geraniums, cigar plant, wandering Jew, rock plant, ageratum, heliotrope and other plants. There are also many pans containing geranium and celery geranium and palms.

A large bed of feverfew is in bud, and it is hoped that it will be in full bloom by next Monday. There are also many carnations in either flower or bud.

Most of the lawns and the surfaces of the lots will be mowed during the next few days and everything will be at its best around the cemetery early next week. The damp weather of the last few weeks has given the grass a lush growth, and it has got the start of Superintendent Mulino and his men, but with a few bright, sunny days in which to work they hope to soon have all the lawns as smooth as velvet.

There are few new monuments of importance that have been added to the cemetery since a year ago. The foundations are in for seven new pieces that would have been in place for Memorial day if work upon them had not been halted by a strike of granite workers at the quarries.

One of the monuments erected since last Memorial day that attracts attention is the James E. Hughes monument with a statue representing Sorrow standing upon a base of dark granite. This is located on a tract of 15 lots that was opened last fall.

One of the most beautiful spots in the enclosure just now is the Willoughby memorial garden opposite the burial lot of the family. Tulips are present in the beds, and these will be succeeded by other flowers as one plant after another passes out of blooming during the summer season.

Work is now in progress on a plot of 18 new back lots near the Revidere entrance to the cemetery. Near the Lawrence street entrance a circular drive has opened up a number of lots since last year that are desirable for persons who visit the cemetery in the electric cars and do not desire to walk far after entering the cemetery.

Superintendent Mulino and the cemetery have been recently relieved in Boston. It's up to the Lowell dealers to get their share of the lot for those who can afford such luxuries.

A patrol of the taxis at a public meeting opposing the present scale of prices.

Supt. John W. Kernan of the park department is having the smaller parks throughout the city put in shape for the summer season. The larger part of the department's staff is now doing this work and within a few days expect to have everything spick and span. The larger parks and commons have already been put in shape and the debris which accumulated during the winter months has been removed. Although it is the more prominent playgrounds that are pointed out to visitors as show places, nevertheless, the dozen or so small parks scattered all over the city form a very important link in the department's system and need just as much attention, in proportion to their size, as the larger city authorities are proud of their record in having been the only cemetery in New England, outside of two in Boston, that was not compelled to delay burials last winter on account of heavy storms and cold weather.

The Edison Cemetery

The Edison cemetery will be in just as excellent condition for Memorial day as Supt. Thomas Duckworth and his staff of 25 men can place it. Only yesterday the long border beds just inside the fence were filled with many varieties of flowers and although the flowering shrubs have been retarded by the absence of spring, they are full budded in many instances and require only a little warm sun to break into blossoms.

As every succeeding summer rolls around the wisdom of setting out hundreds of maple trees along the cemetery avenues a comparatively short time ago is more acutely apparent. Just at this time the trees seem particularly green and fully leaved and are of a shade which verges upon a radiant silver. Perhaps they seem more attractive as passers-by unconsciously compare them against the bleak background of the past winter, but whether or no, they are unusually beautiful.

Because of the uncertainty of the weather the cemetery work which precedes Memorial day and which naturally would be spread out over a fortnight or three weeks, this year is by necessity limited to hardly more than a week. The flower beds, for instance, set out yesterday, would have been taken care of more than a week ago but for a fear of frost. Even now some concern is felt, but as the time grew shorter the chance had to be taken.

Lilacs are not in fullest bloom, although one large clump of the white variety near the main gate is fairly well blossomed. Near the gate, also, one cannot help but notice one of the city's most beautiful trees—a brown maple, tinged with gold—as symmetrical as a pear and fully in blossom, with well formed leaves. This tree turns back to a maple green in the fall. Supt. Duckworth says, and adds that this chameleon proclivity is unusual in his knowledge, at least.

Practically all of the men now at work are cutting grass. The number of perpetual care lots has increased considerably during the past year and these are more easily dressed up for Memorial day. But, the cemetery is large and with the consideration that the backward season did not allow for any lawn work until about two weeks ago, it may be seen that steady work will be necessary from now until the 31st if the cemetery is to look its prettiest on that day.

The Edison has approximately 1250 graves of soldier dead. Of this number, about 45 are veterans of the Spanish war and 15 of the late World war. There may be others buried there, too, in unmarked graves, but every effort has been made to scan the records for lost names and through the efforts of Commander Frank B. Flanders many additional ones have been found since last Memorial day.

The little flags that fly over the graves of G.A.R., Spanish and World war veterans are almost white today. A cruel winter lashed them and blotted out their colors of red and blue, leaving only an expanse of grayish white. Real stars and stripes will replace them next Monday, however, and the hundreds who will visit the cemetery will feel that everything possible has been done for its beautification.

St. Patrick's Cemetery

A shortage of labor, the backward season and the high price of flowers are three deterrents with which Supt. Dennis J. Meagher of St. Patrick's cemetery has had to contend in preparing for this year's observance of Memorial day and getting the large area which the cemetery covers in condition for the thousands who will visit it on the holiday.

Perhaps the most serious of these has been the unreasonable weather which has characterized this spring. It has been almost useless to attempt to get out new plants or get the various lots into condition owing to the cold water and almost continual rain.

However, at the present time the regular cemetery force, augmented by a number of extra men, is working at top-speed cutting grass and generally renovating the appearance of the various graves after the winter season. By the time Memorial day rolls around everything will be in spick and span.

The shortage of labor has been another obstacle which has interfered seriously with the usual spring work at the cemetery.

"It is next to impossible to get men," Supt. Meagher said yesterday. "Although we pay fairly high wages here and the work is not exactly laborious, the men whom we would ordinarily be able to count on are engaged in other occupations and we had hard work getting the men who are here now."

Questioned as to the floral display this year, always a feature of the Memorial day observance, Mr. Meagher expressed the belief that there would be few flowers bought this year owing to the high prices being charged. He said that he had received orders for flowers for various graves but he had found it almost impossible to obtain them even at steep prices.

However, even though the usual wealth of floral displays may be missing this year, there will be no lack of color at St. Patrick's, for hundreds of American flags will float over the resting places of soldier and sailor dead. Some 600 or 700 veterans of the Civil war are buried in this cemetery, several hundred Spanish-American war veterans and a score or so veterans of the world war. Every grave will be marked and a tiny Old Glory set in place over the hero's resting place.

Those who visit the cemetery on the holiday will find new macadam roads, wide and smooth, running through the area occupied by the cemetery and the dirt roads of previous years which became most disagreeable in rainy weather are a thing of the past. Last summer a large force of men put the avenues in condition and now access to the various sections of the cemetery is extremely easy.

The cemetery authorities plan extensive improvements this year, notable among which will be the laying out of a large number of small maple trees near the foreground of the cemetery. At the present time and for many years past there has been a wealth of arbors in the rear of the burying ground, but the section bordering on Gorham street has been practically naked of shade. A systematic method of tree cultivation is planned, so that a few years hence, when the annual Memorial day throng of visitors come to honor their dead, their progress through the cemetery will be marked by stately maples, sheltering them from the sun's rays.

St. Joseph's Cemetery

All is in readiness at St. Joseph's cemetery for the observance of Memorial day. The avenues through the burying grounds have been put in shape, the various lots have been mowed, the graves of veterans of the three wars have been decorated with American flags and neither time nor expense has been spared in beautifying the grounds.

There are 30 veterans buried in St. Joseph's cemetery, 15 of the Civil war, three of the Spanish war and 12 of the world war and of that number 27 are buried in private lots, while the remainder are in the soldiers' lot. The Memorial day exercises every year are carried out on the soldiers' lot and it is expected this year the same rule will prevail.

The general appearance of the cemetery reflects great credit upon the superintendent, Pierre Tremblay. The avenues of the burying grounds, which are well laid out are kept in good condition, while the various lots are well cared for.

There were no improvements of great importance in the cemetery recently or not since last fall when the handsome monument symbolizing the Calvary was erected on the highest elevation of the grounds under the auspices of St. Joseph's parish, but the Oblate fathers are now contemplating the erection of a new gate at the main entrance to the cemetery and it is possible that this will be in form of a granite arch artistically arranged and dedicated to the memory of the French-speaking heroes of the world war.

The cemetery is a little out of the way, however, being about a mile from the electric and the main thoroughfare leading to the grounds is in poor condition. It is hoped by many that some day the electric car line will be extended to the cemetery and that the town officials of Chelmsford will repair the road.

MEMORIAL DAY IN CHELMSFORD

The veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic are to decorate the soldiers' graves in Forefathers' cemetery in Chelmsford Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. For the formal exercises of Memorial day the veterans have been asked to assemble at the town hall at 2:15 a. m. and 15 minutes later the usual parade will start. Fred L. Fletcher will be the chief marshal. The Chelmsford band will be in line under the direction of Band Sergeant George F. White. The veterans of the Grand Army will be followed in line by soldiers of the world war, town officials and school children. The parade will circle Central square and then proceed to Forefathers' cemetery where the G.A.R. exercises will be held. The line will then move to the Revolutionary monument on the common and later to the town hall. At the hall there will be music by the Chelmsford band and singing by a quartet from the Central Congregational church. Rev. John G. Lovell, pastor of the Congregational church, will deliver an address. Miss Helen Osmond of Lowell will read Lincoln's Gettysburg address. After the exercises there will be an informal reunion and dinner in the lower town hall for the veterans, members of their families and guests.

In observance of the 25th anniversary of the settlement of the town in Pilgrim pageant is to be given next Saturday evening at 6:45 in Pollard's grove, Bartlett street, by a cast from the Central Congregational Society. The first scene will picture the town's first minister, Rev. John Fiske, on his way to church. The second scene will reproduce a typical week-day in the Pilgrim colony at Plymouth, and will introduce some well known characters of the Pilgrim band, including William Bradford, Elder Brewster, Priscilla Mullins and John Robinson and Mrs. Robinson. Rehearsals for the older people that are to take part in the pageant will be held tonight and tomorrow night and the school children will rehearse tomorrow afternoon at the close of the school.

NORTH CHELMSFORD DOUBLES ITS QUOTA

In the recent Salvation Army drive the town of North Chelmsford doubled its quota, for the sum of $657.13 was recently turned over to headquarters, the town's quota being $309. The campaign was in charge of Selectman James P. Dunstan and William Pickman and the subscriptions reported were as follows:

1000 ENTRIES FOR BIG FIELD CHAMPIONSHIPS

PHILADELPHIA, May 26.—With more than 1000 entries the 44th annual track and field championship games of the Intercollegiate Amateur Athletic Association of America will be staged at Franklin field here on Friday and Saturday, May 28-29. In many respects the meet will be the most important staged by the association in some years. The performances of the winning athletes take on added interest due to the proximity of the Olympic games and the college track coaches whose pupils succeed in capturing the point trophy and championship will stand out prominently as a candidate for the position of trainer of the American Olympic team which will represent this country at Antwerp. The return to normal conditions in college athletics following several years of war activities also brings competition back to the high plane which always marked these annual contests. More than 20 colleges and universities are expected to be represented by teams ranking from 1 to 40 individual athletes, including two strong contenders from the Pacific coast, California and Stanford, with excellent records in the past season. The meet is not expected to be the middle western institutions will have in the final result of the meet as the western conference games set for June 4-5 are occupying the attention of the athletes of that section to a unusual extent this season.

Close followers of college track athletics are extremely cautious in forecasting the winners due to the widely distributed strength of the material this year. Cornell, Pennsylvania, Princeton, Penn. State, Syracuse, Yale and several other prominent institutions have one or more star performers in either track or field events and the prowess of the invading athletes from the Pacific coast is a factor that must be reckoned with in apportioning the points which are awarded as follows: First place, 5; second, 4; third, 3; fourth, 2; and fifth, 1. In case of a tie for any one place the points are divided equally among the contenders claiming first place.

Since the initial meet, held in 1876, Harvard has won the greatest number of championships, the Crimson total for the past 43 years being 13 show trophies. Cornell and Yale are tied for second place with nine victories each, and Pennsylvania is a close third with eight. Cornell has won the last two games, the Ithaca university record running back to the 1914 meet. Owing to the war the title contests were not held in 1917.

Thirty-eight colleges have won points at these games since the opening contest in 1876. Yale leads with 757 7-8 points. Harvard comes second with 670; Penn third with 600; Cornell fourth with 513 and Princeton fifth with 468. Michigan has accumulated 215 2-3; Pittsburgh 30 and California 63 1-2 among the teams which have entered from territory outside of the eastern section of the country.

HAYDEN LEADS

TOURNEY BOWLERS

Hayden leads in the Crescent tournament this week, with a three-string total of 350, negotiated in singles of 117 1-2, 111 1-2 and 122 1-2.

O'Brien is second, with 332.

In the two-men competition, Hayden and McDermott are ahead, with 644 and 641, respectively. O'Brien and Estey with 610 and 608, and Horner with 615 are other prominent marksmen.

Three-string rolling Andy McQuade, Glenora and McDermott high men, with 263, Schombom, Sweeney and Flanders with 216 are second.

In five men rolling the figures are: O'Brien, Schombom, Flanders, Flynn and Estey, 1573; Lindsey, Whitelock, Sweeney, Schombom and Flanders, 1557.

LOWELL HIGH PLAYS AT HOME SATURDAY

The Lowell high school baseball team resumes play today at home. The game is scheduled for 2:30 p. m. at the park. The game was postponed earlier in the season due to rain, but arrangements were made today whereby the Saturday game has been definitely settled.

AMATEUR BASEBALL

The Cedar Stars have re-arranged their lineup and from now on will take the name of the Young Athletics. They would like to have the game with the Braves postponed until Saturday afternoon, May 29.

The Lincoln defeated the Barabats yesterday, 10 to 7. Plans for a game between the battery work for the winners.

The Gillespie Mfg. Co. baseball team will play the All-Stars tomorrow at 5:30 p. m. on the Princeton oval. Williams and Bird will work for Gillespie, opposed by Varney and Murphy. The Gillespie team will not be able to fill a paying date on Memorial day.

DOWNES WINS FROM DE FOE ON FOUL

A telegram was received from Syracuse, N. Y., today announcing that Johnny Downes of South Boston won from Billy De Foe in the fifth round last night on a foul.

Negotiations are underway to stage a bout here between Philney Boyle of Lowell and Frankie Britt of New Bedford for the lightweight championship of New England. The Crescent A. A. director and promoter have had the matter under consideration for some time and if propositions submitted prove acceptable to all concerned the title event may be pulled off at an open air show a week from Saturday. The pair met in Lowell several months ago and a wild and windy number resulted. It was called a draw, but Boyle had the better of the going. Britt retained his title as a result. Ever since that time Boyle at his manager Jack Leahy have been clamoring for another match and in anticipation of securing the chance Boyle has continued going light training. Since that bout Boyle fought Kloby for the welterweight title but, despite the outcome of that bout, he still holds the lightweight crown. Boyle deserves another crack at it and hence such a match looks like one of the most logical in New England today.

STAR GLOVE MEN

Six Top-Notchers to Appear in Lawrence Bouts

LAWRENCE, May 26.—Boxing fans of the east will witness the greatest galaxy of stars ever assembled on one card when they attend the all-star show which the Atlas A. A. will stage Saturday afternoon at Cuddy Brothers' arena. Johnny Dundee, Jack Lawlor, Al Coogan, Freddy Jacobs, Benny Valger and Joe Welling are the top-notchers who will appear in 12-round bouts. A six-round bout between Harry and Kid Francis, both of this city, will open the show.

Johnny Dundee will meet Jack Lawlor of Omaha. The latter is the rings' latest sensation. In a previous meeting with Dundee he was given a decision and he has also been awarded the decision over Benny Valger and Willie Jackson.

TERRY MARTIN BEATS FRIEDMAN

BOSTON, May 26.—Terry Martin of Providence is still the bantamweight champion of New England. The Friedman of New York tried to get it away from him in Mechanics building last night, but after the pair had battled for 12 rounds, referee Phil Donahue declared Martin the winner.

The battle was close, but Martin was the more aggressive. At 2 p. m. both weighed under 120 pounds and appeared in good shape. At times during the battle, however, it looked as if making that weight had taken some of the steam out of Martin.

Martin kept hazing Friedman on the kidneys with the right and hooking left to face and jaw. Friedman countered well. In a number of the rounds they engaged in some hot exchanges.

Investigate Carranza Death

Continued
20, following a conference with General Francisco de P. Mariel, to whom he surrendered last March. Herrero pledged allegiance anew and promised to defend Carranza.

"When Carranza reached Tlaxcala—tango, he was led by Herrero to the hut where he was to sleep. General Murgula and other members of the party were taken to different houses in the village. Before retiring, Carranza ordered his aides to assist in placing sentinels, all of whom were Herrero's men.

"Herrero later told Carranza that a messenger had informed him, his brother was injured, whereupon Herrero left the village, promising to return. At 3 o'clock on the morning of May 31, three of Herrero's men entered the president's hut, stating they had been ordered to report to him what the situation was, adding that nothing new had occurred. Carranza listened to the report and then told the men to leave.

(The report says this move was probably for the purpose of ascertaining if all in the hut were in bed and whether Carranza had changed his position.) "Half an hour later the hut was attacked from all sides. President Carranza was heard to cry: 'I can't get up, my leg is broken.' He then begged for a carbine so that he could defend himself, but was answered by a voice which ended his life instantly.

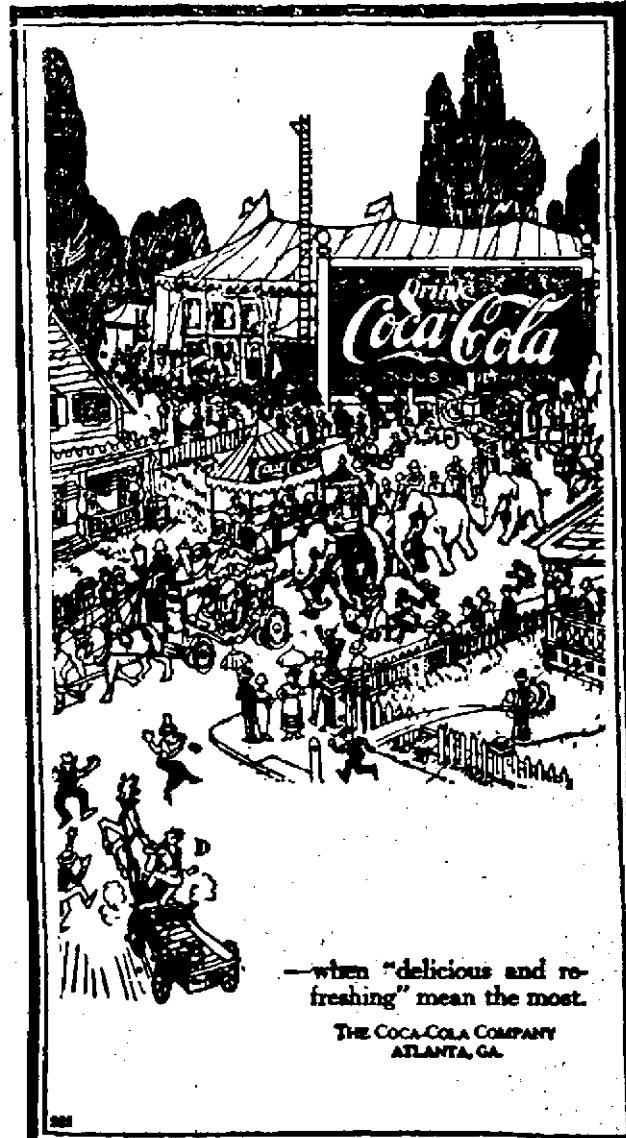

"The other occupants of the hut fled, as did those in the other shelters, and there was great confusion in the village. Herrero, at the head of his men, captured 'many' of the party, who were taken 12 miles away. Four or five of these prisoners were forced to sign a statement that Carranza had committed suicide.

These facts are alleged "to prove a conspiracy was prepared in advance by Herrero, which inspired confidence in him by Carranza and ended in the president's betrayal."

The report recommends that a formal investigation be ordered to clear up the other points of the incident, which relate to the part taken by Herrero's men and members of the president's party.

Held in Prison

MEXICO CITY, May 26 (By Associated Press).—Military officers and civilians who were taken captive following the death of President Carranza will be held in the prison here until Adolfo de la Huerta, the provisional president, takes office. Disposition of the men is expected to be decided by him.

REVOLUTIONISTS MARCHING INTO MEXICO CITY!

ONLY PHOTO OF VILLA, MYSTERY MAN OF NEW REGIME, SINCE COLUMBUS RAID

Francisco Villa is the "mystery man" of the Obregon Mexican revolution. One report says Villa is on his way to Mexico City, alone, to become head of the Mexican constabulary. Another report has it that the government, while anxious to have Villa's support as a private citizen does not want him as an official and that Villa's representatives are to meet Obregon officers at Chihuahua City for a conference to "have it out." The picture above, just received from Mexico, is the only picture made of Villa since the Columbus raid. The first photograph of the revolutionists entering Mexico City is on the right. The photograph shows the crowds in Avenida Cinco de Mayo, looking toward the cathedral.

rests the world's chief hope of peace." At the same session, following a heated debate, the association refused to pass a resolution offered by Rev. Henry W. Pinkham, calling for the immediate pardon of Eugene V. Debs and other political offenders, but after once rejecting it, reconsidered and passed a substitute resolution calling for the release of "those suffering punishment under wartime legislation, as a result of the expression of their religious convictions."

The debate on the resolutions was long and spirited. The more radical thinkers, led by Mr. Pinkham and Rev. Richard W. Boynton of Buffalo, N. Y., made strenuous efforts to pass the resolutions they favored, but were obviously in the minority. During the debate, hisses, groans and interruptions came frequently, and there were frequent sharp clashes of opinion.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE TO WORLD WAR VETERANS

NEW YORK, May 26.—A Memorial day message from President Wilson to American veterans of the world war, received here yesterday by the American Legion Weekly, read:

"We approach the annual celebration of Memorial day with our hearts filled with tenderness and grateful memories of those who have given their lives for America. The day has by custom been consecrated to the country's heroic dead. This is observed by those who were comrades in arms and who shared with the well remembered dead, the experiences, the hardships, the perils and the glory of war; this is celebrated by the people of the country generally who take it as an annual occasion to renew their loyalty to the country and to draw fresh inspiration for the tasks of peace from the memory of the sacrifices which were made so freely in times of war. The day is therefore filled with

McMANMON, Florist 14 PRESIDENT STREET

RACE OF THE CANDIDATES AND INCIDENTS OF THE CAMPAIGN

Ex-Senator Weeks May Take Place of Murray Crane---McAdoo and Cox Leaders on Democratic Side---Effort to Displace Phelan---Gen. Wood's Battle

Former Chairman of the Democratic National Committee William F. McAdoo is out with a statement advocating the nomination of Gov. James M. Cox of Ohio, by the democrats at San Francisco. Mr. McAdoo had a large share in the selection of Mr. Wilson as the party's standard bearer in 1912 and he naturally thinks that he knows good presidential timber when he sees it. He claims that Ohio is to be one of the pivotal states in the coming election, and that Mr. Cox is a man who can carry it. The former national chairman objects to the nomination of Mr. McAdoo, because he believes that the republicans would bring forward the crown prince issue, and assert that an attempt was being made to found a dynasty by keeping the presidential office within the Wilson family circle. He thinks the same objection would in a way apply to the candidacy of Mr. Palmer. It is asserted that Governor Cox would positively decline a vice-presidential election.

Mr. Crane's Retirement

Winthrop Murray Crane's announcement that he will not be a candidate for re-election as a member of the republican national committee from Massachusetts is said to have come as a surprise to his associates in party management. It had been expected that he would serve through at least one more campaign. He was first elected to the position in 1904, and has held office continuously since. Mr. Crane has been a power of more than ordinary importance in republican affairs, and his counsel and methods will be sorely missed by his associates. There can be no doubt of that. It was to Mr. Crane that the late Colonel Roosevelt first applied the term of "pussyfoot." When the historian of the future sets down an impartial record of Mr. Crane's career, well up toward the front of his achievements will be the fact that he was the hand that guided the steam roller that prepared the way for the nomination of Mr. Taft in 1912.

Weeks as Successor

Since Hon. John W. Weeks retired from the senate a year ago he has given practically all of his time to the work of a member of a sub-committee on finance of the national republican committee. As such it has been his task to raise the funds that are to finance the coming campaign. In this work it is currently believed he has been remarkably successful. In seeking a successor for Mr. Crane, it is likely that the members of the Massachusetts delegation will select Mr. Weeks. It has been decided by the delegation leaders that Speaker Frederick H. Gillett, of Springfield, is to have the position of delegation chairman, and that Louis A. Coolidge will be a member of the platform committee.

Stevens a Candidate

The resignation of Raymond B. Stevens from the position of vice chairman of the shipping board to become a candidate for the democratic senatorial nomination in New Hampshire projects a new personality into a situation that is filled with interest. Mr. Stevens has previously been a candidate of his party for senator. While holding a seat in the lower house of congress he was nominated by his party for the senate six years ago and made a brilliant fight for election against heavy odds. At that time the late Jacob H. Gallinger was alive and wished to be returned to the senate, and the forces that Mr. Gallinger was able to align in opposition to Mr. Stevens were too strong to be overcome. Mr. Stevens goes to San Francisco pledged to vote for Mr. Hoover if he is a candidate for the democratic nomination. The names of John B. Jameson of Concord, and John C. Hutchins, of Stratford, have also been mentioned in connection with the senatorial nomination in the Granite State.

Not Too Candid

The Massachusetts managers of General Leonard Wood's campaign express in public the greatest confidence that they will have the vote of the whole state delegation recorded in favor of their candidate when the roll is called for the first time at Chicago. Behind the scenes the managers do not seem quite so confident of the outcome they predict. In the eighth district they have been sending out circular letters to voters of the party urging them to bring pressure to bear upon the district delegates to force them into line with the Wood boomers. With the letters they have enclosed blank post cards with the suggestion to each voter that he get busy and write to each of the delegates telling him that he wishes him to support the general.

Cheering News

The cheering news comes from Beacon Hill in Boston that there is a good chance that the legislators there in session will have completed their labors by the end of the present week, and that adjournment will take place in ample time for any of the lawmakers who intend to be present at the Chicago convention to pack their trunks in unhurried fashion. If the foregoing program is carried out it will probably mean that a number of important bills will fail to get serious consideration, and will be sat upon altogether or sent to the next general court. Among these may be the maternity benefits bill. In his inaugural address Governor Coolidge said the policy of Massachusetts in aiding mothers to care for their children might "well be extended in scope to the giving of aid, nursing and medical attendance to needy, expectant mothers." There is said to be a split in the committee that has the matter under consideration over which of two bills it has before it to report, and members of the dominant party, who are opposed to the enactment of the measure because of the expense it is believed it would entail, are hoping that the report will be so delayed that consideration of the matter at the present session will be deemed inadvisable.

Boynston's Successor

It has been known for some time that Federal District Attorney Boynston of Boston intended to resign in the near future, and that verbal notice to that effect had been communicated to his superiors in Washington. One of the foremost candidates mentioned for the place is Daniel J. Gallagher, assistant district attorney for Suffolk county. A number of other well equipped men are also said to be in the running. Senator Walsh, it is understood would strongly favor Mr. Gallagher but it is alleged that Lodge is opposed to his appointment.

Women in the Field

A branch of the National League of Women Voters is expected to come into existence in Massachusetts the latter part of the present week. It is through this organization that a number of future voters hope to advance measures in which they are interested and which they intend to push to the front when they become full-fledged citizens. The platform of the league calls for additional child welfare legislation, measures to decrease illiteracy, federal supervision of marketing and distribution of food, establishment of a woman's bureau in the department of labor at Washington, and a demand for independent citizenship for married women. With the formation of the new league, the Massachusetts Woman's Suffrage association, after more than 50 years of activity, will pass out of existence.

McAdoo Still Leads

In the straw vote being taken by the Literary Digest, over 900,000 votes have been cast for republican candidates for nomination for president and over 300,000 for democratic aspirants for the nomination to be made at San Francisco. Wood still leads with the republicans, as he has from the beginning, with Johnson second, and Hoover third on the list. McAdoo continues to be the favorite with the democrats. President Wilson is in second place and has increased the distance between himself and Governor Edward I. Edwards who is running third in the race. The republican votes from Massachusetts alone place Wood in the lead, with Hoover following and Governor Coolidge in the fourth place.

Mr. Phelan's Seat

The republicans of the seventh congressional district are said to be planning an active campaign to capture the seat in congress now held by Michael P. Phelan of Lynn. The district is made up of two large cities that are democratic strongholds—Lawrence and Lynn—with a number of small towns that are nominally republican sandwiched in between. There are said to be four republicans in the field as contestants for the party's nomination for congress from the district, and each one of them is said to believe that he is the only logical and sure to win candidate. What complicates the situation is that the nomination is said to have been promised to Lawrence this year, and the butting-in of men from the southern end of the district is causing annoyance all around. Mr. Phelan has represented the district ever since it was established in 1912, and is said not to be worrying very much about his prospects of another re-election.

PREDICTS LOWER SHOE PRICES

WASHINGTON, May 25.—Lower shoe prices late next winter and spring

were predicted yesterday by Edward A. Brand, secretary of the Tanners' council of the United States, testifying before a senate committee of inquiry.

Tanners and manufacturers believe prices will fall by that time, Mr. Brand said, because of the recent decline in leather prices. This decline could not sooner be reflected in shoe costs, he said, because shoes are made up far in advance of the season in which they are offered on the market. Mr. Brand said he did not believe that the "big five" packers controlled hide and leather prices. Altogether the packer product, he said, is only about 60 per cent. of the total.

A person 32 years and 9 months old has only lived a billion seconds.

Dandruff Heads Become Hairless

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't. It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it. You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any druggists. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.—Adv.

REPORT MEASLES CASES WILL NOT DELIVER NEW TO HEALTH BOARD

Agent Francis J. O'Hare, of the board of health, asks that parents of any child who is suffering from measles report such cases to the board of health as soon as noted so that proper precautions may be taken against the spread of the disease.

Within the past few weeks there has been a great deal of measles in the city and cases are being reported by doctors at a much more rapid rate than the health authorities like to see. Since last Saturday 12 cases have been reported at the health office and six of these came in yesterday.

Owing to the fact that the graduation season is approaching, many parents do not wish to report cases of measles in their family owing to the fear that it may prevent their children taking part in such exercises.

However, Agent O'Hare says that parents should not try to "cover up" in this way, because it may result in a serious epidemic. As soon as a case of measles is noted, a doctor should be called and then there will be no doubt about the disease being reported to the board of health. If a doctor is not called, the law puts the responsibility upon the parent or guardian to see that the case is reported.

If a case of measles is allowed to run on without proper medical care, it is liable to develop into pneumonia or bronchitis. Hence, the desire of the board of health to keep the number of cases down to a minimum so that danger of contagion may be restricted.

DRAW FOR VACATION

The Lowell letter carriers drew numbers from a hat at 1.15 this afternoon for the vacation periods which are to start on July 1st. On their return from their lunch the carriers assembled in the sorting room and pulled cards which bore numbers. The men will have the choice of periods according to the numbers which they drew.

STREET MACHINES

The city of Lowell will be forced to do without two street sweeping machines ordered by Commissioner Dennis A. Murphy of the street department several months ago owing to the refusal of the Boston & Maine railroad to forward the machines to this city. Commissioner Murphy was notified today by F. W. Brown, local agent of the railroad.

The machines are now in readiness for shipment at the plant of the Elgin Street Sweeper Co. in Elgin, Ill. Commissioner Murphy was notified a short time ago by the company that he must forward to Illinois a permit from the railroad allowing the shipment to be made.

Mr. Murphy brought the matter to the attention of the local agent, Mr. Brown, and the latter, in turn, took it up with S. E. Miller, superintendent of transportation of the road.

Mr. Miller told Mr. Brown that conditions at present do not warrant allowing permits on the shipment of the two machines, due presumably to the freight congestion. Accordingly, the street sweepers that should have been at work on Lowell's streets a month ago are now lying idle in the factory in Illinois, awaiting the pleasure of the railroad authorities as to the time that they are to make the trip east.

BAD DAY FOR DOGS

An automobile struck a dog on West Third street yesterday afternoon. Its right foreleg was broken and after examination by Dr. Eaton he advised Agent Gilmore of the Humane society to shoot the animal.

At 6 o'clock last night a Boston bulldog was struck by a machine which bore Florida license plates. The dog sustained a deep gash on its back and Dr. Eaton was compelled to take three stitches to close the wound.

The Saturday half-holiday was the rule in England in the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries.

LOWELL MASONS WILL GO TO PROVIDENCE

Three hundred members of Pilgrim commandery, Knights Templars, of this city, will leave tomorrow morning for Providence, R. I., for the annual convocation of the order on Thursday and Friday of this week.

A street parade will precede the departure of the local members of the order. The knights will assemble at their hall in Merrimack street at 7.15 and at 7.30 will parade up Merrimack street to Monument square and then back down Merrimack to Central, to Middlesex street and the Boston & Maine station. A special train will leave Lowell at 7.50.

Mayor Perry D. Thompson will be among those attending the convocation. The return trip will be made Friday evening.

FUNERALS

BETHEXCOURT—The funeral of Miss Mary BetheXCourt took place this morning from her home, 36 Hudson street, at 9 o'clock and was largely attended by many sorrowing relatives and friends. At St. Anthony's church a funeral high mass of requiem was celebrated at 9 o'clock by Rev. John S. Perry. The choir sang the Gregorian mass, the solos being sustained by Charles Panton and Mrs. Rose Panton. Mary Santos and Prof. Bend Allen presided at the organ. There were many beautiful floral tributes and spiritual bouquets. The bearers were Manuel Martin, Manuel Portv, John Ayba, Joseph Correa, George Souza and Manuel Neves. Burial took place in the family lot in St. Patrick's cemetery, where Rev. John S. Perry read the committal prayers at the grave. Undertaker William A. Mack had charge of funeral arrangements.

FUNERAL NOTICES

WHITMORE—Died in Worcester, May 21. Mrs. Mary F. Whitmore, aged 85 years, 1 month and 5 days. A funeral mass will be celebrated at Notre Dame de Lourdes church at 1.30 o'clock. The Rev. John S. Perry, pastor, will officiate. Burial in St. Patrick's cemetery will be private. H. C. Brown, undertaker in charge.

KAZANJIAN—The body of Mr. Garabed Kazanjian, who died Monday in Worcester, will be brought to his late home, 57 Wamesit street, Thursday morning at 10 o'clock. The funeral will take place Sunday morning from his home. Services will be held at St. Vartan's church, burial will be in St. Vartan's cemetery, under the direction of Charles H. Molloy's Sons.

GOSSSELIN—The funeral of Fernando Gosselin will take place Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock from the home of the parents, 634 Lakeview avenue. Burial will be in St. Joseph's cemetery under the direction of Undertaker Napoleon Blodau.

DEATHS

GOSSSELIN—Fernando, aged 3 years, infant son of Omer and Alma Gosselin, died last night at the home of his parents, 634 Lakeview avenue.

CARD OF THANKS

We, the undersigned, take this means of expressing our sincere thanks to friends, neighbors and relatives for their many kindly acts during the bereavement of our beloved wife and mother. We are grateful also to those who sent floral and spiritual offerings. The many kindnesses will ever be remembered by and, also her mother, told him that she had been previously married and had sued for divorce in New Jersey which had been granted.

The witness testified that he had lived with his alleged wife in New Jersey, New York and in Lowell from April 1, 1913, to September 23, 1919. As the result of reading letters forwarded to his wife, the petitioner said he discovered evidence that a divorce had not been granted to the defendant at the time of his marriage and that he ceased to live with her.

The question was raised by the court as to the marriage having been made valid under Massachusetts laws by the relations of husband and wife having been continued in good faith by one of the parties after the impediment that existed had been removed by the granting of a divorce in New Jersey. The court took the case under advisement. The petition was not contested.

Other cases considered by the court were disposed of as follows:

Eva D. Morrison vs. George V. Morrison, cruel and abusive treatment, not contested. Decree nisi granted.

Christina Files vs. George H. Files, cruel and abusive treatment, uncontested, decree nisi granted.

Rolsvert vs. Rolsvert, desertion, uncontested, continued for the production of further evidence.

Bond Drive Launched

Ogonowski, pastor of the Holy Trinity church and Rev. Josef Soltyslak, rector of St. Kazimierz church, will be the principal speakers.

Yesterday $3000 worth of bonds were sold, but it is expected that upwards of $50,000 will be secured after tomorrow night's meeting.

The local committee in charge of selling the bonds in Lowell is headed by Frank Kus as chairman. Its other officers are: Vice chairman, Anthony Papowicz; financial secretary, Jacob Banak; recording secretary, Frank Urbanek. Rev. Fr. Ogonowski and Rev. Fr. Soltyslak also are members of the committee.

The Polish government bond issue is in the nature of a first mortgage, inasmuch as Poland has practically no other indebtedness. The bonds have a 20 year maturity, or until April, 1940. They are issued in denominations of $50, $100 and $500 and bear 6 per cent. interest, payable semi-annually.

Jacob Targ as financial secretary of the Lowell committee is endeavoring to make arrangements whereby purchasers of bonds may pay for them through local banks on an installment plan. This already is being taken up with the headquarters of the national campaign committee, 150 Munsey building, Washington, D. C.

The bonds are offered for purchase on a strictly cash basis, United States currency only being taken in exchange. The campaign has been given a time limit until June 15.

Counterfeiter Caught

tant in present day police history in the city.

It was wholly due to quick, clear thinking by Lynch and Hill that the arrest was effected. Warned at about 8 p. m. by Lieut. Petrie and Inspector Walsh to be on the lookout for a Mitchell roadster with white wheels and carrying a New York license plate, the men caught a glimpse of such a car as it passed through Gorham street at its intersection with Appleton. Without a false move, they jumped to a machine standing at the garage and roared away in pursuit. In Merrimack street they stopped to pick up Officer Lapan and with the fleeing car in sight, headed it off at Merrimack and Pawtucket streets. When taken to the police station

Hermans had in his possession $3450 in counterfeit $50 bills; $3320 in counterfeit $20 bills and $1290 in good currency, making a total "fortune" of $12,870. He freely admitted his identity when questioned, also the story of his counterfeiting exploits that caused federal officers to trail him. He said he got the bills from New York people in $20 and $50 denominations, and as far as was possible he carried on most of his transactions in garages, where the cash draw was usually full, he said. He also carried two loaded .35-calibre revolvers.

Word that Hermans was approaching this city was flashed to Supt. Welch at about 4 p. m. by federal officers in Boston. His automobile was described and the local chief immediately assigned the case to Lieut. Petrie and Inspector Walsh. All garages were notified first to be on the lookout for the machine and the officers had not been gone from the Postoffice garage more than five minutes before Lynch and Hill went into action on a hot trail.

Hermans claims to be a Belgian by birth and that his parents now live in Brussels. He further claims that he has worked in co-operation with Paul Durand of New York, who now is doing a five-year stretch for counterfeiting and that the bills he used were made by the latter.

He admitted to the local police that he deserted from the Belgian army for conscientious reasons in 1914 after serving nine months against the German invaders. He crossed to England, he said and shipped to Canada as a sailor in 1915. Since then he worked as a designer and draftsman in Detroit and New York.

He was taken to Boston today to be turned over to the federal officers.

LEVI P. MORTON LEFT $10,000,000

Will of Former Vice President Filed in Federal District Court Today

Charles H. Allen, of Lowell, Morton Minot and Bronson Winthrop Executors

WASHINGTON, May 26.—An estate estimated at $10,000,000 is disposed of in the will of Levi P. Morton, former vice president of the United States, which was filed in the federal district court here today for probate. The document was executed June 23, 1910, and was modified by codicils of March 30, 1911; June 4, 1911, and June 24, 1911. Mr. Morton died recently at New York at the age of 95 years.

Charles H. Allen, of Lowell, Mass.; Morton Minot of Brockport, N. Y., and Bronson Winthrop of New York city, are named as executors and they with the American Security and Trust Co. of this city will act as trustees of the estate.

Mrs. Martha Morton Harpence of Philadelphia, a sister of the testator, is given a life annuity of $2000 and the sum of $1200 annually is to be paid to Mrs. Caroline Lay, a sister-in-law of Mr. Morton. A life annuity of $120 is to be paid to Mr. Morton's butler and cash bequests to other servants. Mr. Morton's personal effects and furniture are to be distributed among his children.

Morton Corcoran Eustis, a grandson is given the silver, writing set and cardinals presented to Mr. Morton by resolution of the senate on the expiration of his term as vice president and to his "eldest grandson" is left the testimonial set of silver presented by the banking institutions of New York in 1893.

The remaining estate is bequeathed to the trustees, one share to be held in trust for each of the surviving daughters, Mrs. William C. Eustis, Mrs. Helen Morton and Miss Mary Morton, and one share to be distributed among children of Mrs. Winthrop Rutherford, a deceased daughter. On the death of each daughter, her share will go to her heirs or if she dies without issue, then to the other daughters.

REAL ESTATE AUCTION SALE

SATURDAY, MAY 29, 1920, AT 4 O'CLOCK P. M., AT NO. 31 COURT STREET, OFF MANCHESTER STREET, THREE MINUTES' WALK FROM GORHAM STREET.

I shall sell at public auction to the person who will bid the highest, a 2½ story, 2-tenement house of five rooms each, and 5216 square feet of land, more or less, with a frontage of 52 feet on Court street.

The house has city water, gas and good sewerage; is situated where tenements rent well, is in a good neighborhood, and is but a five minutes' walk from the Gorham street electric car line. While the buildings may need some repairs, this property ought to appeal to any person wanting a moderate priced place where they could rent one tenement and live in the other. In this way, in a very short time, the place would pay for itself.

Terms of Sale: $200 must be paid as a deposit as soon as the property is sold. Other terms at sale. Per order, J. D. DOYLE.

WASHINGTON PARK FOR PUBLIC PLAYGROUND

Entirely through the interest and energetic work of Rev. J. B. A. Barrette, O.M.I., assistant pastor of Notre Dame de Lourdes' church in Branch street, arrangements have been made whereby the city may acquire the Washington park property for a public playground on a lease of three years instead of two, as previously agreed to by the owners.

This extension of one year was secured by Fr. Barrette from the real estate office of Thomas H. Elliott after yesterday's municipal council meeting at which the former spoke at length upon the urgent needs of the district from the standpoint of recreational expansion.

Under the previous arrangement the city would be allowed to lease the park for two years at a rental of 5 per cent of the assessed valuation of $20,000, with the proviso that outright purchase be made at the expiration of the lease, or prior thereto. Now, the same rental rate holds true, but with an additional year for the operation of the lease.

Whether or not this additional year of grace will have any effect upon the council in its deliberations upon the matter is not known. When the state highway engineers definitely plot the river line near the First street oval and that question is ready for settlement, then, Mayor Thompson said today, final action will be taken by the council on both propositions.

IN POLICE COURT

James Keith Sentenced for Larceny—Other Cases

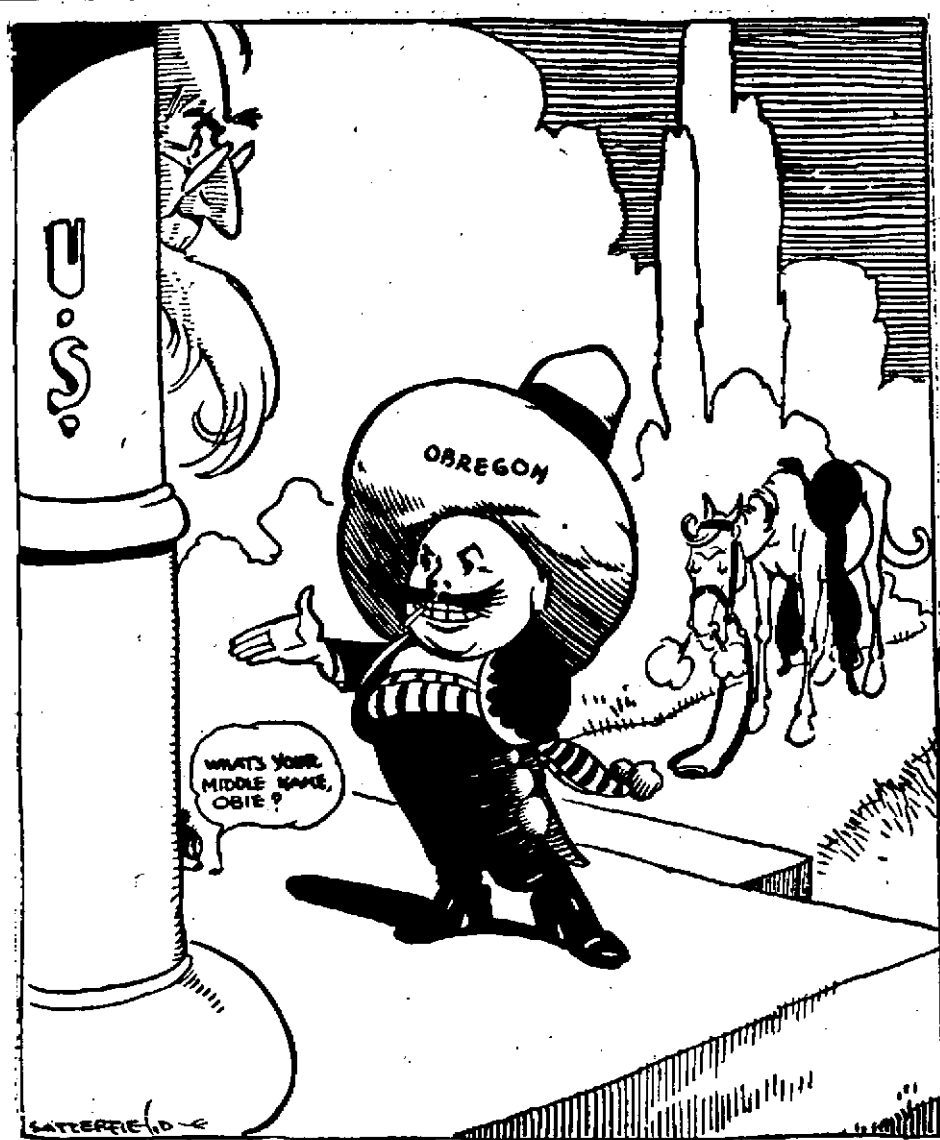

James J. Keith, charged with drunkenness and the larceny of women's clothing from a lodging house in Hurd street, was the principal offender in police court this morning. He was found guilty and sentenced to one month in the house of correction.

Keith was discovered late last night on Greene street by two officers who noticed that he was weighed down with a dress suit case and bundle and a couple of brushes which were sticking out of his pocket. When questioned the defendant replied that he was moving his possessions from one lodging house to another and that the woman's clothes which he had in the bundle belonged to his daughter. The officers arrested him on suspicion. In court this morning Keith admitted that the stories about having a wife and daughter were false and that he had made a mistake in packing up by taking the clothes of a young woman from her bureau. Investigation by the officers disclosed the fact that he had been ordered out of the lodging house last night. The value of the clothes was placed at about $25.

John G. Sophos answered to two complaints, one charging him with operating his truck on Central street in such a manner as to endanger the lives and safety of the public and the other with driving a truck with wrong number plates. On the first count he was found guilty and ordered to pay the minimum fine of $20, and on the second he was found not guilty.

He entered an appeal and was ordered to recognize in the sum of $200 for his appearance before the superior court. Sophos, it is claimed, approached Charles street at a fast rate and on turning into that street cut in front of another machine, narrowly escaping a collision and striking some children who were playing in the street.

The charge of assault and battery against Jacob Kasarian was continued for one week and a like charge against Francis X. Garneau was put over to

CAMEL STEAK? SURE! FRENCH EAT IT!

PARIS—How does camel steak sound? French folk—some of them—are eating it. Here's why. The cost of food mounted so high after America stopped exporting grain, owing to the high exchange, that the zoo was unable to stand the high cost of feeding this camel. [Twas sold to a butcher who sliced it up for customers who kicked about the high cost of beef.

Friday, Charles A. Byard was ordered under $200 for his appearance next Wednesday to answer to the complaint of non-support of his wife.

Of the six drunks arrested since yesterday the probation officer released five first offenders this morning.

CEMENT SECURED AND WORK GOES ON

Paving work in Dutton and Fletcher streets, which was interrupted owing to the lack of cement, was resumed this morning when Commissioner Dennis A. Murphy succeeded in getting 200 bags from D. T. Sullivan. This will carry on the work for eight or nine days and by that time Edward Cawley, to whom the cement contract was awarded this year, hopes to have another supply in the city.

Peter Nelkin, Francis Burns, Adolph Guyette, Carl Maker and Kadel Chakel, the five men who were overcome by chlorine gas fumes while at their work at the Appleton mill dye house late yesterday afternoon, are reported as resting comfortably at the Lowell Corporation hospital. The hospital authorities stated this afternoon that the men were out of danger.

At a meeting of the Gagnon Co. Employees Benefit association held in the store of the company last evening George Lancelot was elected president to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Henry Sullivan, who is soon to sail for England, where he will attempt to swim the English channel. The retiring president was extended a vote of thanks. In the course of the meeting the committee in charge of the recent dancing party reported the affair had been a success. It was voted to hold the first annual outing at Revere beach July 15.

ACTOR ARRESTED IN BANK THEFT

Tymm Held at Chicago in Connection With Theft of
$21,000 From Boston Bank

Jesseman, Believed to Have
Been the Actual Thief,
Ended Life Last Week

CHICAGO, May 26.—Frank Tymm, said to be an actor, was held at the detective bureau today in connection with the theft of $21,000 from the Old Colony Trust Co. in Boston, last January. According to detectives, the actual thief was Oscar Buzzell Jesseman, a messenger employed by the Trust company who died on a train near Rawlins, Wyo., last week and was buried there under the name of Frank Gordon.

Tymm told the police, they said, he met Jesseman in Boston after the robbery and they went to New York, joining two vaudeville performers on a trip through Canada to Portland, Ore. Tymm was arrested last night as he left the theatre at Hammond, Ind., where the two actors are playing this week.

RAISE $500,000 TO SHIP BY TRUCK

NEW YORK, May 26.—A fund of $500,000 was pledged yesterday by more than 2000 business men at a luncheon of the Merchants' association to finance an independent trucking corporation in an effort to relieve the slump of freight in New York, resulting from strikes of labor organizations.

Resolutions were adopted urging federal, state and municipal officials to take action that will bring "this intolerable situation to an end," and also endorsing the citizens' transportation committee, which will try to break the congestion.

NOW IS THE TIME TO CULTIVATE

We must all cultivate frequently. A fine proof of the need of cultivation, says the Middlesex county bureau of agriculture and home economics was given us last week during the five days of warm sunshiny weather without the usual frequent showers. The soil dried up, likewise many of our little seedlings whose rootlets were near the surface. Cultivation, as suggested previously tends to form a blanket cushion which prevents the evaporation of soil moisture induces the root system of the plants to grow deeper and ripe the weeds when they are just getting started. Let's see to it that we cultivate at least twice a week. The garden rake will be found a satisfactory implement for this work.

Mill Cat Worms
The time has arrived when cutworms are making their appearance. Cutworms attacking nearly all vegetable crops at this time of year, especially those that have been transplanted. The common cutworm is a smooth, soft-bodied, cylindrical caterpillar. Cutworms vary in color from a pale gray to dark, dirty gray, and are sometimes spotted or striped. They live over winter in the soil, generally in the sod adjacent to the garden. At this time of the year they become active again, emerge from their winter quarters, and seek soft, succulent growth for their food in order that they may complete their growth. Cutworms do most of their feeding at night; they hide in the soil during the daytime.

There are two common methods of control. One method is to wrap a band of newspaper about the stems of newly transplanted plants. The newspaper band is placed around the stems in such a way that a portion of it will be beneath the surface of the ground when the plant is set. By this method the cutworm is kept away from the stem of the plant. The newspaper band rots within a few weeks and becomes ineffective, and does not retard growth. By this time, however, the ravages of the cutworms will be over. Another successful practice especially valuable on larger plantings and crops like peas, beans and beets, is to kill the worms by means of poisoned bait. Poisoned bait is made by mixing together 1 quart of bran or sorghum flour, 1 ounce of white arsenic or paris green, 3 pints of water, and 1 pint of molasses. Only a little of this poisoned bait is required. It should be sprinkled around the young plants in the evening.

All Peas Seed In
All garden pea seed should be planted by the present time. Peas are essentially a cool season crop. They at least require planting early in the season in order to be most productive. The pea plant, or aphid, are much more severe upon late planted peas. Late planted peas rarely yield as heavily as those planted early.

It is now safe to plant summer squash, beans of all varieties, sweet corn, cucumbers, musk melons, and other seeds of so-called warm weather crops. The first planting of all of these warm season crops should be put in this week.

Really Removes Roots of Superfluous Hair (Phelacine, the New Wonder-Worker)

Without doubt the greatest thing yet discovered for hair-disfigured womanhood is the wonderful phelacine method. It has none of the disadvantages of electrolysis or depilatories and, best of all, it removes the hairs entire roots and all! It does this instantly, leaving the skin so smooth and soft that no one can tell the user was ever the possessor of a mole or other hairy growth. Phelacine is non-odorous, non-irritating, and so harmless a child could use it without any ill-effect. A stick of this remarkable substance, accompanied by simple instructions, can be obtained at any drugstore. What woman would not be delighted after seeing those ugly hairs come out—including the roots—with her own eyes?—Adv.

HOOVER'S WARNING

Decrease in Production May Result in Country Becoming Dependent on Europe

WASHINGTON, May 25.—Decrease in agricultural production may result in this country becoming dependent on overseas food supplies, Herbert Hoover today declared in a letter to Representative Riddick, republican, Montana, setting forth the former food administrator's views as "to practical measures to insure better returns to the farmer for his labor and investment."

Deploing the absence of a constructive policy of agricultural readjustment, Mr. Hoover suggested the creation of a commission, composed of highly trained farmers and skilled economists and financial experts to administer the causes and remedies of the situation. Asserting that present high prices of commodities "sooner or later" will decrease, Mr. Hoover said: "This deflation must not begin on the farmer. Shortage in production outside the United States; wild extravagance and misuse of extra credits for speculation

Hood's Sarsaparilla Makes Food Taste Good

Nearly 50 years' phenomenal sales tell the story of the remarkable merit and success of Hood's Sarsaparilla. It is just the medicine you need this season.

and profiteering and non-essential production are contributing factors in the present inflated prices, he wrote. When the collapse occurs he predicted intermediate dealers will be able to pass the greatest portion to the back of the farmer, no matter how carefully handled.

"War deterioration in our transportation facilities has created periodic strictures in the free flow of food from the farm to the consumer," the letter stated. "This compelled the consumer to buy during a local shortage and the farmer to sell his product during a local glut."

The continued inflation of credits since the armistice has extended speculation and profiteering by expanding the borrowing facilities to any food distributor who wanted to indulge in such practices and has widened the margin between the farmer and his market, likewise increasing the prices of supplies that the farmer must buy.

The burden of taxation is wrongly distributed, Mr. Hoover declared, pointing out that the excess profits tax "is an appointment to food manufacturers and distributors to collect taxes for the government by adding them to margin between the farm and the market."

"The whole marketing system in many of our commodities is indirect, expensive, wasteful, obsolete and increases the margin unduly," the letter continued. "Our manufacturing industries have developed out of peace with our agriculture and labor is being drawn in thousands from the farm to the town at wages with which the farmer cannot contend."

A commission studying the whole situation, Mr. Hoover declared, "would deal with these things and with the same common-sense with which similar commissions of farmers met the great economic problems of the food administration during the war with equal consideration for farmer, distributor and consumer."

BRITISH TAKE CONTROL OF BUSINESS HOUSES OPERATED BY AMERICANS

SHANGHAI, May 25.—A large number of business concerns which have been operating in this city under American control have been compelled to place themselves under the management of British merchants in order to conform to a British order in council. Under this rule which was promulgated early in the year business houses in China already under British register must be managed and controlled by British subjects.

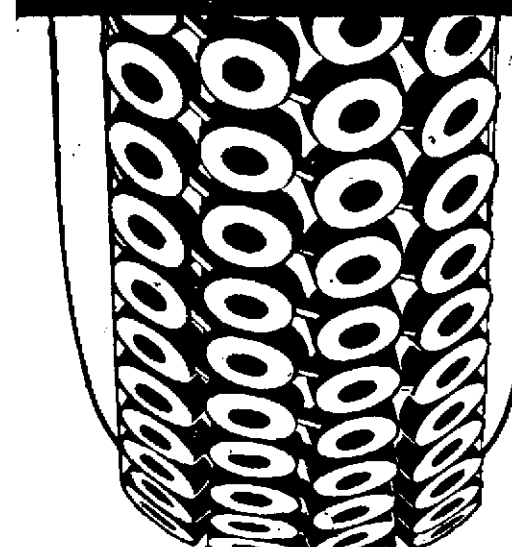

This has affected a vast sum of invested American capital and a considerable sum of Japanese and other foreign investments, as the majority of business houses conducted by American and Japanese in China were registered under the Hong Kong, or British, ordinances.

An order to comply with the new requirements it has been necessary for these American institutions to displace a number of Americans from executive positions and to replace them with subjects of Great Britain.

JAPANESE FIRMS MAKE GREAT EFFORTS TO RESUME BUSINESS WITH GERMANY

BERLIN, Germany, May 26.—Japanese commercial firms are making great efforts to resume business with Germany. One Japanese shipping company has opened its offices in Hamburg and a regular steamship service is running to Japanese ports.

Copper and silk are the main exports from Japan to Germany while pouch is the chief article demanded from Germany by Japan.

According to the Tageblatt, the Japanese government is considering a claim submitted by Germany that the Shantung (Tsingtau-Tientsin) railway is private and not state property. In the latter case, the railway would become forfeited to Japan, in accordance with the same terms of the peace treaty.

Japan proposes to release all German property under her control up to the value of a certain percentage to indemnify Japanese who have claims against Germany for war damages.

An inquiry into emigration possibilities from Germany to Japan shows, the Tageblatt says, that although public feeling in Japan has become generally favorable toward Germans again, the prospects are not favorable, except for engineers and practical scientists. Foreign manual laborers especially are not wanted in Japan.

DIFFICULT TO KEEP PEOPLE OF ARGENTINA "DOWN ON THE FARM"

BUENOS AIRES, May 26.—Argentina, like the United States, has difficulty keeping people on the farms and out of the cities. To combat the tendency toward city life, the minister of the interior, Ramon Gomez, has asked all of the governors of the provinces and territories to urge people to colonize the public lands.

Under a new law colonists are enabled to borrow from the National Mortgage bank up to 80 per cent of the value on land they have purchased and under the homestead law the government is permitted to give to colonists small lots of land in some districts.

A long drawn-out fight against fatigue

Is the human mechanism equal to the strains of modern life?

TWENTY per cent more flat feet among city men than among men from the country districts—

Thirty per cent more defective vision—

The death rate twenty-one per cent higher in the city than in the country—

These are facts taken from the report of the Surgeon-General of the United States Army on the first million men who were drafted, and from vital statistics given in the most recent census reports.

Resistance to disease is always dangerously weakened by fatigue, the greatest enemy you have in your work today. "The struggle of business in city life is a long drawn-out fight against fatigue. You dare not rest for fear of being left behind. But gradually fatigue slows down your pace—

your energy is gone," says Dr. William Brady.

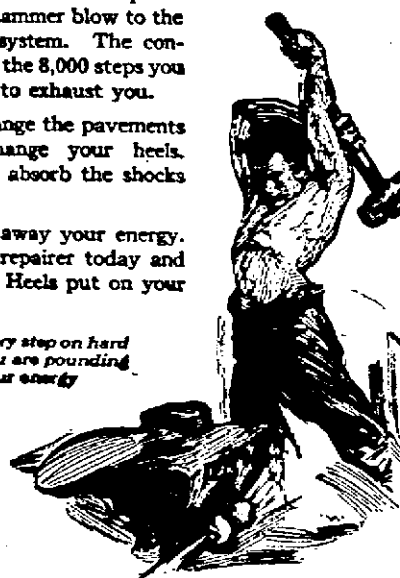

A certain amount of fatigue is necessary, but many people waste their precious energy.

Every step with leather heels or "dead" rubber heels on hard pavements acts as a hammer blow to the delicate nervous system. The constant repetition of the 8,000 steps you take a day tends to exhaust you.

You cannot change the pavements but you can change your heels. O'Sullivan's Heels absorb the shocks that tire you out.

Stop pounding away your energy. Go to your shoe repairer today and have O'Sullivan's Heels put on your shoes.

TO INVESTIGATE IN PRIVATE AUDIENCE

CARRANZA DEATH

Formal Inquiry for Purpose of Clarifying Part Taken by Herrero and Others

First Authoritative Story Shows Carranza Shot to Death While in Bed

MEXICO CITY, May 25.—(By Associated Press).—Formal investigation for the purpose of clarifying the part taken in the death of President Carranza both by Col. Rodolfo Herrero and members of the Carranza party is recommended by the commission of four named by Generals Obregon and Gonzales to inquire into the tragedy. The commission's report, which is the first authoritative story of the death of Carranza, may be summarized as follows:

Col. Herrero joined the Carranza party at Puebla, state of Puebla, on May 25.

ARTIFICIAL WOOL

Successful Experiments Made at Leeds, England

LEEDS, England, May 16.—Experiments are being conducted at the textile institute in manufacturing by a chemical process artificial wool from cellulose derived from cotton waste. These efforts are said to have been very successful and, although the product is only a substitute for wool, it is said to have great wearing possibilities, especially if used with other fabrics.

There was no difficulty in using the substitutes on woolen machinery with 50 per cent natural wool or working the machinery with wholly artificial wool. The students have dyed the new wool and succeeded very well.

Professor Barker said the new substitute had a harder feeling than wool, but he expected it to wear as well. The institute had been experimenting with it for three months, but the principal difficulty encountered was making the necessary combination of machinery for the work, he said. Firms are expected to have no difficulty in manufacturing it in large quantities. It is all right for medium or coarse wools, but there is still a question as to whether it would do for the finer sorts.

Col. House O. K.

House is wholly neutral, very discreet and deserving. Confidences could contribute much to the betterment of mutual relations.

Count von Bernstorff informed his superior in the same letter that Americans were at that time chiefly interested in "the restoration of peace and the abolition of militarism and navalism." He added that Germany would be "able to compel England to recognize the freedom of the seas only if supported by the United States and if Germany consented to end militarism."

Had Been Very Useful

"If I receive no reply on this point from your excellency," he concluded, "I will continue to treat Col. House in a dilatory manner. Up to now he has been very useful to me."

A letter from Dr. Solf, minister of colonies, to Dr. von Jagow reported the former's conversation with Col. House at the American embassy in Berlin late in January, 1916. In it Col. House was credited with statements relative to the political situation in England.

Pres. Wilson's emissary was quoted as describing Viscount Grey, then British secretary of state for foreign affairs, as "the most tractable English statesman." It was said he declared Viscount Grey was "eminently suited and also ready to negotiate and his imminent retirement from the British cabinet would not only be undesirable but liable to prove fatal to Germany."

Col. House was alleged to have told Dr. Solf there was a strong anti-American feeling in England at that time, and that "Germany was not aware of the extent to which unfriendly notes were being exchanged between Washington and London." He was quoted as expressing regret that "no arbiter was available, since England had indicated her lack of faith in America's impartiality."

Sentiment in England then underwent a complete reversal, it was said, and it was out of the question to bring up the issue of a revision of the doctrine of the freedom of the seas.

Blocked by Lloyd George

A memorandum of a conversation Col. House had with Dr. Theobald Bethmann-Hollweg at that time imperial chancellor, has also been published by the commission. The chancellor deplored the fact that Count von Bernstorff and Dr. Dernburg had exploited the issue of the freedom of the seas, which, he said, "had injured Germany's cause in the United States." Col. House was said to have given the chancellor the impression that Viscount Grey had shown the matter could be discussed, but that Premier Lloyd George had peremptorily rejected the suggestion.

Not Sworn Foe of Germany

A letter from Baron von der Lancken, German governor of Brussels, to Count Montgelas, then in charge of the American division of the foreign office, briefly reported a conversation the former had with Brand Whitlock, American minister to Belgium, in January, 1916, in Brussels, after Mr. Whitlock's return from the United States. The American minister was reported to have said President Wilson had assured him in a confidential talk he was "no sworn foe of Germany" and that "on the contrary, the destruction or political weakening of Germany would not be to the interest of the United States, whose chief political aim was freedom."

Mr. Whitlock was quoted as having told Baron von der Lancken he was "offered $500,000 in the United States to retire from the Brussels post and devote himself to a lecture tour in behalf of German rule in Belgium." During the spring of 1916 Count von Bernstorff implored the foreign office

BARUCH IGNORANT OF ANY M'ADOO CAMPAIGN

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Baiting by Senator James R. Reed of Missouri of leaders in the presidential campaign of Herbert Hoover and the assertion of Bernard M. Baruch that he is not personally interested in the political fortunes of any of the candidates featured yesterday's session of the senate committee investigating contributions and expenditures of presidential candidates.

Luke Frank H. Hitchcock, Mr. Baruch proved a sore disappointment insofar as revelation of the collection of a huge "slush" fund by which some candidate was going to buy his way into the White House. Mr. Baruch solemnly assured the committee that he is but a private citizen, has no political ambitions whatsoever and what he has read in the newspapers constitutes his sole information regarding the $5,000,000 McAdoo fund.

He likewise assured the committee that he hasn't met in "a long, long time" any of the men with whom he is supposed to be associated in promoting the nomination of McAdoo, doesn't know anyone sufficiently interested in the McAdoo campaign to be its manager and cannot name a single person besides himself who has contributed a dollar to any campaign fund. His contribution was to be the democratic national committee.

Preceding the examination of Hoover representatives and Mr. Baruch, the committee learned through James W. Beller that $3352 had been disbursed out of a total contributed of $5810 in furthering the campaign of Senator Owen and from Walter W. Vick that $12,900 or all contributed has been spent on behalf of Gov. Edwards of New Jersey.

In speaking of contributions to the Edwards fund, Vick declared that not a dollar came from liquor interests or brewers and that no one connected with these industries is connected with the Edwards campaign.

Representatives of the Hoover National Republican club, despite the utmost exertion on the part of Senator Reed to prove otherwise, demonstrated that in the matter of money no nation-not to address any "snarling" notes to the American government until "pending negotiations" had been satisfactorily concluded. He also urged that an end be put to peace discussions in the German press so that "the impression that the United States was acting on behalf of Germany might be avoided."

HOOVER FAVORED FOR TECH HEAD

BOSTON, May 26.—Herbert Hoover is being considered by the executive committee of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology corporation for president of that institution to succeed the late Richard C. Maclaurin.

It became known last night that Hoover's name heads the list of those at present discussed as candidates by the executive committee, and it is regarded as certain that tender of the office will be made to Mr. Hoover if he is not nominated for president by the republicans at Chicago.

"KING GEORGE OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND" AWARD.

NEW YORK, May 26.—"King George of Great Britain and Ireland" yesterday was awarded $52,575 damages in a $175,000 suit brought on behalf of the British government against Ernest Harrah, a New York steel broker, for alleged failure to deliver steel scrap as per contract for use in Italy during the war.

all bank devoted more care to details of accounting than has this organization, and every cent of the $52,984 collected and the $54,332 disbursed was accounted for in a sworn statement by a certified public accountant.

Senator Reed desired particularly to compare the contributors' list with the salary roll of the United States Grains corporation, asserting that "25,000 jobs" and large contributions were attached to identical individuals.

John F. Lucey, a Hoover manager, and Charles J. Hepburn, a Pennsylvania Hoover leader, said associates of Mr. Hoover in war activities and Belgian relief work had been very "generous. "Has Mr. Hoover contributed anything in New York or elsewhere?" asked Chairman Kenyon. "Not a dollar," Mr. Hepburn replied. "He wouldn't even advise or consult until the last month or so. The money has nearly all been voluntary without solicitation."

"There have been statements to the effect that very powerful financial interests are back of the Hoover campaign," Chairman Kenyon said, "can you tell us about that?"

"So far as I know it isn't true," was the reply.

"Have you any contributions from the international bankers in New York?"

"We have had a due regard to the personal reputation of Mr. Hoover and ourselves," the witness replied, "and have consequently refused to accept any contributions for more than $1,000,000 and from corporations."

Senator France told the committee he had no manager, funds, finances or campaign.

Chairman Kenyon, after adjournment, ordered notices of the investigation sent to Nicholas Murray Butler of New York and Gov. Coolidge of Massachusetts or their representatives.

Why a Sale at the Height of the Season? FACTS

This is not because we need the money nor because prices are dropping. How can they when wages are going up? In fact we never profiteered and never boosted our prices up 100 per cent., therefore we do not have to drop prices 50 to 75 per cent. My way of doing business is buying at low prices and selling accordingly; therefore, I must have your whole hearted support and co-operation to continue the enormous volume of business I have been doing, making it possible for you to save from 30 to 50 per cent. on all purchases, yes and even more on some items. Visit our store and let us prove it to you.

Signed,

HARRY OSTROFF.

MORGAN OFFERS HIS LONDON HOME TO U. S.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—President Wilson yesterday transmitted to congress, without recommendation, an offer of J. Pierpont Morgan of the gift of his London residence as an American embassy building. Mr. Morgan asked for prompt decision by the government, saying that he did not want a residence to stand unoccupied while there was such scarcity of housing in London.

The offer of his London house was made by Mr. Morgan in a letter one year ago. It was sent to the state department. Apparently it was not even called to the president's attention and the matter was not placed before congress.

After waiting 11 months and receiving no reply to his proposition, Mr. Morgan wrote a second letter, calling attention to his former communication and seeking a definite response. Sec. Colby at once sent the letter to the president and it was transmitted to congress yesterday afternoon.

The chances are that Mr. Morgan's offer will be refused, because of the invariable precedent that any person receiving the thanks of congress is entitled for life to privileges of the senate floor. It would be rather crude to accept the gift without thanking Mr. Morgan for it.

WILL CELEBRATE COMMUNITY DAY

Next Saturday is to be celebrated as community day in Billerica and an elaborate program has been arranged for the observance. The principal event of the day will be the dedication of the Charles H. Kohlrusch playground as a memorial to a deceased citizen of the town. Arrangements for exercises at the park have been made by the park commissioners and will be carried out under the direction of Warren H. Manning, chairman of the commission.

The program provides for the assembling of the younger people at the playground at 8 a. m. for the purpose of cleaning up the premises and getting everything in shipshape for the exercises that are to come later in the day. Luncheon will be served at noon at the Talbot school after which there will be folk dancing and the raising of a flag presented by the school children. Following will come the formal exercises of dedication with speaking. At 4 p. m. a baseball game will start between the T.R. & T's and the K. of C's of Lowell. Community singing will be led by J. T. Fairbrother.

The committee in charge of the program for the day held its final meeting Monday night in Union hall, with Neil R. Mahoney acting as chairman in the absence of the regular chairman, Warren H. Manning. An executive committee was appointed consisting of Miss Cowdrey, Mrs. James Ritchie, R. W. Kearney and William S. Taylor. The flag raising committee is made up of J. T. Fairbrother, N. Millbury, Miss Grace Knowles and Mrs. Burnham.

NOT A DIMAS OR GESTAS COAST TO COAST BY AIR WITH CARRANZA

MEXICO CITY, May 26 (By the Associated Press).—Mexican officials and military officers who accompanied President Carranza in his flight into the mountains of Puebla were again censured by General Obregon yesterday. Asked to express his opinion regarding the flight of the late chief executive, he said:

"Among the generals and noted civilians accompanying Carranza, to whom they owed infinite favors and consideration, there was not even one Dimas or one Gestas, who wanted to die at his side."

In speaking of one "Dimas and one Gestas," General Obregon referred to the two thieves who were crucified with the Saviour.

He added that Col. Rodolfo Herrero, who made the raid on the Carranza camp, had 80 men, while Carranza was guarded by more than 150 followers.

Professor Davis is engaged in expert work on helium gas for the department, and is designing a plant to be built at Langley Field, Va., where the expensive gas after use in the military lighter-than-air craft may be washed free of impurities and used again. Estimates by Colonel William N. Hensley, of the war department, indicate that it will be possible for passengers to go by airship overland at a cost of about 5 cents a mile, at a speed of 45 to 70 miles an hour.

"The advent of the airship as a regular passenger carrier is much nearer than many persons in this country realize," said Mr. Davis. "I shall be surprised if the coming summer does not see a line of airships in operation by an English firm between the United States and the British Isles and I have no doubt whatever that a year from now will see regular weekly sailings."

"By the use of helium all danger of disaster from explosions such as have wrecked big balloons filled with hydrogen will be averted. There will be no fear of ignition of the gas by bullets, lightning or sparks from the engine. In fact, it is pointed out, that the engines may be placed inside the outer shell of the dirigible, and that except for observation purposes no car need be carried outside the big bag."

While the present cost of producing helium is about ten times that of hydrogen, Professor Davis believes that development of its manufacture will result in a cheaper product. Helium will be used to furnish the lifting power in the $2,500,000 dirigible which the navy department expects to obtain from an English manufacturer soon.

COAST TO COAST BY AIR

Plan Passenger Service With View of Having Fleet Available in Case of War

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 26.—A dirigible airship line to engage in regular passenger service between New York and San Francisco is a project in which war department officials would like to interest capital, with a view to having an air fleet immediately available in case of war, according to Professor Harvey N. Davis, of Harvard University.

Professor Davis is engaged in expert work on helium gas for the department, and is designing a plant to be built at Langley Field, Va., where the expensive gas after use in the military lighter-than-air craft may be washed free of impurities and used again. Estimates by Colonel William N. MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE
Final performance of "The Mystery of the Yellow Room," the great French mystery play which has thrilled large audiences at the Merrimack Square theatre this week, will be given this evening. Olive Thomas, Nora O'Connor, and the usual program of short-reel subjects will also be shown. Tomorrow there will be an entire change of program. The leading features will be Dorothy Dalton in "The Dark Mirror," an intensely absorbing tale of New York life, and Robert Warwick, the celebrated dramatic actor, in "Thou Art the Man."

In "The Dark Mirror" Miss Dalton has a dual role, playing two sharply contrasted types. As Priscilla Main, a charming society girl, she admires a doctor, a young physician. To him she confides a series of dreams which she has had, in them she sees herself as a girl of the underworld who has several unusual adventures. She can even recall the names of the people in the visions.

Shortly afterward Doctor Fosdick, reading the account of a murder, recognizes the folks involved as those mentioned in the visions. The leading features will be Dorothy Dalton in "The Dark Mirror," an intensely absorbing tale of New York life, and Robert Warwick, the celebrated dramatic actor, in "Thou Art the Man."

Robert Warwick's role as the star of "Thou Art the Man," his new play, is said to be one that appeals to all classes of movie-goers. It is said to be a story of a young girl.

IN THE SOUTH AFRICAN COUNTRY AND BRIMING OVER WITH THRILLS AND EXCITEMENT

As an episode and as generally pleasing an act as the present season has brought forth is that being played by Eddie Buzzell and Peggy Parker, at the B. K. Keith's theatre this week. This is but one of the seven acts which have never before appeared in this city. Buzzell, the Persian player, is also a genuine surprise. His work is enthusiastically endorsed. Gilbert Wells, blackface entertainer, are lively and interesting. Other acts on the bill are: The Four Ortons, premier wire performers, Adam's & Griffith, in "A Singing Lesson," and Madgen, the jazz juggler.

OPERA HOUSE
Farewell week at the Opera House by the popular Lowell Players is enjoying one of the most successful runs of the season. The play, "Pie or My Heart," one of the most entertaining comedies for years, is winning unquestioned favor with the playing community. The players are well-dressed, well-showered with well-deserved recognition from all. Beautiful souvenir photographs of Miss Margaret Fields, who played "Pie," will be again distributed on Thursday. Receptions by the players to the public will be held on the stage this afternoon and Saturday afternoon. Come and meet the players personally. They will be delighted to exchange greetings with the patrons. Don't forget goodbye night, Saturday.

THE STRAND
Nazimova is always good! It's a favorite expression by motion picture patrons, and can once again be said with reference to "The Heart of a Child," which is being presented for the last time at The Strand. These are positively the last performances of this truly commendable Nazimova offering today. See it. Frank Mayo in "Burr's Winner" is the other "thing" on this commendable double-featured bill, while the comedy and weekly add to its pleasure-giving. Tomorrow Tom Moore in "Duds" and William Russell in "Leave It To Me."

THE OWL THEATRE
Part of the Owl theatre's big bill will change tomorrow. The management is going to give something new to Lowell. One fact is known concerning it, that is, the trade names all pronounce it good. It is called "Comedvart," and is a two-reel feature crammed full of surprises. With it will be held of Lloyd comedy, "His Royal Slynness," another episode of "The Last Clip," and—but we'll leave

TO MEET DEMANDS MADE BY FARMERS

VIENNA, May 26.—Appropriations aggregating 300,000,000 crowns have been voted by the government to meet demands by farmers for higher prices for grain running from 200 to 1000 crowns per 100 kilograms. Farmers have agreed to the new prices, but are now agitating for the adoption of the requisition of textiles, leather and other necessities, which they hold should be sold only to agricultural societies, which in turn would dispose of them to private traders.

SENATE VOTES 20 TO 6 FOR MOVIE CENSORSHIP

BOSTON, May 26.—The state senate yesterday, by a standing vote of 20 to 6, ordered to a third reading the bill to provide a state censorship of moving picture exhibitions.

The bill exempting Holyoke and Westfield from payment of special benefit taxes in connection with the construction of a bridge over the Connecticut river between Springfield and West Springfield was considered briefly. The committee on bills in third reading declared that an opinion had been received from the attorney general to the effect that the bill was unconstitutional.

Senator Nelson of Haverhill offered an amendment, under which the county commissioners would have no power to grant permits for the stringing of wires and the installation of other appliances on the bridge. Senator Chamberlain of Springfield offered an amendment under which all the approaches would be paid for by the county and municipal authorities. Further consideration was put over until today.

The senate passed to be engrossed the bill to provide that unreasonable agreements shall be a defense in actions for recovery of rent, and the resolve extending until June 1 the time within which the commission for consolidating the laws shall report to the general court.

reported on the last night of the drive. This discrepancy is accounted for by the fact that several subscriptions were reported twice by some of the canvassing teams. Of the total secured, $22,079.50 is in cash, with the balance, $145,275 in pledge form.

Because the drive ran above its quota to the extent of more than $3000, the building fund was inflated accordingly. Of the total amount contributed, the $631 secured in excess of $22,000 will just about cover for all campaign expenses. Of the lump sum, $13,000 will go toward the building fund, which now amounts to $24,500; $5000 will go to national headquarters and $5000 for current expense incident with the work in Lowell.

The official count yesterday disclosed one or two large contributions that had not been reported publicly, including $302.25 from the employees of the Waterhead and Waterside mills.

In announcing the final and official result of the campaign, Adjutant Klepzig again expressed his deep appreciation of the generosity of the city's people. "The Salvation Army never will forget this wonderful manifestation of Christian friendship," he said.

Within another month the army hopes to secure its new home. It is not proposed to build if the proper place can be acquired by purchase. One or two centrally located buildings are under consideration, any of which would admirably fill the needs of the organization.

STRIKE IN NEW JERSEY

NEWARK, N. J., May 26.—Approximately 1200 brewery workers in this city, Jersey City, Paterson, Elizabeth and Harrison, including brewers, bottlers, engineers, machinists and firemen, went on strike today because the New Jersey Brewers' Association had rejected their demands for wage increases ranging from $4 to $10. Members of the association declare it is impossible to grant the increases. One large brewer here said the increases could not be taken from the profits of the breweries, "because since prohibition there are no profits." The only alternative, he said, is to close the plants.

Escape From Prison Continued

held up throughout the city and searched and the quest soon spread to surrounding communities but no trace of the escaped men was found. Dintzer collapsed this morning while he was being questioned by prison authorities. He said his failure to escape was due to Barney who, he claimed, cut the rope as Dintzer was climbing through the ventilator. He said Barney's action was inspired by a long-standing grudge that the latter held against him. Dintzer's collapse was attributed to injuries he received when he fell from the ventilator.

Barney's Second Escape

Barney's escape was his second feat of the kind. While he was awaiting trial he escaped from the Charles street jail and eluded the authorities for several days. Ward made an attempt to get away while in jail awaiting sentence, but was caught after dropping over a wall.

The escape last night was the most sensational here since nine members of the "Kelly gang" gained their freedom in July, 1912, by crawling through a sewer, which had an opening in the prison and an outlet an eighth of a mile away. They were captured eventually. The last escape from the prison was made on November 26, 1915, when Edgar B. Snow, serving a life sentence for murder, was at large for about four hours.

Dintzer, who was captured without a fight, told Deputy Commissioner of Corrections Ernest C. R. Bagley, that Manster expected an automobile to be waiting outside. Persons in the vicinity recalled later that they had seen a high powered green car near the prison grounds. Others told of a woman seen in a doorway near the prison gate for several nights past.

Break Planned Two Months Ago

Dintzer told Commissioner Bagley that the escape was planned two months ago. "We intended getting away Monday night, and had tried to break out the two previous nights, but each time something came up to cause delay," he said.

"Ward made a key with which he opened his cell. He passed it to Manster, and Manster opened the cell doors of Barney and myself. I loosened the nuts on the wire grating over Ward's cell, lifted the grating and we climbed into the ventilator. The others went ahead of me.

"I was within two feet of the top when Barney, who was above told me to get down, that he was going to get even with me, and cut the rope."

The men made good their escape

with another rope of twisted bed clothing, secured to the roof of the death-house, from which they dropped, by a hook, improvised from scrap metal. Their delivery was effected notwithstanding they were considered the most dangerous group in the prison, and were under a double guard recently posted.

A dummy was left in the bed of each of the cells from which the convicts escaped. The dummy in Manster's cell was made of cloth, with a face in profile, hair drawn with black crayons and face colored. The "head" of the dummy was partially concealed beneath the blankets, which were folded in such a way as to give the appearance that a man was asleep in the cell, with his knees drawn up.

Dintzer's fall aroused the guards, who spread the alarm, but when they reached the wall the men had disappeared.

Rewards of $100 each for the capture of the prisoners were offered today by the state, prison officials announced.

PLANS TO DECORATE GRAVES OF AMERICANS

PARIS, May 26.—Marshal Pétain will speak in behalf of the French government at the Memorial day exercises to be held in Suresnes cemetery, near this city. Ambassador Hugh C. Wallace will represent the United States and both the marshal and ambassador later will assist in decorating the graves of American soldiers. The French government will also be represented at similar ceremonies to be held at Beaumont, Thiaucourt, Ploisy, Belleau Wood, Chateau Thierry and Fere-en-Tardenois.

Maj. Gen. Henry T. Allen will preside at the exercises to be held at the great American cemetery at Romagne-sous-Montfaucon, where the bodies of nearly 25,000 American soldiers are buried. He will also deliver the principal address. A company of infantry numbering 250 men and a military band of 55 pieces will accompany Gen. Allen from Coblentz.

Subscriptions totaling 285,846 francs have been received up to date, for the purpose of decorating the graves of American soldiers in this country.

HILLARD CAPTURED FEW HOURS AFTER ESCAPE

SHARON, May 26.—Charles P. Hillard, said to be wanted by the New London, Conn., police for a series of robberies, was captured here last night, a few hours after he had escaped from a police officer by slipping the handcuffs from his wrists and striking the officer over the head. Hillard with two companions, Forest Rogers and William Waykubowicz, had been arrested for breaking the seal on a freight car here and carrying away a crate of shoes.

IRISH RESOLUTION

Substitute for Mason Measure

Drafted—Harvard Men Protest Irish Recognition

WASHINGTON, May 26.—A substitute for the Mason Irish resolution has been drafted for submission Thursday to the house foreign affairs committee and every indication yesterday forecast a favorable report on it to the house. The new draft after a substantial preamble simply expresses the sympathy of the American people "with the aspirations of the Irish people for a government of their own."

This falls far short of the wording and meaning of the original Mason resolution, which urged the president in effect to let England know that this country approves the formation of an Irish republic and assures him that congress stands ready to appropriate the funds necessary for appointment of diplomatic and consular officers.

Friends of the Irish cause with it was predicted yesterday, accept the compromise if nothing better can be secured. They intend to fight for a stronger phrasing of their views when the amendment comes up on the floor of the house.

Delay on the Irish question is attributed by friends of the Irish to reluctance among republicans to take any action whatever.

Colby Makes Denial

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Secretary of State Colby yesterday denied a report published in a New York newspaper that he personally advised democratic members of the house committee on foreign affairs President Wilson has no objection to the passage of the Mason resolution extending recognition to the "Irish republic."

"There is no foundation for that report," said Mr. Colby. "I wish to deny it emphatically."

Inasmuch as the "Irish republic" has no existence in fact, it was stated emphatically by one high official yesterday that congress might just as well pass a resolution breaking off diplomatic relations with Great Britain as the Mason resolution.

This, it was declared, would be a much more direct method of getting results and would be "more honest" than to pass a measure to recognize a non-existent government solely for the purpose of corralling Irish-American votes in this country.

Harvard Men Protest

BOSTON, May 26.—Nine hundred and seventy students of Harvard and members of the university faculty, including President A. Lawrence Lowell, four Harvard deans, and 10 professors, have joined in sending a telegram to Senator Henry C. Lodge, asking him to prevent the passage of the Mason resolution in the senate.

The Harvard president and several faculty members were busy in the yard yesterday obtaining signatures of the students opposed to the tacit recognition of Ireland's independence by this country.

THE BEST ON EARTH

Says Mrs. Staples of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Taunton, Mass.—"I could not eat or sleep for six months, and could not walk without help for three months, caused by female trouble. My cousin, who was a doctor, told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it helped me greatly. Then during the Change of Life I used the same remedy. I am seventy years old now and am able to do my own housework and walk one mile to church every Sunday morning and evening. I am recommending the Vegetable Compound to my friends having the same troubles as I had. Your remedy is the best on earth. I cannot find words to express my gratitude to it."—Mrs. SUSAN C. STAPLES, 157 'B' School St., Taunton, Mass.

The reason that thousands of women from all parts of the country write such grateful letters is that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought health and happiness into their lives; once burdened with pain and illness. It has relieved women from some of the worst forms of female ills, such as displacements, inflammation, and ulceration. Why don't you try it?

SEN. GLASS OPPOSES IN-DISCRIMINATE BONUS

BRISTOL, Va., May 26.—Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, former secretary of the treasury, stated he was opposed to an indiscriminate bonus to ex-soldiers in a letter to W. O. Caine, vice president of the Bristol chamber of commerce, in reply to a message in which the chamber urged that the senator oppose the present soldier relief bill.

In his letter, Senator Glass stated: "You may be sure that I have not the slightest intention of voting for the bonus for ex-soldiers and sailors. I think it would be a frightful misuse and abuse of power for congress to vote an indiscriminate bonus to able-bodied ex-service men, millions of whom did not get within 5000 miles of Europe. At all events, I shall not be a party to imposing any such additional burden upon the people."

SAYS BOLSHEVIKI WORKING FOR PEACE

MANTUA, May 26.—Bolshevism is a word that is sadly misconstrued in the United States, says Maj. Gen. Wm. S. Graves, commander-in-chief of the American Expeditionary Force, which recently evacuated Siberia.

"At the mention of a Bolshevik, the people instantly conjure a mental picture of a frowsy anarchist with a bomb in one hand and a torch in the other," he said. "But the Bolsheviks in Russia are working for peace and the good of the country. In my belief they are trying to be eminently fair and just to the people. They have deplored the murder and bloodshed which took place before they first came into power in Siberia—Jan. 31 of this year—and are doing everything possible to stamp this out."

"GEN." LEE CHRISTMAS DECIDES TO RETIRE

NEW ORLEANS, May 26.—"Gen." Lee Christmas, for 25 years a prominent figure in Latin-American revolutions and from whose adventures O. Henry wrote many tales, has decided to retire.

"El General," as he is best known in Central America, was in Guatemala throughout the recent revolution there and gave valuable services to the Americans who were in peril.

So at 57 years of age, Christmas, a native of Memphis, has taken up his abode in New Orleans and says he is through with the adventures which come to those who rove through Latin America.

SLEEKER SWALLOW'S COMPLAINT

I told you how Sleeker Swallow arrived in Scrub-Up Land in his evening clothes in the morning. There he was, from his trip across the sea in his cutaway swallow-tail coat and almost-white shirt front, looking as though he were ready for a party.

"I was speaking of my clothes," he said to Nancy and Nick and Rubadub.

party clothes if he has work to do in the barn? That's where I live mostly, and up under the edge of the roof at that! Or does a chimney-sweep put on elegant black broadcloth and a stiff shirt, before he slides down the chimney with his broom? Well, that's what I have to do, for I live in chimneys sometimes, too.

"And does a sailor," went on Sleeker, the fairman, in a complaining tone, "Here I am, all dressed up like an aristocrat and I'm not one at all. You'd think I expected to live like a dicky-bird in a gold cage all my life with these clothes on, taking baths in a gravy dish and eating dainty little tidbits from a lady's fingers, wouldn't you?" He looked disgusted.

"What do you wish us to do?" asked Nick.

"Do!" Sleeker shrugged his nicely tailored shoulders. "I want my clothes changed. Does your daddy wear his

"We'll change your clothes," spoke up Nancy feeling sorry for him, and getting out her scissors to clip off his coat-tails.

"Hold on!" cried Rubadub. "I've got something to say about that."

O. M. I. CADETS' MILITARY MASS

The O.M.I. Cadets will hold their annual military mass at the Immaculate Conception church on Sunday, June 27. It was decided at a well attended meeting of the organization held last evening at the Cadet armory.

The memorial mass is annually looked forward to not only by the present members of the organization but also by former members who are invited to attend. It is expected that 600 young men who formerly belonged to the Cadets will be present this year. The usual breakfast will be served after the mass and an excellent program of exercises is being arranged by Rev. Denis A. Sullivan, O.M.I.

MINER'S DRAWING ACCEPTED FOR EXHIBITION IN THE ROYAL ACADEMY

CARDIFF, May 26.—Vicent Evans, a young collier living in Swansea Valley, has had one of his drawings entitled "An Underground Scene," accepted for exhibition in the Royal Academy. Evans worked at coal hewing until quite recently and spent his spare time in painting and drawing.

PATROLMAN BEATEN, BUT ARRESTS ASSAILANTS

SPRINGFIELD, May 26.—Beaten with his own club and facing an automatic pistol, Patrolman James Moriarty, an ex-infantry sergeant with a distinguished war record, yesterday arrested James McCauley and Joseph Riley of New York, charged with the larceny of automobile tires valued at $450 from the garage of McKeown & Lemeux, 7 Winter street. The patrolman says he discovered the men with the tires. They dropped the loot when they saw the officer and fled. Patrolman Moriarty did not chase them but waited for them to return for the tires. He waited three and a half hours before they returned.

The officer started to arrest them whereupon Riley, it is alleged, pulled an automatic pistol and pressed it against the officer's stomach. Despite this, Moriarty knocked both men down and took the gun away from Riley. McCauley got the patrolman's club and beat the officer over the head with it. Holding Riley tightly in his grasp, Moriarty, warned of what blows he could and finally tripped McCauley and landed on top of him, then using his own club to advantage. Riley then broke away and ran. The patrolman handcuffed McCauley and started in pursuit. Riley surrendered to Moriarty at the Union station.

GRADUATION EXERCISES TO BE OMITTED BECAUSE OF HIGH COST OF CLOTHING

NEWBURYPORT, May 26.—It was announced that the customary public graduation exercises of the grammar schools will be omitted this year on account of the high cost of living.

Supt. of Schools Moore suggested to the principals of the schools the advisability of such a curtailment, and at a conference held by them, following consultation with members of the graduating classes, the plan was adopted. The cost of clothing was a determining factor. Diplomas will be presented to the pupils at simple exercises held in the classrooms.

Retchitsa Occupied by Russian Bolshevik Forces—Poles Re-enforced

LONDON, May 26.—Retchitsa, a village on the right bank of the Dniester river, approximately 125 miles north of Kiev, has been occupied by Russian Bolshevik forces which are also advancing on the fortified outskirts of Bobruisk, on the Berezina river, according to an official statement issued in Moscow yesterday and received here by wireless.

Fighting is proceeding 16 miles northeast of Kiev, the statement declares, and attacks by Polish and Ukrainian troops southeast of Kiev, along the Kiev-Poltava railway, have been repulsed.

Along the upper reaches of the Berezina river soviet forces are said to have occupied a number of villages six miles southwest of Dnkehtchen as 16 miles west of the Berezina. On the front the battle is going on over a line 40 miles long.

Polish forces fighting in front of Minsk have received reinforcements and are fighting stubbornly against the Bolshevik advance, the statement says.

PRES. DESCHANEL IS RECOVERING

PARIS, May 26.—President Deschanel is recovering from the injuries he received Monday morning when he fell from a train near Montargis, but may take a complete rest, which may extend until late in the summer, according to a statement by his private secretary today.

Of the 56 signers of the American Declaration of Independence all except six were members of the Masonic fraternity.

General Weakness

I was anemic and most of the time was unable to attend to my household duties.

One of my neighbors suggested that I should try RED PILLS for Pale and Weak Women. I took them, and after following the treatment for a month, was happy to note that I was getting better every day. Now, all the sufferings which I endured during those years are things of the past.

For years I had been suffering from general weakness, with its usual accompanying ailments, such as dizziness, shaky legs and fainting spells.

With summer weather and a temperature of 87 degrees, the farmers of Aronsbrook county, Me., who raised a considerable portion of the potatoes that are now selling at from $8 to $9 a bushel, ought to be happy.

Pay increases are an excellent thing for those who get them, but it would be a more excellent thing all around if those who get the pay lifts would determine to deserve them by pitching in and working a little harder to increase production.

The report that Carranza of Mexico committed suicide is a shabby attempt to shield his murderers from the punishment they deserve. If Mexico is to show any self-respect, she should promptly bring these cowardly marauders to justice.

With congress, the Federal Reserve bank and many officials, individuals and organizations of one kind or another out after his blood, it would seem that old H. C. of L. might be getting ready to take to the tall timber, but at last accounts he was still doing business at the old stand without a sign of worry or solicitude.

The jump in the city's death rate from 13.48 and 14.93 during the previous two weeks to 18.78 last week, as the summer season is approaching, is not reassuring. Twelve of the deaths were of children under five years of age, and ten of them were of babies under one year old. It is a time for increased vigilance on the part of municipal authorities, and civic organizations that are interested in the conservation of child life.

The government of Chihuahua has offered a reward for the capture of Villa dead or alive. That is a highly proper thing to do inasmuch as Villa and his followers have been more dangerous during the last four years than a great flock of hungry wolves. If Mexico is to live, it is necessary that Villa and his bandits should die. If General Obregon is master of Mexico one of the first things he should attend to is to put an end to the guerrilla warfare conducted by Villa.

While government officials are straining every nerve to capture Draft-dodger Bergdoll, it would seem to be proper that a little effort should be put into an attempt to determine who is responsible for this being at large after having been sentenced to a term of five years in prison. Unpleasant suspicions are aroused when it is known that a young man with an abundance of money behind him, who is supposed to be confined behind iron bars, can have his prison gates swung wide for him by telling a vastly improbable story of large sums of money hidden on a mountain-side.

The committee of the Chamber of Commerce that is studying the city's taxicab situation has an important field of work before it. The taxi in other cities of New England has become a source of great convenience to large numbers of people, and the revenues of the street railways do not seem to have been greatly affected thereby. In fact some trolley lines have welcomed their advent as feeders of the rail lines. It ought to be possible to work out an arrangement for Lowell that would give more comprehensive transportation facilities without injuring those that already exist.

WASTE OF MONEY

It seems to be high time that the naval investigation and others which have been dragging along for weeks should be terminated. The government is obliged to undergo a very heavy expense in printing the reports of these investigations in addition to the campaign speeches of the senators and representatives who use the Congressional Record for the distribution of their campaign literature. Already the government printing department has complained that it is impossible to secure the print paper necessary for such an output of reports and other official documents. If economy is to be practiced anywhere, it should start in the government printing department at Washington.

POLAND'S STRUGGLE

Poland is now the scene of a war fully as desperate as any portion of the great world struggle which we supposed had been terminated

when the armistice was declared on Nov. 11, 1918.

Poland has already done splendid work in driving back the Bolshevik forces; but they are now pouring down upon her in enormous numbers and she is in danger of losing the vantage ground she has gained at such heroic sacrifice. In this warfare not only the fate of Poland, but that of the Ukraine and possibly a great part of western Europe is involved. For this reason, it is hoped that the allies will assist Poland in every way possible and at least supply her with ammunition and food so as to enable her to stay the Red tide that threatens her in the armies of Trotsky and Lenin.

MONEY IN POLITICS

It would appear that some of the republican candidates for the presidency are out to purchase the nomination. The revelations, brought out in the senate investigation, although it has only started, are quite alarming.

The question arises as to whether the men who are to spend millions of dollars in the contest for the nomination are merely following the old time republican custom.

The campaign managers do not seem to feel that they are doing anything out of the ordinary in lavishing money in large amounts to secure delegates to the convention. It is said that General Wood's campaign would make that of Newberry for senator in Michigan "look like a piker."

If there is any hope for clean politics in this country, it should appear in connection with the highest office in the land, but unfortunately it is for that office the corruptionists put forth their greatest efforts.

The question arises, how a man would square himself as president if in securing election he spent five or ten times the amount of his salary?

BACK ON THE FARMS

"There are not enough corner cigar stores, pool rooms and confectionery emporiums back there on the farms to attract city dwellers," thinks Senator Sherman, and that is one of the reasons that he ascribes for high prices for foodstuffs and the possibility of a serious shortage of food next winter. Perhaps the senator is right, but there are, nevertheless, many attractions connected with life on a farm that would appeal to people of the cities if they understood them better.

For many—perhaps most people in the cities, life is a constant economic struggle to make the ends of income and outgo meet. Someone has said that not more than one person in ten among the workers in cities is more than a month ahead of the poorhouse—meaning, of course, that four weeks unemployment would bring serious inconvenience if not suffering in many families.

The farmer is at least independent of this. He is practically always certain of a market for his products with at least a fair profit and, in the last analysis, if his market fails, he can consume that which he has grown himself. If a food shortage develops, he will not be among those who will suffer acutely.

The farm laborer has the advantage of clean wholesome work in the open air, the advantages of social recreation provided by the grange and other organizations, he is well fed at his employer's table, and, at present rates of pay, he is handed to him at the end of each month from $50 to $60 that represents largely a clear financial profit for him. The conditions were never so favorable for the farm laborer.

MORE PROPAGANDA

Under pretence of protecting American exporters, an organization is being formed in New York to combat the anti-British propaganda which, it is claimed, is likely to be injected into the coming presidential campaign. The alleged aim is to prevent any disturbance of our friendly relations with Great Britain that might operate to the detriment of American exporters.

That is how the matter is presented to the public, but as to the alleged danger to our export trade with Great Britain, we do not believe that there need be much concern on that score, as England is buying most of her supplies from Germany and other countries, the difference in the rate of exchange causing her to avoid the American market, except for such essentials as sugar or some other commodity, the purchase of which is due to sheer necessity and in which the price is a secondary consideration.

According to an article in the Daily News Record of New York, the several commercial organizations interested, chiefly British, are organizing for a campaign along these lines. After describing the general purposes of the meeting the article referred to said:

"The attention of the American chamber of commerce in London has been directed to this situation and this organization will work with the British Empire chamber of commerce, now being formed in this city, to offset the propaganda which, it is alleged, is being carried on by certain interests in this country. It was impossible to obtain statements from those who attended the meeting.

"One of the exporters present did state, however, that the matter was of too delicate a nature to permit of wide publicity being given it."

It will be interesting to note the operation of this new movement and to watch its attitude towards the different candidates. Its avowed purpose is to interest itself in the campaign. It should declare for what candidate it is to work. But that is also too delicate a matter to be made public.

CASE OF ARMENIA

Affairs at Washington are reaching a crisis relative to Armenian affairs. A short time ago Senator Harding presented a resolution expressing deep sympathy with Armenia in her struggle for liberty and his sentiments were enthusiastically endorsed and the resolution unanimously adopted. At that time it was not known that President Wilson had been asked to act as arbitrator in settling the complicated questions of the Armenian boundaries, now under dispute between Turkey and several other nations. He had, however, ordered a war vessel with marines to Batum on the Black Sea to protect the lives of Americans there, in danger on account of warlike operations by the Turks and other races. His instructions also included an order to protect the railroad from Batum to Baku on the Caspian Sea. This action taken in connection with that of the senate would indicate a real desire on the part of the United States to help Armenia.

Now comes President Wilson with an appeal to congress to accept the proffered mandate for Armenia in accordance with the request of the war council sitting at San Remo. President Wilson makes a strong plea for the acceptance of the mandate; but it appears that both republicans and democrats in congress are strongly committed against assuming any such responsibility.

One of the reservations adopted on the League of Nations covenant provided that no mandate over European or Asiatic countries would be accepted by the United States. It is not likely that the senate will change its attitude on that question although should it refuse, its expressed sympathy for Armenia will appear to be so much hot air.

The president has the official right to accept the invitation offered him to arbitrate the Armenian boundary disputes. That question is very much involved with international complications. On one side England has claims, on another France, Russia at a different point and Turkey the most inveterate enemy of Armenian liberty, is opposed to any recognition of Armenian rights.

It would not be surprising to find that in settling this question President Wilson will make quite as many enemies for himself and the United States as he did in his efforts to settle the Adriatic question, between Italy and the Czech-Slovaks.

In this critical hour when the fate of Armenia hangs in the balance, her friends and sympathizers throughout the world, will naturally hope that some power will aid her in establishing her liberty on a solid basis so that she may start on a new career of freedom, unhampered by Turkish assaults and free to work out her own national destinies.

If congress refuses to accept the mandate for Armenia it can favor the recognition of the new republic which would give Armenia official standing among the nations of the world. This at least should we do for Armenia and when giving recognition to that new republic, it would be but a simple act of justice to extend an equal favor to the republic of Ireland.

Evolution Slow Process

Prof. Garner reports that the female ape says "Moo-hoo" and the male ape, "Wah-hoo." Evolution doesn't appear to have carried us very far. A chap on the moonlit beach last night said:

"Who is out?" and the girl replied, "It's oo's."

Very Made of Him

The outside of the small village inn didn't promise much comfort, but it was that or nothing, so the stranded cyclist engaged a room and prepared for the worst. On going upstairs after a meal, he found there was no water in the jug, no soap and no towel. So he pulled at the creaky bell wire. Nothing happened, although he heard a faint tinkle down below. He waited a few minutes and then rang again and again at intervals. At the end of 20 minutes a heavy foot-fall sounded in the passage, his room door was unceremoniously thrust open and a tumbled head appeared.

"Did you ring?" asked the owner of the tumbled head in a drowsy voice.

"Did I ring?" snapped the visitor.

"Of course, I rang. I've been ringing for half an hour!"

"Well, don't do it again," admonished the drowsy voice as the head disappeared. "You've woke me up!"

The "Thank You" Club

It's great. The "Thank You" club. No initiation, no dues, no long-drawn-out meetings, no reports. Anyone can join and so small a number as two make a quorum to do business. No stated meetings nor any stipulated place of meeting. Anyone can start a "Thank You" club. Beats overall clubs all to pieces, lasts longer, does more good, and spreads sunshine. One carries the by-laws around in his head. The password is "Thank you." And that's all there is in the whole book of rules. That's all it means, the "Thank You" club—just a thank you for the little services performed daily as well as the big ones. A thank you is more appreciated by many people than a tip, which, by some, might be considered an insult. Start a club some morning. Watch your club grow. Good ideas spread. Try the club for one day. It may make you a life member. And the thank yous will increase and radiate like ripples from a stone thrown into the mill-pond. There's a big field in Lowell for Thank You clubs. Their members take the edge off rough places. If Thank You is the password, the genuine smile of service is the open reward for its application.

"I Told You So"

They don't like, some folks say, you know. Don't like to say "I told you so?" Well, I just think it's fine. When some chance emphasis of mine wings to the bull's-eye of the mark. Well, then, you ought to hear me bark: "I told you so!"

Some folks, they kind of hum and haw. And let their friends down easy. Pah! I jump right on my dearest friend. I simply stand him up on end. And in vain, not to be denied. And make him hearken to my call—"I told you so!"

Some folks sort of apologize. Because events have proved them wise. Not me I love to rub it in. I just haw-haw and whoop and grin. And let the other fellows know I told him not. I told him so!

Some folks—but shucks! come now, confess! You sometimes say those words, I guess. And when you do, a foolish pride sings in your soul to be denied. Owp up you love to say them, too. What's that you say? What's that? You do?

I told you so!

—EDMUND VANCE COOKE.

MAN ABOUT TOWN

The rainbow that was visible to Lowell people last night about 8 o'clock was remarkable in a number of ways. In the first place rainbows are not a common phenomena in this latitude and longitude at this time of the year. They usually come following the torrential downpour of a thunderstorm in midsummer. They also come gradually, appearing and disappearing against the broken clouds until a more or less perfect arch is formed. Last night's display appeared in an instant, and it remained spanning the heavens with a complete bow for the space of five or six minutes when it as quickly disappeared. There was no fitting in and out of sight as it made its entrance on the scene and it did not gradually fade away. Simply, it was visible one instant and the next it had gone.

There is an old story that men of the sea used to risk which ran something like this:

"Rainbow in the morning, sailors take warning; Rainbow at night is the sailors' delight."

Being interpreted this means of course that the rainbow of the early hours of the day is to be considered the forerunner of a continued or coming storm, while one that appears in the hours nearer sunset should presage fair weather. It would seem possible that the weather bureau should have remembered the words of the old song and considered the rainbow in making up their prognostications, for last night they predicted unsettled weather with showers for today, but this morning they had revised their prediction to "fair and warmer."

LOWELL CEMETERIES

Flags Waving and Flowers Blooming in Silent Cities of the Dead

With plans under way for a wider observance of Memorial day this year than for many years past, the authorities in charge of the local cemeteries are straining every effort to have the various burial places within the city in condition for the numberless people who will visit the graves of their departed loved ones on the holiday to pay their annual tribute.

The backward season has interfered seriously with the usual spring work in many of the cemeteries with the result that flowers and plants are being set out at the eleventh hour and large gangs of men are working at top-speed getting the various lots in presentable condition.

Thousands of little American flags will wave over the graves of soldier and sailor dead in Lowell's cemeteries this Memorial day and veterans of three wars will be remembered not only by their families but by their former comrades.

With the American Legion functioning as a well organized body, the graves of every Lowell soldier or sailor who died in the world war and who is buried here will be suitably marked and flags put in place. The Civil and Spanish-American war veterans will, of course, see that the graves of their dead are decorated.

In some of the cemeteries the superintendents report an anticipated shortage of flowers for this year's observance owing to the high prices, while in others the usual amount of floral decoration is expected.

Various improvements have been made in all the cemeteries since last Memorial day and in not a single instance will the visitor find nothing new to admire as he or she makes the Memorial day pilgrimage.

The Lowell Cemetery

The Lowell cemetery will present the most beautiful appearance in its history on Memorial day this year. For weeks Superintendent Harry O. Mulino has been preparing for the holiday and he announces that the quantity of flowers that have been ordered is nearly double that of any previous year.

Outside the greenhouses are a large number of plants that have already been prepared and are ready for setting. In one collection are 65 large vases and baskets in condition to be moved to the lots, while the work is well underway of filling 50 other similar receptacles that are in various parts of the 15-acre enclosure, but are too large to be moved from the lots.

In the greenhouses the floral display is more than ordinarily profuse. Near the entrance is a collection of geraniums such as can scarcely be equalled in this part of the country. Some of the plants are between three and four feet tall, and on top of the single plants are no less than 17 buds and blossoms. Inside the greenhouses are many baskets and pans containing geraniums, carnations, pansies, petunias, rock plants, ageratum, heliotrope and other plants. There are also many pans containing geranium and celery geranium and palms.

A large bed of feverfew is in bud, and it is hoped that it will be in full bloom by next Monday. There are also many carnations in either flower or bud.

Most of the lawns and the surfaces of the lots will be mowed during the next few days and everything will be at its best around the cemetery early next week. The damp weather of the last few weeks has given the grass a lush growth, and it has got the start of Superintendent Mulino and his men, but with a few bright, sunny days in which to work they hope to soon have all the lawns as smooth as velvet.

There are few new monuments of importance that have been added to the cemetery since a year ago. The foundations are in for seven new pieces that would have been in place for Memorial day if work upon them had not been halted by a strike of granite workers at the quarries.

One of the monuments erected since last Memorial day that attracts attention is the James E. Hughes monument with a statue representing Sorrow standing upon a base of dark granite. This is located on a tract of 15 lots that was opened last fall.

One of the most beautiful spots in the enclosure just now is the Willoughby memorial garden opposite the burial lot of the family. Tulips at present fill the beds, and there will be succeeded by other flowers as one plant after another passes out of blooming during the summer season.

Work is now in progress on a plot of 16 new bank lots near the Reister entrance to the cemetery. Near the Lawrence street entrance a circular drive has opened up a number of lots since last year that are desirable for persons who visit the cemetery in the electric cars and do not desire to walk far after entering the cemetery.

Superintendent Mulino and the cemetery have been recently received in Boston. It's up to the Lowell dealers to get their share of them for those who can afford such luxuries.

A patron of the taxi at a public meeting opposing the present scale of prices.

A bunch of high school girls without one or two showing well powdered faces.

Supt. John W. Kernan of the park department is having the smaller parks throughout the city but in shape for the summer season. The larger part of the department's staff is now doing this work and within a few days expect to have everything spick and span. The larger parks and commons have already been put in shape and the debris which accumulated during the winter months has been removed. Although it is the more prominent playgrounds that are pointed out to visitors as show places, nevertheless, the dozen or so small parks scattered all over the city form a very important link in the department's system and need just as much attention, in proportion to their size, as the larger olory authorities are proud of their record in having been the only cemetery in New England, outside of two in Boston, that was not compelled to delay burials last winter on account of heavy storms and cold weather.

The Edison Cemetery

The Edison cemetery will be in just as excellent condition for Memorial day as Supt. Thomas Duckworth and his staff of 35 men can place it. Only yesterday the long border beds inside the fence were filled with many varieties of flowers and although the flowering shrubs have been retarded by the absence of spring, they are full budded in many instances and require only a little warm sun to break into blossoms.

As every succeeding summer rolls around the wisdom of setting out hundreds of maple trees along the cemetery avenues a comparatively short time ago is more acutely apparent. Just at this time the trees seem particularly green and fully leaved and are of a shade which verges upon a radiant silver. Perhaps they seem more attractive as passers-by unconsciously compare them against the bleak background of the past winter, but whether or no, they are unusually beautiful.

Because of the uncertainty of the weather the cemetery work which precedes Memorial day and which naturally would be spread out over a fortnight or three weeks, this year is by necessity limited to hardly more than a week. The flower beds, for instance, set out yesterday, would have been taken care of more than a week ago but for a fear of frost. Even now some concern is felt, but as the time grew shorter the chance had to be taken.

Lilacs are not in fullest bloom, although one large clump of the white variety near the main gate is fairly well blossomed. Near the gate, also, one cannot help but notice one of the city's most beautiful trees—a brown maple, tinged with gold—as symmetrical as a pear and fully in blossom, well formed leaves. This tree turns back to a maple green in the fall, Supt. Duckworth says, and adds that this chameleon proclivity is unusual in his knowledge, at least.

Practically all of the men now at work are cutting grass. The number of perpetual care lots has increased considerably during the past year and these are more easily dressed up for Memorial day. But, the cemetery is large and with the consideration that the backward season did not allow for any lawn work until about two weeks ago, it may be seen that steady work will be necessary from now until the 31st if the cemetery is to look its prettiest on that day.

The Edison has approximately 1250 graves of soldier dead. Of this number, about 45 are veterans of the Spanish war and 15 of the late World war. There may be others buried there, too, in unmarked graves, but every effort has been made to scan the records for lost names and through the efforts of Commander Frank B. Flanders many additional ones have been found since last Memorial day.

The little flags that fly over the graves of G.A.R., Spanish and World war veterans are almost white today. A cruel winter lashed them and blotted out their colors of red and blue, leaving only an expanse of grayish white. Real stars and stripes will replace them next Monday, however, and the hundreds who will visit the cemetery will feel that everything possible has been done for its beautification.

St. Patrick's Cemetery

A shortage of labor, the backward season and the high price of flowers are three deterrents with which Supt. Dennis J. Meagher of St. Patrick's cemetery has had to contend in preparing for this year's observance of Memorial day and getting the large area which the cemetery covers in condition for the thousands who will visit it on the holiday.

Perhaps the most serious of these has been the inclement weather which has been characterized this spring. It has been almost useless to attempt to set out new plants or get the various lots into condition owing to the cold weather and almost continual rain.

However, at the present time the regular cemetery force, augmented by a number of extra men, is working at top-speed cutting grass and generally renovating the appearances of the various graves after the winter season. By the time Memorial day rolls around everything will be spick and span.

The shortage of labor has been another obstacle which has interfered seriously with the usual spring work at the cemetery.

"It is next to impossible to get men," Supt. Meagher said yesterday, "although we pay fairly high wages here and the work is not exactly laborious, the men whom we would ordinarily be able to count on are engaged in other occupations and we had hard work getting the men who are here now."

Questioned as to the floral display this year, always a feature of the Memorial day observance, Mr. Meagher expressed the belief that there would be few flowers bought this year owing to the high prices being charged. He said that he had received orders for flowers for various graves but he had found it almost impossible to obtain them even at steep prices.

However, even though the usual wealth of floral displays may be missing this year, there will be no lack of color at St. Patrick's, for hundreds of American flags will float over the resting places of soldier and sailor dead. Some 600 or 700 veterans of the Civil war are buried in this cemetery, several hundred Spanish-American war veterans and a score or so veterans of the world war. Every grave will be marked and a tiny Old Glory set in place over the hero's resting place.

Those who will find new macadam roads, wide and smooth, running through the area occupied by the cemetery and the dirt roads of previous years which became most disagreeable in rainy weather are a thing of the past. Last summer a large force of men put the avenues in condition and now access to the various sections of the cemetery is extremely easy.

The cemetery authorities plan extensive improvements this year, notably among which will be the laying out of a large number of small maple trees near the foreground of the cemetery. At the present time and for many years past there has been a wealth of arbor in the rear of the burying ground, but the section bordering on Gorham street has been practically naked of shade. A systematic method of tree cultivation, is planned, so that a few years hence, when the annual Memorial day throng of visitors come to honor their dead, their progress through the cemetery will be marked by stately maples, sheltering them from the sun's rays.

St. Joseph's Cemetery

All is in readiness at St. Joseph's cemetery for the observance of Memorial day. The avenues through the burying grounds have been put in shape, the various lots have been mowed, the graves of veterans of the three wars have been decorated with American flags and neither time nor expense has been spared in beautifying the grounds.

There are 30 veterans buried in St. Joseph's cemetery, 15 of the Civil war, three of the Spanish war and 12 of the world war and of that number 27 are buried in private lots, while the remainder are in the soldiers' lot. The Memorial day exercises every year are carried out on the soldiers' lot and it is expected this year the same rule will prevail.

The general appearance of the cemetery reflects great credit upon the superintendent, Pierre Tremblay. The avenues of the burying grounds, which are well laid out are kept in good condition, while the various lots are well cared for.

There were no improvements of great importance in the cemetery recently or not since last fall when the handsome monument symbolizing the Calvary was erected on the highest elevation of the grounds under the auspices of St. Joseph's parish, but the Oblate fathers are now contemplating the erection of a new gate at the main entrance to the cemetery and it is possible that this will be in form of a granite arch artistically arranged and dedicated to the memory of the French-speaking heroes of the world war.

The cemetery is a little out of the way, however, being about a mile from the electric and the main thoroughfare leading to the grounds is in poor condition. It is hoped by many that some day the electric car line will be extended to the cemetery and that the town officials of Chelmsford will repair the road.

MEMORIAL DAY IN CHELMSFORD

The veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic are to decorate the soldiers' graves in Forefathers' cemetery in Chelmsford Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. For the formal exercises of Memorial day the veterans have been asked to assemble at the town hall at 3.15 a. m. and 15 minutes later the usual parade will start. Fred I. Fletcher will be the chief marshal. The Chelmsford band will be in line under the direction of Band Sergeant George F. White. The veterans of the Grand Army will be followed in line by soldiers of the world war, town officials and school children. The parade will circle Central square and then proceed to Forefathers' cemetery where the G.A.R. exercises will be held. The line will then move to the Revolutionary monument on the common and later to the town hall. At the hall there will be music by the Chelmsford band and singing by a quartet from the Central Congregational church. Rev. John A. Lovell, pastor of the Congregational church, will deliver an address. Miss Helen Osgood of Lowell will read Lincoln's Gettysburg address. After the exercises there will be an informal reunion and dinner in the lower town hall for the veterans, members of their families and guests.

In observance of the 26th anniversary of the settlement of the town a Pilgrim pageant is to be given next Saturday evening at 6.45 in Pollard's grove, Bartlett street, by a cast from the Central Congregational society. The first scene will picture the town's first minister, Rev. John Fiske, on his way to church. The second scene will reproduce a typical week-day in the Pilgrim colony at Plymouth, and will introduce some well known characters of the Pilgrim band, including William Bradford, Elder Brewster, Priscilla Mullins and John Robinson and Mrs. Robinson. Rehearsals for the older people that are to take part in the pageant will be held tonight and tomorrow night and the school children will rehearse tomorrow afternoon at the close of the school.

1000 ENTRIES FOR BIG FIELD CHAMPIONSHIPS

PHILADELPHIA, May 26.—With more than 1000 entries the 44th annual track and field championship games of the Intercollegiate Amateur Athletic Association of America will be staged at Franklin field here on Friday and Saturday, May 28-29. In many respects the meet will be the most important staged by the association in some years. The performances of the winning athletes take on added interest due to the proximity of the Olympic games and the college track coach whose pupils succeed in capturing the points trophy and championship will stand out prominently as a candidate for the position of trainer of the American Olympic team which will represent this country at Antwerp.

The return to normal conditions in college athletics following several years of war activities has resulted in a competition back to the high plane which always marked these titular contests. More than 30 colleges and universities are expected to participate by teams ranging from 10 to 10 individual athletes, including two strong contenders from the Pacific coast, California and Stanford, who have excellent winning records, made earlier in the season, will be the far west invaders, but it is not expected that the middle western institutions will figure in the final result of the meet as the western conference games set for June 1-5 are occupying the attention of the athletes of that section to an unusual extent this season.

Close followers of college track athletics are extremely anxious to find out the winner due to the widely distributed strength of the material this year. Cornell, Pennsylvania, Princeton, Penn State, Stanford, Yale and several other prominent institutions have one or more star performers in either track or field events, and the prowess of the invaders, especially from the Pacific coast is a factor that must be reckoned with in apportioning the points which are awarded as follows: First place, 3; second, 2; third, 1; fourth, 1; fifth, 1. In case of a tie for any one place the points are divided equally among the contenders tying for first place.

Since the initial meet, held in 1876, Harvard has won the greatest number of championships, the Crimson totaling for the past 43 games being 13 victories. Cornell and Yale are tied for second place with nine victories each, and Pennsylvania is close third with eight. Cornell has won the last five games, the Ithaca university record running back to the 1914 meet. On the war the title contests were not held in 1917.

Thirty-eight colleges have won points in these games since the opening contest in 1876. Yale leading with 747 2-60 points. Harvard comes second with 676; Penn third with 600; Cornell fourth with 515 and Princeton fifth with 366. Michigan has accumulated 215 2-3; Pittsburgh 20 and California 1644 among the teams which have entered from territory outside of the eastern section of the country.

HAYDEN LEADS TOURNAMENT BOWLERS

Hayden leads in the Crescent tournament this week with a three-string total of 350, negotiated in singles of 117, 111, 117, with a five-pin handicap. O'Brien is second, with 332, in the two-men competition. Flanders and McNulty are ahead, with 610, while McDermott and McQuade with 611. O'Brien and Estes with 610 and 609, and Flanders with 615 are other prominent marksmen.

Three-string rolling finds McQuade, Gendron and McDermott high men, with 963. Schombom, Kennedy and Flanders with 946 are second.

In five-men rolling the figures are: O'Brien, Schombom, Flanders, Lynn and Estes, 1512; Lindsey, Whitfield, Espinola, Hawson and Finnegan, 1537; Sweeney, Schombom, Estes, O'Brien and Flanders, 1551.

LOWELL HIGH PLAYS AT HOME SATURDAY

The Lowell high school baseball team resumes playing next Saturday after a long lay-off occasioned by a stretch of bad weather when the Arlington high school nine comes to Spaulding park. A game scheduled with Arlington at the park earlier in the season had to be cancelled because of rain, but arrangements were made today whereby the Saturday game has been definitely settled.

AMATEUR BASEBALL

The Cedar Stars have re-arranged their lineup from noon on with the name of the Young Athletics. They would like to have the game with the Belvidere Tigers postponed until Saturday afternoon, May 29.

The Lincoln defeated the Barlett yesterday, 10 to 7. Delaney and Sidman did the battery work for the winners.

The Gillespie Mfg. Co. baseball team will play the All-Stars tomorrow at 5:30 p. m. on the Princeton oval. Williams and Bird will work for Gillespie, opposed by Carney and Murphy. The Gillespie team will not be able to fill a paying date on Memorial day.

DOWNES WINS FROM DE FOE ON FOUL

A telegram was received from Syracuse, N. Y., today announcing that Johnny Downes of South Boston won from Billy De Foe in the fifth round last night on a foul.

Negotiations are underway to stage a bout here between Philney Boyle of Lowell and Frankie Brito of New Bedford for the lightweight championship of New England. The Crescent Athletic directors have had the matter under consideration for some time and if propositions submitted prove acceptable to all concerned the title fight may be put off at an open air show a week from Saturday. The pair met in Lowell several months ago and a whitewash number resulted. It was called a draw, but Boyle had the better of the bout. Brito retained his title as a result. Ever since that time Boyle and his manager, Jack Leahy, have been clamoring for another match and in anticipation of securing the chance Boyle has continued doing light training. Since that bout Brito fought Kilroy for the welterweight title but, despite the outcome of that mill, he still holds the lightweight crown. Boyle deserves another crack at it and such a match looks like one of the most logical in New England today.

STAR GLOVE MEN Six Top-Notchers to Appear in Lawrence Bouts

LAWRENCE, May 26.—Boxing fans of the east will witness the greatest galaxy of stars ever assembled on one card when they attend the all-star show which the Atlas A. A. will stage Saturday afternoon at Cuddy Brothers arena. Johnny Dundee, Jack Lawlor, Mel Cogan, Freddy Jacks, Benny Valger and Joe Welling are the contenders who will appear in 12-round bouts. A six-reunder between Tommy Early and Kid Francis, both of this city, will open the show.

Johnny Dundee will meet Jack Lawlor of Omaha. The latter is the ring's latest sensation. In a previous meeting with Dundee he was given a decision and he has also been awarded the decisions over Benny Valger and Willie Jackson.

Mel Cogan will meet Joe Welling of Chicago. Cogan is now under the management of George Lawrence and has been going like a house on fire. Welling has, for many years, been regarded one of the greatest lightweights in the country.

The third big bout of 12 rounds will bring together Benny Valger, the "French Flash" and Freddy Jacks, the featherweight champion of England.

TERRY MARTIN BEATS FRIEDMAN

BOSTON, May 26.—Terry Martin of Providence is still the bantamweight champion of New England. Abe Friedman of New York tried to get it away from him in Mechanics building last night, but after the pair had battled for 12 rounds, Referee Phil Donahue declared Martin the winner.

The minute was close, but Martin was the more aggressive. At 3 p. m. both weighed under 120 pounds and appeared in good shape. At this point the battle, however, it looked as if making that weight had taken some of the steam out of Martin.

Storlin kept boxing Friedman on the kidneys with the right and hooking left to face and jaw. Friedman countered, well. In a number of the rounds they engaged in some hot exchanges.

Investigate Carranza Death

longo, he was led by Herrero to the hut where he was to sleep. General Murgula and other members of the party were taken to different houses in the village. Before retiring, Carranza ordered his aides to assist in placing sentinels, all of whom were Herrero's men.

"Herrero later told Carranza that a messenger had informed him his brother was injured, whereupon Herrero left the village, promising to return. At 5 o'clock on the morning of May 21, three of Herrero's men entered the president's hut, stating they had been ordered to report to him what the situation was, adding that nothing new had occurred. Carranza listened to the report and then told the men to leave.

"The report says this move was probably for the purpose of ascertaining if all in the hut were in bed and whether Carranza had changed his position."

"Half an hour later the hut was attacked from all sides. President Carranza was heard to cry: 'I can't get up, my leg is broken.' He then begged for a carbine so that he could defend himself, but was answered by a volley which ended his life instantly.

"The other occupants of the hut fled, as did those in the other shelter, and there was great confusion in the village. Carranza, at the head of his men, captured 'many' of the party, who were taken 12 miles away. Four or five of these prisoners were forced to sign a statement that Carranza had committed suicide.

"These facts are alleged 'to prove a conspiracy was prepared in advance by Carranza, which inspired confidence in him by Carranza and ended in the president's betrayal.'

"The report recommends that a formal investigation be ordered to clear up the other points of the incident, which relate to the part taken by Carranza's men and members of the president's party."

Held in Prison

MEXICO CITY, May 26 (By Associated Press).—Military officers and civilians who were taken captive following the death of President Carranza will be held in the prison here until Adolfo de la Huerta, the provisional president, takes office. Disposition of the men is expected to be decided by him.

$300 VERDICT AGAINST DEPUTY SHERIFF

Robert Linn Morningstar jury returned a verdict of $300 in the case of George W. Clark against Deputy Sheriff Edward W. Clark in which the defendant was charged with not having made full return of the value of a horse belonging to the plaintiff which was seized on a writ of attachment and sold at auction.

In the case of Bashynes vs. Galtsopoulos, D. J. Murphy appeared for the defendant and stated that the case had been postponed several times at the instance of the plaintiff and that he desired to have the trial proceed. Judge Fosdick ordered the parties in interest to be ready for trial at the afternoon session of the court.

As no further civil cases were ready for trial Judge Fosdick took up the consideration of uncontested divorce actions. The cases heard were:

Thomas J. Boyle vs. Annie J. Boyle statutory grounds, decree nisi granted.

Joseph Jeszak vs. Kazmier Jeszak cruel and abusive treatment, libelous defaulted.

'T'WAS NOT LIKE THIS
IN THE OLDEN DAYS

A municipal department whose modus operandi has been practically reversed within the past few years is that of the purchasing agent and if there is one person in Lowell who sighs for a return of the "good old times," it is Purchasing Agent Edward H. Foye.

Before the high cost of everything came into being and when there was scarcely of practically nothing but platinum, Mr. Foye used to walk in his office every morning and find lined with salesmen eager and anxious they might depict the virtues of whatever article or commodity they were selling and which the city, perhaps, might need for some one of its many

The whole Mr. Foy advertised to bid on any commodity, so naturally what is nature there came flocking to him innumerable salesmen armed with facts and figures to show why their commodity their firm was handling was the cheapest and best on the market. Then all the purchasing agent had to do was choose the lowest bidder, sign the order and the business was done.

him innumerable salesmen armed with facts and figures to show why the article their firm was handling was the cheapest and best on the market. To all the purchasing agent had to choose the lowest bidder, sign contract and the goods were delivered.

Today, it is a different story. There are few visitors in the purchasing agent's office. There is a loneliness, a desolation about the place totally unknown a few years ago. No longer do salesmen elbow one another in endeavor to give Mr. Foyle "an e-mail."

Now when the purchasing agent wants anything, the mere act of calling for bids is no guarantee that he will get what he wants. He must assume a more humble mien. It is practically useless to call for bids because the call will not be answered. It is a question now of how much a thing will cost, but rather whether it will be possible to get it at any price.

Today the salesmen do not come to Mr. Foyle and consider it a privilege to have an audience with him. They must go to them and state his wants. There is no eagerness to get large orders. For instance, if the public property department wants five tons of coal, Mr. Foyle will be told by the handling that product that he must contract with one. And no it is not coal, sugar and almost everything else that the city uses. Prices are immaterial to the firms selling goods, at least to Mr. Foyle they are a very important matter because he is restricted in what he is allowed to pay.

That is why the purchasing agent, praying devoutly for a return of days when standing room was at a premium in his office and when salesmen were only too eager to move heaven and earth to get an order. Mr. Foyle at one time thought that no man was more "hostered" than he, but he is willing now to stand a bit of hoisting. It would result in a better flow of commodities.

RACE OF THE CANDIDATES AND INCIDENTS OF THE CAMPAIGN

Ex-Senator Weeks May Take Place of Murray Crane---McAdoo and Cox Leaders on Democratic Side---Effort to Displace Phelan---Gen. Wood's Battle

Former Chairman of the Democratic National Committee William F. McAdoo is out with a statement advocating the nomination of Gov. James M. Cox of Ohio, by the democrats at San Francisco. Mr. McAdoo had a large share in the selection of Mr. Wilson as the party's standard bearer in 1912 and he naturally thinks that he knows good presidential timber when he sees it. He claims that Ohio is to be one of the pivotal states in the coming election, and that Mr. Cox is a man who can carry it. The former national chairman objects to the nomination of Mr. McAdoo, because he believes that the republicans would bring forward the crown prince issue, and assert that an attempt was being made to found a dynasty by keeping the presidential office within the Wilson family circle. He thinks the same objection would in a way apply to the candidacy of Mr. Palmer. It is asserted that Governor Cox would positively decline a vice-presidential election.

Mr. Crane's Retirement

Winthrop Murray Crane's announcement that he will not be a candidate for re-election as a member of the republican national committee from Massachusetts is said to have come as a surprise to his associates in party management. It had been expected that he would serve through at least one more campaign. He was first elected to the position in 1904, and has held office continuously since. Mr. Crane has been a power of more than ordinary importance in republican affairs, and his counsel and methods will be sorely missed by his associates. There can be no doubt of that. It was to Mr. Crane that the late Colonel Roosevelt first applied the term of "pussyfoot." When the historian of the future sets down an impartial record of Mr. Crane's career, well up toward the front of his achievements will be the fact that his was the hand that guided the steam roller that prepared the way for the nomination of Mr. Taft in 1912.

Weeks as Successor

Since Hon. John W. Weeks retired from the senate a year ago he has given practically all of his time to the work of a member of a sub-committee on finance of the national republican committee. As such it has been his task to raise the funds that are to finance the coming campaign. In this work it is currently believed he has been remarkably successful. In seeking a successor for Mr. Crane, it is likely that the members of the Massachusetts delegation will select Mr. Weeks. It has been decided by the delegation leaders that Speaker Frederick H. Gillett, of Springfield, is to have the position of delegation chairman, and that Louis A. Coolidge will be a member of the platform committee.

Stevens a Candidate

The resignation of Raymond B. Stevens from the position of vice chairman of the shipping board to become a candidate for the democratic senatorial nomination in New Hampshire projects a new personality into a situation that is filled with interest. Mr. Stevens has previously been a candidate of his party for senator. While holding a seat in the lower house of congress he was nominated by his party for the senate six years ago and made a brilliant fight for election against heavy odds. At that time the late Jacob M. Gallinger was alive and wished to be returned to the senate, and the forces that Mr. Gallinger was able to align in opposition to Mr. Stevens were too strong to be overcome. Mr. Stevens goes to San Francisco pledged to vote for Mr. Hoover if he is a candidate for the democratic nomination. The names of John B. Jameson of Concord, and John C. Hutchinson of Stratford, have also been mentioned in connection with the senatorial nomination in the Granite State.

Not Too Confident

The Massachusetts managers of General Leonard Wood's campaign express in public the greatest confidence that they will have the vote of the whole state delegation recorded in favor of their candidate when the roll is called for the first time at Chicago. Behind the scenes the managers do not seem quite so confident of the outcome they predict. In the eighth district they have been sending out circular letters to voters of the party urging them to bring pressure to bear upon the district delegates to force them into line with the Wood boomers. With the letters they have enclosed blank post cards with the suggestion to each voter that he get busy and write to each of the delegates telling him that he wishes him to support the general.

Cheering News

The cheering news comes from Beacon hill in Boston that there is a good chance that the legislators there in session will have completed their labors by the end of the present week, and that adjournment will take place in ample time for any of the lawmakers who intend to be present at the Chicago convention to pack their grips in unhurried fashion. If the proroguing program is carried out it will probably mean that a number of important bills will fail to get serious consideration, and will be set upon altogether or sent to the next general court. Among these may be the maternity benefits bill. In his inaugural address Governor Coolidge said the policy of Massachusetts in aiding mothers to care for their children might "well be extended in scope to the giving of aid, nursing and medical attendance to needy, expectant mothers." There is said to be a split in the committee that has the matter under consideration over which of two bills it has before it to report, and members of the dominant party, who are opposed to the enactment of the measure because of the expense it is believed it would entail, are hoping that the report will be so delayed that consideration of the matter at the present session will be deemed inadvisable.

Boytton's Successor

It has been known for some time that Federal District Attorney Boytton of Boston intended to resign in the near future, and that verbal notice to that effect had been communicated to his superiors in Washington. One of the foremost candidates mentioned for the place is Daniel J. Gallagher, assistant district attorney for Suffolk county. A number of other well equipped men are also said to be in the running. Senator Walsh, if it is understood would strongly favor Mr. Gallagher but it is alleged that Lodge is opposed to his appointment.

Women in the Field

A branch of the National League of Women Voters is expected to come into existence in Massachusetts the latter part of the present week. It is through this organization that a number of future voters hope to advance measures in which they are interested and which they intend to push to the front when they become full-fledged citizens. The platform of the league calls for additional child welfare legislation, measures to decrease illiteracy, federal supervision of marketing and distribution of food, establishment of a woman's bureau in the department of labor at Washington, and a demand for independent citizenship for married women. With the formation of the new league, the Massachusetts Woman's Suffrage association, after more than 50 years of activity, will pass out of existence.

McAdoo Still Leads

In the straw vote being taken by the Literary Digest, over 900,000 votes have been cast for republican candidates for nomination for president and over 300,000 for democratic aspirants for the nomination to be made at San Francisco. Wood still leads with the republicans, as he has from the beginning, with Johnson second, and Hoover third on the list. McAdoo continues to be the favorite with the democrats. President Wilson is in second place and has increased the distance between himself and Governor Edward I. Edwards who is running third in the race. The republican votes from Massachusetts alone place Wood in the lead, with Hoover following and Governor Coolidge in the fourth place.

Mr. Phelan's Seat

The republicans of the seventh congressional district are said to be planning an active campaign to capture the seat in congress now held by Michael F. Phelan of Lynn. The district is made up of two large cities that are democratic strongholds—Lawrence and Lynn—with a number of small towns that are nominally republican sandwiched in between. There are said to be four republicans in the field as contestants for the party's nomination for congress from the district, and each one of them is said to believe that he is the only logical and sure to win candidate. What complicates the situation is that the nomination is said to have been promised to Lawrence this year, and the butting-in of men from the southern end of the district is causing annoyance all around. Mr. Phelan has represented the district ever since it was established in 1912, and is said not to be worrying very much about his prospects of another re-election.

Cambridge, Mass., 103,456, increase 4617 or 4.4 per cent.
Ansonia, Conn., 16,643, increase 2401 or 14.4 per cent.
Atlanta, Ga., 200,506, increase 45,777 or 22.6 per cent.
Auburn, Me., 16,985, increase 1921 or 12.8 per cent.
Newatuck, Conn., 15,051, increase 2329 or 15.3 per cent.
Derby, Conn., 11,236, increase 2247 or 25 per cent.
Duluth, Minn., 25,917, increase 20,451, or 24.1 per cent.
Andover, Mass., 7329, increase 185, or 2.5 per cent.
Middleton, Mass., 1195, increase 56, or 4.8 per cent.
Boxford, Mass., 555, decrease 120, or 18.1 per cent.

PREDICTS LOWER SHOE PRICES

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Lower shoe prices late next winter and spring

were predicted yesterday by Edward A. Brand, secretary of the Tanners' council of the United States, testifying before a senate committee of inquiry.

Tanners and manufacturers believe prices will fall by that time, Mr. Brand said, because of the recent decline in leather prices. This decline could not sooner be reflected in shoe costs, he said, because shoes are made up far in advance of the season in which they are offered on the market.

Mr. Brand said he did not believe that the "big five" packers controlled hide and leather prices. Altogether the packer product, he said, is only about 50 per cent. of the total.

A person 32 years and 3 months old has only lived a billion seconds.

Who does not know women and young girls who are continually in tears—who always see the dark side—who have frequent fits of melancholia without apparent cause?

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription exerts a wonderful power over woman's delicate system. It is an invigorating temperance tonic and is prescribed for the peculiar weaknesses, irregularities and painful derangements of women. It can be procured in liquid or tablets at any drug store.

Warsaw, N. Y.—"A few years ago I had feminine weakness and was all run-down. I was so weak I could hardly get around the house, so I thought I would try Doctor Pierce's medicines. After taking a few bottles each of Pierce's Favorite Prescription and Golden Medical Discovery I began to gain strength and never felt better."

NAME "BAYER" ON GENUINE ASPIRIN

Safe, proper directions in each "Bayer" package

The "Bayer Cross" placed on tablets means you are getting true "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" proved safe by millions of people—the genuine Aspirin prescribed by physicians for over eighteen years.

In every handy "Bayer" package are proper directions for Colds, Headache, Toothache, Earache, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, Neuritis and for Pain generally.

Tin boxes of 12 tablets, cost only a few cents. Druggists also sell larger "Bayer" packages. Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid.—Adv.

Dandruffy Heads Become Hairless

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drugstore. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.—Adv.

Just Reason

We sell ASPIRIN TABLETS at 10c for one dozen, 25c for 2 dozen and 50c per 100, each tablet containing 5 grains of PURE ASPIRIN. We have QUININ, WYETH'S and PRESTON'S manufacturers whose names are an absolute guarantee of quality.

REPORT MEASLES CASES WILL NOT DELIVER NEW TO HEALTH BOARD STREET MACHINES

Agent Francis J. O'Hare, of the health board, asks that parents of any child who is suffering from measles report such cases to the board of health as soon as noted so that proper precautions may be taken against the spread of the disease.

Within the past few weeks there has been a great deal of measles in the city and cases are being reported by doctors at a much more rapid rate than the health authorities like to see. Since last Saturday 12 cases have been reported at the health office and six of these came in yesterday.

Owing to the fact that the graduation season is approaching, many parents do not wish to report cases of measles in their family owing to the fear that it may prevent their children taking part in such exercises.

However, Agent O'Hare says that parents should not try to "cover up" in this way, because it may result in a serious epidemic. As soon as a case of measles is noted, a doctor should be called and then there will be no doubt about the disease being reported to the board of health. If a doctor is not called, the law puts the responsibility upon the parent or guardian to see that the case is reported.

If a case of measles is allowed to run on without proper medical care, it is liable to develop into pneumonia or bronchitis. Hence, the desire of the board of health to keep the number of cases down to a minimum so that danger of contagion may be restricted.

DRAW FOR VACATION

The Lowell letter carriers drew numbers from a hat at 1.15 this afternoon for the vacation periods which are to start on July 1st. On their return from their lunch the carriers assembled in the sorting room and pulled cards which bore numbers. The men will have the choice of periods according to the numbers which they drew.

The city of Lowell will be forced to do without two street sweeping machines ordered by Commissioner Dennis A. Murphy of the street department several months ago owing to the refusal of the Boston & Maine railroad to forward the machines to this city. Commissioner Murphy was notified today by F. W. Brown, local agent of the railroad.

The machines are now in readiness for shipment at the plant of the Elgin Street Sweeper Co., in Elgin, Ill. Commissioner Murphy was notified a short time ago by the company that he must forward to Illinois a permit from the railroad allowing the shipment to be made.

Mr. Murphy brought the matter to the attention of the local agent, Mr. Brown, and the latter, in turn, took it up with S. E. Miller, superintendent of transportation of the road.

Mr. Miller told Mr. Brown that conditions at present do not warrant issuing permits on the shipment of the two machines, due presumably to the freight congestion. Accordingly, the street sweepers that should have been at work on Lowell's streets a month ago are now lying idle in the factory in Illinois, awaiting the pleasure of railroad authorities as to the time that they are to make the trip east.

BAD DAY FOR DOGS

An automobile struck a dog on West Third street yesterday afternoon. Its right foreleg was broken and after examination by Dr. Eaton he advised Agent (illmore of the Humane society to shoot the animal.

At 6 o'clock last night a Boston bulldog was struck by a machine which bore Florida license plates. The dog sustained a deep gash on its back and Dr. Eaton was compelled to take three stitches to close the wound.

The Saturday half-holiday was the rule in England in the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries.

LOWELL MASONS WILL GO TO PROVIDENCE

Three hundred members of Pilgrim commandery, Knights Templars, of this city, will leave tomorrow morning for Providence, R. I., for the annual convocation of the order on Thursday and Friday of this week.

A street parade will precede the departure of the local members of the order. The knights will assemble at their hall in Merrimack street at 7.15 and at 7.30 will parade up Merrimack street to Monument square and then back down Merrimack to Central, to Middlesex street and the Boston & Maine station. A special train will leave Lowell at 7.50.

Mayor Perry D. Thompson will be among those attending the convocation. The return trip will be made Friday evening.

FUNERALS

DECEASED—The funeral of Miss Mary Delaney took place this morning from her home, 30 Hudson street at 8.30 o'clock and was largely attended by many sorrowing relatives and friends. At St. Anthony's church a funeral high mass of requiem was celebrated at 9 o'clock by Rev. John S. Perry. The choir sang the Gregorian mass, the solo being sustained by Charles Pantano and Mrs. Rose Ramos. Mary Santos and Prof. Bond, Miss O'Donnell presided at the organ. There were many beautiful floral tributes and spiritual bouquets. The bearers were Manuel Martin, Manuel Perry, John Miller, Joseph Correa, George Souza and Manuel Neves. Burial took place in the family lot in St. Patrick's cemetery, where Rev. John S. Perry read the committal prayers at the grave. Undertaker William A. Mack had charge of funeral arrangements.

FUNERAL NOTICES

WHITMORE—Died in Worcester, May 21, Mrs. Mary E. Whitmore, aged 63 years, 1 month and 5 days. A funeral mass will be celebrated at Notre Dame de Lourdes church at 1.30 o'clock Thursday to which friends are invited. The burial in St. Patrick's cemetery will be private. H. C. Brown, undertaker in charge.

KAZANJIAN—The body of Mr. Garabed Kazanjian, who died Monday in Worcester, will be brought to his late home, 51 Wameet st., Thursday morning at 10 o'clock. The funeral will take place Sunday morning from his home, 51 Wameet street. Services will be held at St. Varian's church; burial will be in Westlawn cemetery under the direction of Charles H. Molloy's Sons.

GOSSELIN—The funeral of Fernando Gosselin will take place Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock from the home of the parents, 534 Lakeview avenue. Burial will be in St. Joseph's cemetery under the direction of Undertaker Napoleon Bilodeau.

DEATHS

GOSSELIN—Fernando, aged 3 years, infant son of Omer and Alma Gosselin, died last night at the home of his parents, 534 Lakeview avenue.

CARD OF THANKS

We, the undersigned, take this means of expressing our thanks to our friends, neighbors and relatives for their many kindly acts during the bereavement of our beloved wife and mother. We are grateful also to those who sent floral and spiritual offerings. The many kindnesses will ever be remembered by.

JAMES FLEMING and family.

said, and also her mother, told him that she had been previously married and had sued for divorce in New Jersey which had been granted.

The witness testified that he had lived with his alleged wife in New Jersey, New York and in Lowell from April 1, 1915, to September 23, 1919. As the result of reading letters forwarded to his wife, the petitioner said he discovered evidence that a divorce had not been granted to the defendant at the time of his marriage and that he ceased to live with her.

The question was raised by the court as to the marriage having been made valid under Massachusetts laws by the relations of husband and wife having been continued in good faith by one of the parties after the impediment that existed had been removed by the granting of a divorce in New Jersey. The court took the case under advisement. The petition was not contested.

Other cases considered by the court were disposed of as follows:
Eva D. Morrison vs. George V. Morrison, cruel and abusive treatment, not contested, decree nisi granted.
Christina Elles vs. George H. Elles, cruel and abusive treatment, uncontested, decree nisi granted.
Boisvert vs. Boisvert, desertion, uncontested, continued for the production of further evidence.

Bond Drive Launched

Ogonowski, pastor of the Holy Trinity church and Rev. Jozef Soltysiak, rector of St. Kazimierz church, will be the principal speakers.

Yesterday $3000 worth of bonds were sold, but it is expected that upwards of $50,000 will be secured after tomorrow night's meeting.

The local committee in charge of selling the bonds in Lowell is headed by Frank Kus as chairman. Its other officers are: Vice chairman, Anthony Paprowicz; financial secretary, Jacob Targ; recording secretary, Frank Urbanek. Rev. Fr. Ogonowski and Rev. Fr. Soltysiak also are members of the committee.

The Polish government bond issue is in the nature of a first mortgage. Inasmuch as Poland has practically no other indebtedness. The bonds have a 20 year maturity, or until April, 1940. They are issued in denominations of $50, $100 and $500 and bear 6 per cent interest, payable semi-annually.

Jacob Targ as financial secretary of the Lowell committee is endeavoring to make arrangements whereby purchasers of bonds may pay for them through local banks on an installment plan. This already is being taken up with the headquarters of the national campaign committee, 150 Munsey building, Washington, D. C.

The bonds are offered for purchase on a strictly cash basis. United States currency only being taken in exchange. The campaign has been given a time limit until June 15.

BITTEN BY DOG

tant in present day police history in the city.

It was wholly due to quick, clear thinking by Lynch and Hill that the arrest was effected. Warned at about 8 p. m. by Lieut. Petrie and Inspector Walsh to be on the lookout for a Mitchell roadster with white wheels and carrying a New York license plate, the men caught a glimpse of such a car as it passed through Gorham street at its intersection with Appleton. Without a false move, they jumped to a machine standing at the garage and roared away in pursuit. In Merrimack street they stopped to pick up Officer Lapan and with the fleeing car in sight, headed it off at Merrimack and Pawtucket streets. When taken to the police station

Hermans had in his possession $8450 in counterfeit $50 bills; $3320 in counterfeit $20 bills and $1190 in good currency, making a total "fortune" of $12,960. He freely admitted his identity when questioned, also the story of his counterfeiting exploits that caused federal officers to trail him. He said he got the bills from New York people far as was possible he carried on most of his transactions in garages, where the cash draw was usually full, he said. He also carried two loaded .22-calibre revolvers.

Word that Hermans was approaching this city was flashed to Supt. Welch at about 6 p. m. by federal officers in Boston. His automobile was described and the local chief immediately assigned the case to Lieut. Petrie and Inspector Walsh. All garages were notified first to be on the lookout for the machine and the officers had not been gone from the Postoffice garage more than five minutes before Lynch and Hill went into action on a hot trail.

Hermans claims to be a Belgian by birth and that his parents now live in Brussels. He further claims that he has worked in co-operation with Paul Durand of New York, who now is doing a five-year stretch for counterfeiting and that the bills he used were made by the latter.

He admitted to the local police that he deserted from the Belgian army for conscientious reasons in 1914 after serving nine months against the German invaders. He crossed to England, he said and shipped to Canada as a sailor in 1915. Since then he worked as a designer and draftsman in Detroit and New York.

He was taken to Boston today to be turned over to the federal officers.

LEVI P. MORTON LEFT $10,000,000

Will of Former Vice President Filed in Federal District Court Today

Charles H. Allen, of Lowell, Morton Minot and Bronson Winthrop Executors

WASHINGTON, May 26.—An estate estimated at $10,000,000 is disposed of in the will of Levi P. Morton, former vice president of the United States, which was filed in the federal district court here today for probate. The document was executed June 23, 1910, and was modified by codicils of March 30, 1911; June 4, 1911, and June 24, 1911. Mr. Morton died recently at New York at the age of 96 years.

Charles H. Allen of Lowell, Mass.; Morton Minot of Brockport, N. Y., and Bronson Winthrop of New York city, are named as executors and they with the American Security and Trust Co. of this city will act as trustees of the estate.

Mrs. Martha Morton Hartpence of Philadelphia, a sister of the testator, is given a life annuity of $2000 and the sum of $1200 annually is to be paid to Mrs. Caroline Lay, a sister-in-law of Mr. Morton. A life annuity of $720 is to be paid to Mr. Morton's butler and cash bequests to other servants. Mr. Morton's personal effects and furniture are to be distributed among his children.

Morton Corcoran Eustis, a grandson is given the silver writing set and candlesticks presented to Mr. Morton by resolution of the senate on the expiration of his term as vice president and to his "eldest grandson" is left the testimonial set of silver presented by the banking institutions of New York in 1859.

The remaining estate is bequeathed to the trustees, one share to be held in trust for each of the surviving daughters, Mrs. William C. Eustis, Mrs. Helen Morton and Miss Mary Morton, and one share to be distributed among children of Mrs. Winthrop Rutherford, a deceased daughter. On the death of each daughter, her share will go to her issue or if she dies without issue, then to the other daughters.

JOHN M. FARRELL Auctioneer
OFFICE, 102 MARKET STREET, LOWELL, MASS.

REAL ESTATE AUCTION SALE

SATURDAY, MAY 29, 1920, AT 4 O'CLOCK P. M. AT NO. 31 COURT STREET, OFF MANCHESTER STREET, THREE MINUTES' WALK FROM CORHAM STREET.

I shall sell at public auction to the person who will bid the highest, a 2½ story, 3-tenement house of five rooms each, and 5316 square feet of land, more or less, with a frontage of 52 feet on Court street.

The house has city water, gas and good sewerage; is situated where tenements rent well, is in a good neighborhood, and is but a five minutes' walk from the Corham street electric car line. While the buildings may need some repairs, this property ought to appeal to any person wanting a moderate priced place where they could rent one tenement and live in the other. In this way, in a very short time, the place would pay for itself.

Terms of Sale: $200 must be paid as a deposit as soon as the property is sold. Other terms at sale. Per order, J. D. DOYLE.

I shall sell at public auction all the stock and fixtures of a well stocked provision store, consisting in part of a full line of canned corn, peas, beans, fruits, preserves, ketchup, pickles, onions, jams, soups of all kinds, soaps, soap powders, spices, extracts, baking powder, bags of salt, bags of flour, vinegar, molasses, lot of pea beans, paper and paper bags.

Fixtures consist of meat benches, blocks, counters, shelving, sausage filler, lard press, paper baler, stove, electric fixtures and wiring, Hubert electric combination hamburger, coffee and bone grinder with knife sharpener attached, nearly new; hanging scales, 300 lbs. heavy meat scales, platform scales, butter chest, cheese chest, display refrigerator, meat showcase, portable office, National cash register, to be added from 1 cent to $20, the latest model; lot of track and track hooks, two desks, gas heater and many other articles found in a well stocked store. Per Order: EDWARD FAIRBURN.

WASHINGTON PARK FOR PUBLIC PLAYGROUND

Entirely through the interest and energetic work of Rev. J. B. A. Barrette, O.M.I., assistant pastor of Notre Dame de Lourdes' church in Branch street, arrangements have been made whereby the city may acquire the Washington park property for a public playground on a lease of three years instead of two, as previously agreed to by the owners.

This extension of one year was secured by Fr. Barrette from the real estate office of Thomas H. Elliott after yesterday's municipal council meetings at which the former spoke at length upon the urgent needs of the district from the standpoint of recreational expansion.

Under the previous arrangement the city would be allowed to lease the park for two years at a rental of 5 per cent of the assessed valuation of $25,000, with the proviso that outright purchase be made at the expiration of the lease, or prior thereto. Now, the same rental rate holds true, but with an additional year for the operation of the lease.

Whether or not this additional year of grace will have any effect upon the council in its deliberations upon the matter is not known. When the state highway engineers tentatively plot the river line near the First street oval and that question is ready for settlement, then, Mayor Thompson said today, final action will be taken by the council on both propositions.

IN POLICE COURT

James Keith Sentenced for Larceny—Other Cases

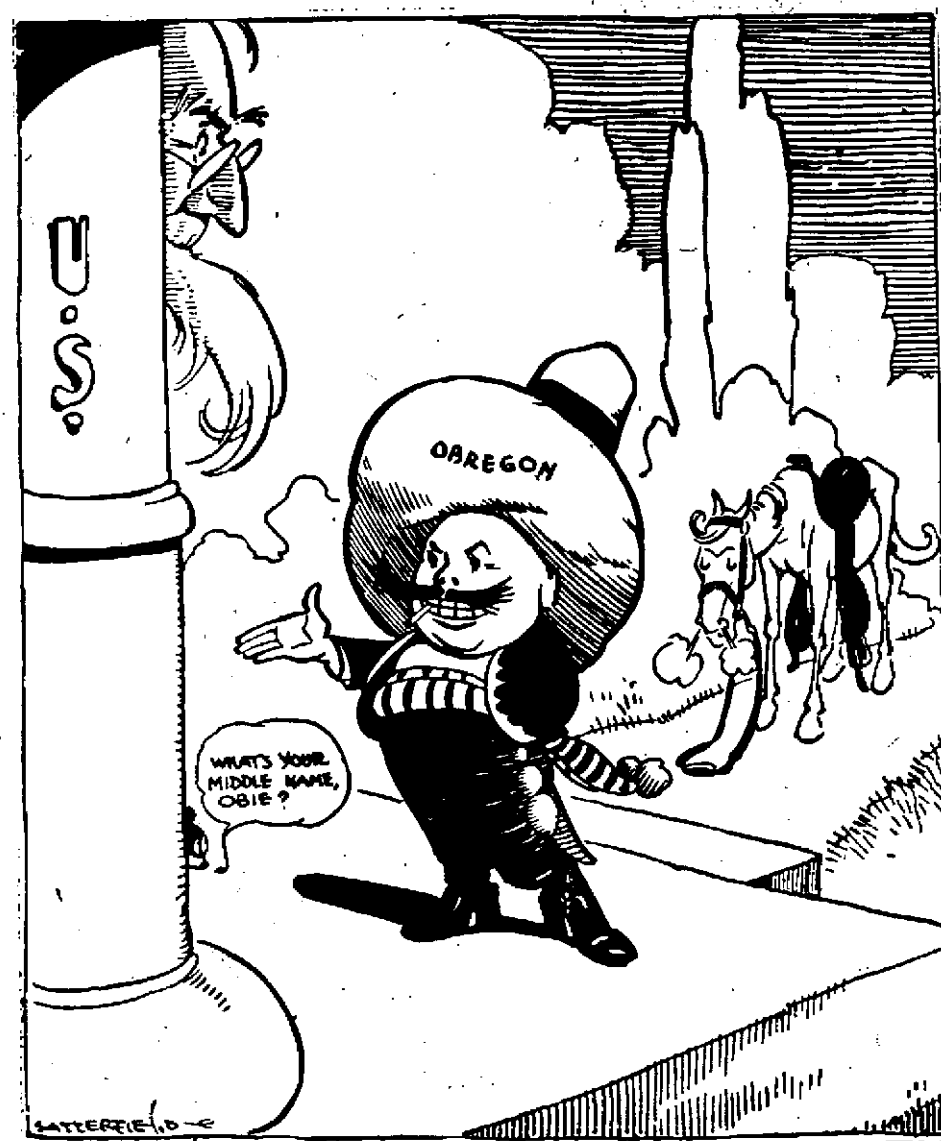

James J. Keith, charged with drunkenness and the larceny of women's clothing from a lodging house in Hurd street, was the principal offender in police court this morning. He was found guilty and sentenced to one month in the house of correction.

Keith was discovered late last night on Greene street by two officers who noticed that he was weighed down with a dress suit case and bundle and a couple of brushes which were sticking out of his pocket. When questioned the defendant replied that he was moving his possessions from one lodging house to another and that the woman's clothes which he had in the bundle belonged to his daughter. The officers arrested him on suspicion. In court this morning Keith admitted that the stories about having a wife and daughter were false and that he had made a mistake in packing up by taking the clothes of a young woman from her bureau. Investigation by the officers disclosed the fact that he had been ordered out of the lodging house last night. The value of the clothes was placed at about $25.

John G. Sophos answered to two complaints, one charging him with operating his truck on Central street in such a manner as to endanger the lives and safety of the public and the other with driving a truck with wrong number plates. On the first count he was found guilty and ordered to pay the minimum fine of $20, and on the second he was found not guilty.

He entered an appeal and was ordered to recognize in the sum of $300 for his appearance before the superior court. Sophos, it is claimed, approached Charles street at a fast rate and on turning into that street cut in front of another machine, narrowly escaping a collision and striking some children who were playing in the street.

The charge of assault and battery against Jacob Kasarian was continued for one week and a like charge against Francis X. Garneau was put over to Sophos answered to two complaints, one charging him with operating his truck on Central street in such a manner as to endanger the lives and safety of the public and the other with driving a truck with wrong number plates. On the first count he was found guilty and ordered to pay the minimum fine of $20, and on the second he was found not guilty.

He entered an appeal and was ordered to recognize in the sum of $300 for his appearance before the superior court. Sophos, it is claimed, approached Charles street at a fast rate and on turning into that street cut in front of another machine, narrowly escaping a collision and striking some children who were playing in the street.

The charge of assault and battery against Jacob Kasarian was continued for one week and a like charge against Francis X. Garneau was put over to

CAMEL STEAK? SURE! FRENCH EAT IT!

PARIS—How does camel steak sound? French folk—some of them—are eating it. Here's why. The cost of food mounted so high after America stopped exporting grain, owing to the high exchange, that the zoo was unable to stand the high cost of feeding this camel. 'Twas sold to a butcher who sliced it up for customers who kicked about the high cost of beef.

Friday, Charles A. Byard was ordered under $200 for his appearance next Wednesday to answer to the complaint of non-support of his wife.

Of the six drunks arrested since yesterday the probation officer released five first offenders this morning.

TELEPHONE ALARM
A telephone alarm at 12:04 o'clock this afternoon summoned a portion of the fire department to Old Meadow road for a grass fire. No damage.

All Hindoos wear whiskers, which are shaved off as a sign of mourning when a near relative dies.

CEMENT SECURED AND WORK GOES ON

Paving work in Dutton and Fletcher streets, which was interrupted owing to the lack of cement, was resumed this morning when Commissioner Dennis A. Murphy succeeded in getting 200 bags from D. T. Sullivan. This will carry on the work for eight or nine days and by that time Edward Cawley, to whom the cement contract was awarded this year, hopes to have another supply in the city.
